Army Duty Begins Today For 60,000 Guardsmen

Roosevelt to Sign Conscription Bill; House Group Seeks Funds for Program

The Nation starts taking the National Guardsmen into Federal service today as it looks to President Roosevelt for signing of the bill that will create a reserve of some 5,000,000 potential draftees.

Sixty thousand Guardsmen in 26 States will report to home armories for induction into the Regular Army and a year of intensive training in the devastating type of warfare developing in Europe's holocaust.

At the same time a House Appropriations subcommittee will begin consideration of President Roosevelt's request for funds with which to finance the Guard mobilization and the conscription and training of some 800,000 men between the ages of 21 and 35 inclusive.

To Fix Registration Date

President Roosevelt, who will sign the conscription bill passed Saturday, also is expected to fix soon the date on which an estimated 16,500,000 Americans will be required to register in their home communities. Mid-October generally is expected to be chosen for the registration, and within 30 days thereafter the first 400,000 of the trainees chosen by lot and through cooperation of local boards, likely will be entering military reservations to begin their 12 months of military education.

Another contingent of 55,000 National Guardsmen will be called into Federal service about October 15, a third of 65,000 about November 15, and 40,000 more about December 1. It is intended to have the entire Guard force of about 242,000 inducted by January 1.

4 Division Participate

Guardsmen reporting today will remain at their home armories up to 10 days, taking medical examinations, filling out required forms and preparing their equipment. Then they will depart for training centers already designated.

Four divisions participate in today's mobilization, the Forty-fourth, Thirtieth, Forty-fifth and Thirty-first, along with 18 Coast Artillery regiments and 4 observation squadrons.

Men in the affected units are from New York, New Jersey, North Carolina, Tennessee, South Carolina, Georgia, Oklahoma, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Washington, Idaho, Oregon, Montana, Wyoming, New Hampshire, Delaware, Illinois, Missouri, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Maine, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Virginia and Arkansas.

U. S. Navy Best, Says Knox

Other facets of the national defense picture were provided as follows:

Secretary of the Navy Knox, after inspecting the United States fleet, said at Honolulu that "I found the fighting forces, as I expected, the most powerful, most effective high seas fleet anywhere in the world."

Amid increasing fears of a shortage of electric power hobbling the defense program, the Federal Power Commission reported that installed capacity of water power plants increased 3.1 per cent in the last year, rising to

U. S. 'Fans' Get Fill Of London Blitz

Copyright by New York Times

London, Sept. 15.—Hitler may not be convincing the British very fast, but he is certainly making an impression on Americans over here. About 200 of them who decided they wanted to see what a blitzkrieg looked like, have had enough now. They want to go home—and can't.

All have been told the same thing—they had a chance to go home several times and there is no plan presently for bringing any other ship across.

Seventeen Americans are trapped on the Channel Islands, which were recently abandoned by the British and occupied by the Germans.

Death Strikes Twice

Glenn Frank and Son Killed When Automobile Overturns

Aide of Republican Leader Survives Wisconsin Wreck

By the Associated Press

Greenleaf, Wis., Sept. 15.—Dr. Glenn Frank, 53, chairman of the Republican Party's program committee, was killed and his son, Glenn Frank, jr., 21, was injured fatally in an automobile accident tonight.

Frank was bringing to a close his campaign for the Republican nomination for United States Senator in Tuesday's Wisconsin primary.

He was enroute to a meeting of Brown County Republican leaders at a Green Bay hotel when the accident occurred.

Young Frank was a newspaper reporter for the Wisconsin State Journal at Madison.

Sheriff Clifford Kellner, of Brown County, said that the automobile, equipped with loudspeakers and signs advertising Frank's campaign, ploughed into a sand pile and overturned.

Ted Stumpf, about 23, of Waunakee, a member of Frank's campaign publicity staff, was suffering from shock but apparently not seriously injured.

He was burned about the face by acid from a battery used in the operation of the sound equipment.

"I was riding in the back seat," Sheriff Kellner quoted Stumpf as saying. "I think Glenn, jr., was driving. I don't know for sure. I don't remember anything else."

All were thrown from the automobile.

DR. GLENN FRANK

Roger Minahan, De Pere attorney, said Frank was late for the political meeting at the Green Bay hotel and phoned him about 7:45 p. m., from Chilton, Wis., 20 miles south of the scene of the accident.

Minahan said that Frank told him: "'We've had a little trouble with the headlights. You folks go on and eat. It's all fixed now and we're coming ahead.'"

Coroner Orlen Miller said that

Willkie Better, Speaks Today At Coffeyville

Gives Strained Larynx Rest in Kansas City At Doctors' Behest

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 15.—Wendell Willkie was a nontalker today. The Republican nominee for President, whose voice gave out yesterday, spent the Sabbath in a penthouse atop the Muehlbach Hotel, obeying the doctor's orders to give his overworked larynx a rest.

He made one appearance before a rally of Republican County chairmen, but resisted what must have been a powerful temptation to make a speech. He gave the G. O. P. workers a figurative embrace with wide-thrown arms, and then went back to the penthouse.

Dr. Harold D. Bernard, throat specialist from Beverly Hills, Calif., who flew here to treat Willkie, issued a bulletin this afternoon which said:

"Mr. Willkie has a strained throat from too many speaking engagements. It is clearing up in nice shape. I expect him to be in a position to keep all of his engagements."

Ed Willkie, the candidate's younger brother, a former Olympic's Games wrestler, sought to

Airport Dedication Is Postponed

President Roosevelt's decision to attend the funeral of Speaker Bankhead at Jasper, Ala., tomorrow has forced postponement of ceremonies dedicating the Washington National Airport, also set for tomorrow.

No decision has yet been reached on a new date.

Roosevelt To Attend Rites For Bankhead

State Funeral Services To Be Held in House; Burial in Alabama

President Roosevelt will head official Washington today in paying homage to Speaker William B. Bankhead at state funeral services in the House chamber.

Then, canceling all previous engagements, the President will board his special train for Jasper, Ala., to attend the final rites for the veteran Alabama Congressman, who died early yesterday after steering the Administration's legislative program through the House as majority leader and Speaker for more than six years.

The House will convene at noon to elect, as new Speaker, Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, of Texas, who will take up the gavel wielded by Bankhead since 1936.

Rites Begin at 12:30

At 12:30 p. m., after a short recess, the President, Cabinet members, Senators, Supreme Court justices, members of the Diplomatic Corps and other high Government officials will file into the hushed chamber for the formal ceremonies. Visitors will be admitted to the galleries by invitation only.

A committee of 60 Representatives will be appointed to accompany Bankhead's body to Jasper on a special train, which will leave Union Station at 4:30 p. m. In Jasper Tuesday final services will be held at the First Methodist Church and the Speaker buried near his parents.

From the yacht Potomac, on which he left Saturday for a weekend cruise, the President expressed his sorrow in a message radioed to Secretary Stephen Early after learning of Bankhead's death.

Sudden Death in Virginia

3 Die in Crashes, Driver Held; Freight Train Kills Boy, 16

Three men lost their lives in automobile accidents and a 16-year-old boy was killed by a train in nearby Virginia yesterday. The dead:

Frank Villano, 40, of 2130 East First street, Brooklyn.

Victor Montalbano, 41, of 3319 Ninety-ninth street, Corona, L. I., driver and owner of the auto.

Evans Wright, 16, of Deloplane, Va.

Villano and Montalbano were crushed to death when their automobile collided head-on with a trailer-truck on the outskirts of Warrenton, at the intersection of Lee highway and Bethel road. L. E. Wetsel, Virginia trooper said the truck driver was Paul Williams, 46, of Burlington, N. C. He was unhurt. A technical charge of manslaughter was placed against him.

Dr. George H. Davis, Fauquier County coroner, who notified the victims' families, said the men were interior decorators, and were returning from a business trip to North Carolina.

Wingate, who was employed in a restaurant at Fairfax, was driving home early yesterday when his car skidded on a gravel road and crashed into a tree. He was dead on arrival at Georgetown Hospital, where he was taken by his father, Jesse Wingate, and a neighbor, C. W. Sensabough.

The Wright boy was killed early yesterday by a Southern Railway freight train, barely 100 yards from his home. A younger brother found the body, according to Sheriff W. S. Wolf. A certificate of accidental death was to be issued today by Dr. Davis.

British Report 185 Raiders Felled, Nazis Boast of Havoc

Italians Occupy Sollum in Drive On Egypt Under R. A. F. Blasting

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Sept. 15.—Italy's deepening drive into Egypt and occupation of the Sollum area was answered today by the British Royal Air Force with blasting attacks on Fascist forces throughout the region.

The R. A. F. said its attacks were "successful" and reported the bombing of moving troops, great damage to expeditionary equipment and the starting of many fires in Italian-held territory.

The British still awaited the main force of the spearhead. Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's troops were driving into a Mediterranean coastal region of desert villages vacated by British troops.

There was no indication as to where the British would stiffen their resistance, but they discounted the first Italian advances as comprising only desert wastes.

Air Forces Active

The Italians stepped up their operations in the air along with their land movements.

There was widespread speculation as to whether the present Italian thurst constituted the first step in a general offensive or whether it merely was a local operation.

Graziani, using a large number of Libyan native troops in addition to his Italian regulars, appeared today to have split his advancing force, moving one column toward the coast and another south of Sollum over a hot, sandy wasteland dotted with large, black rocks.

Italian planes were reported to be attempting to protect the Italian advance and at the same time avoid a direct clash with British planes which constantly soared over advancing mechanized units.

The Italians were moving most of their infantry in fast trucks, guarded by tanks, armored cars and motorcycle patrols.

British Repel Raiders

One Italian air squadron attempted to bomb Mersa Matruh, about 150 miles from Alexandria, British anti-aircraft fire downed one raider and the others veered westward.

The Italian penetration was expected to extend shortly to Bugbug, 225 miles from Alexandria, a point which the British declare has no military or strategic importance.

Libyans and Arabs, equipped only with their rifles and water bottles, were reported leading the Italian movement, followed by regular Italian soldiers.

Military observers here predict these forward units will be broken up quickly when they strike the first determined resistance.

Altogether, the British appear unimpressed by the Italian advance over what they term "No-Man's-Land" and seem content to have their planes and armored fighting vehicles inflict as many casualties

71 Planes Shot Down, Reich Says, Calling English Defense 'Heroic'

By the Associated Press

Berlin (Monday), September 16.—German pilots conducting a relentless bombing onslaught against London are encountering heroic resistance, they declared today.

The great concentration of air defenders about the British capital accounts for bitter fighting and a consequent sharp increase in casualties on each side, they said.

An incomplete German tabulation indicated 71 British planes were destroyed Sunday and 34 German machines failed to return.

Havoc Wrought by Raids

Authorized Nazi sources, however, said havoc was being wrought to British land and sea communications and arms centers by unbroken relays of German bombers.

Berlin itself had two air raid alarms last night and early today, but it was announced that the British bombers were driven away.

It was the first time Berlin had two alarms in one night.

Visibility was poor, and no British planes reached the city, authorities said, but Berliners had to go to shelters for half-hour periods just before and just after midnight.

Concentrate At London

The sudden stiffening of defenses about London was due, the Germans said, to concentration of defense forces there from other parts of England, a move which brought fresh and rested British pilots into action.

This considerably weakened defense of other parts of England, the Germans asserted. Pilots who flew to Liverpool and the Midland cities reported meeting comparatively little opposition.

German pilots said much of the gunfire over London was wild, but so heavy that it made the air rough.

They reported new fires started at the Albert Dock, the East and West India docks, damage to several power plants and a direct hit on the pump station at Woolwich, the London borough famed as an arsenal center.

Thus, Germans said, the vital services of London are being torn down, and it was predicted that confusion in the British capital would grow at a faster tempo this week if flying conditions remain fairly favorable.

Dienst aus Deutschland, authoritative German commentary, said that since September 7 and not counting Sunday, 283 British and 82 German planes had been lost, while German planes and submarines had destroyed 150,000 tons of British shipping.

There were denials in Berlin that the British bombing of Channel ports had increased in an effort to disturb any land invasion preparations which might be underway.

Sinking of a British cruiser off northwest Ireland was reported by

Heroism at St. Paul's

'Suicide Squad' Saves Cathedral, Unearths Giant Nazi Bomb

Workers Labor 4 Days and Nights, Dig Down 27½ Feet to Uncover 8-Foot Missile; Explosive Detonated Harmlessly in Swamp

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 15.—A British "suicide squad" dug for four breathless days and nights, then triumphantly trundled a 1,100-pound German time-bomb from the precincts of St. Paul's Cathedral late today and cheered lustily as it was detonated harmlessly in the Hackney Marshes.

Four smaller bombs remained buried in the vicinity of the Cathedral, but the greatest—which might have utterly destroyed the famed edifice—was gone, after the harrowing struggle.

Directed by 45-year-old Lieut. R. Davies, of the Royal Canadian Engineers, the workers began tunneling, only to discover that a 6-inch gas main had been broken by the bomb.

Three men were felled by gas, and then the fuel burst into flames, while the deadly bomb grew warm beneath them.

Extinguishing the fire, the sleepless workers dug on down 27½ feet to where the bomb had sunk itself. On Saturday, they hitched ropes to it.

Twice, near the top of the hole, the polished projectile slipped and plunged back into the hole while every man expected instant death.

Praying the bomb might be a dud, the men kept at it today, and in midafternoon two tandem-hitched trucks finally dragged out the bomb.

It was no dud. Its 8-foot length was fitted with a profusion of fuses which made it dangerous even to touch.

Gently it was loaded onto a fast truck, and Lieut. Davies himself drove it away, with red flags waving to warn of danger abroad.

It blasted out a 100-foot crater in the marsh where it was set off.

The ministry of home security said, "Only the courage and tenacity of the officer and his noncoms and men prevented St. Paul's being leveled to the ground."

Germans Give Up Mass Assaults For 'Time-Table' Raids on London

By the Associated Press

London (Monday), Sept. 16.—London's antiaircraft cannon blasted at a procession of German warplanes for nine hours and 28 minutes last night and early today and the government gunners and fighter pilots had destroyed 185 planes, the largest number reported for any day since the war began.

The all-night alarm was the second longest of the war, exceeded only by the nine-hour and 40-minute raid of one week ago.

The Germans started out Sunday with "feeler" attacks, then came over in two great waves during the afternoon.

When night came, the Germans shifted from costly mass methods to individual "time-table" visits at 10-minute intervals. Then they stepped up these flights until the intermittent bark of British guns became a steady roll that shook the skies.

Shell Bursts Heard

The staff man writing these lines in the London office of the Associated Press counted 37 explosions in one minute, some heavy enough to rattle the windows.

Most of the detonations sounded like guns firing, but there also were shell bursts and several that might have been bomb explosions.

Reports from over the metropolitan area showed most of the damage in the night's raid was caused in the outer districts of London.

Bombs fell over a wide area, not only in London, but in the Midlands, and southeast and northeast England.

A correspondent on a Southwest town said the German raiders there were more numerous than usual, dropping explosive bombs and clusters of incendiaries.

One of London's oldest hospitals was struck, and the medical officer was injured.

In the day raids, one of the destroyed Germans was brought down just outside the gates of Buckingham Palace after loosing a new load of bombs on the royal residence, for the third time in eight days.

Queen's Quarters Hit

King George and Queen Elizabeth were away, and no casualties were reported among the household staff.

While the fires were being extinguished, a British fighter pounced on the German plane, shooting it to pieces.

The Nazi pilot fell dead on the roof of a nearby building, his parachute unopened. The Briton too bailed out, and received a hero's acclaim as he parachuted to a yard in the neighborhood.

Two heavy delayed action or dud bombs and a number of smaller incendiary missiles were showered on the palace and surrounding grounds by a lone German raider. One of the big bombs hurtled through the Queen's quarters.

It crashed through to the first floor tapestry room, which is used by the Queen as a drawing room.

From Hammersmith in the west of London, to the Kentish coast at Beachy Head, British fighters engaged in dogfights with the raiders.

Thirty British planes were acknowledged lost, but ten pilots were reported saved.

An official British tabulation put at 1,983 the number of German planes shot down by the R. A. F. and antiaircraft fire over the British Isles through Saturday.

British planes lost in the same area numbered 528 and of the British pilots shot down 247 escaped alive, according to this compilation.

Sheriff's Posse Seizes Rifle and Literature; Dies Agent Joins Probe

By the Associated Press

Kenvil, N. J., Sept. 15.—A sheriff's force raided the German-American Bund camp at Andover and a Dies Committee investigator searched employes' lockers at the Hercules Powder Co. plant here today as sequels to an explosion which took at least 47 lives.

Sheriff Denton J. Quick, of Sussex County, deputized 18 small-town police chiefs and swept down on Camp Nordland, where he said they seized subversive literature and a rifle equipped with telescopic sights.

He then came here to check the Hercules pay roll against a list of persons believed to frequent the Bund camp. Andover is about 10 miles from the plant, scene of a terrific powder explosion Thursday.

Lockers Searched

Robert B. Barker, special investigator for the House Committee on Un-American activities, said he had searched such lockers as survived fire and explosion for evidence that any workers belonged to subversive groups. He declined to discuss his findings, but said they would be presented at a conference with Representative Thomas (Republican), N. J., committee member, and other investigators in Washington tomorrow.

Barker said the plant pay roll would be checked against all available lists of members in subversive groups.

He said he also asked the company to furnish him with the names of aliens now or formerly on the pay roll.

Quick said he and his deputies arrived at Camp Nordland at 9 a. m. (E. S. T.), to be told by persons there, "We expected you earlier."

Blum Seized, Faces Trial For 'War Guilt'

Ex-Premier Locked Up In Feudal Castle Near Other Ex-Leaders

By the Associated Press

Vichy, France, Sept. 15.—Former Socialist Premier Leon Blum was locked up today at Chateau Chazeron, feudal castle near Riom, where four other topflight leaders of pre-armistice France are held in the war guilt investigation.

Like the others—former Premiers Edouard Daladier and Paul Reynaud, Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, former generalissimo of the Allied armies, and former Interior Minister Georges Mandel—Blum faces the possibility of trial before the Riom war blame court.

Blum, whose government is blamed by the present Petain regime for a large share of responsibility, came to power in 1936, and pushed through a number of social reforms, including the 40-hour work week.

These measures, the Vichy government contends, resulted in a precipitate fall in French production, particularly armaments. Under Blum a policy of cooperation with Soviet Russia also was pushed and this now is decried as one of France's greatest errors, and one

Slaying Ends Long Friendship

Wealthy Spinster Beaten To Death by Woman Ward

N. Y. Mansion Scene Of Furious Struggle; Social Leader Held

By the Associated Press

Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y., Sept. 15.—The 25-year friendship of two middle-aged spinsters ended in a slaying today when Miss Lottie Washington Booth, 50, a lawyer, was found bludgeoned to death in the quiet, somber mansion she had shared for ten years with Miss Mary E. B. Jones, 44, social registerite.

Police booked Miss Jones on a charge of homicide, committed her to the psychopathic ward of nearby Grasslands Hospital and from her rambling mumbling tried to piece together the story of their relationship and Miss Booth's gruesome death.

John J. Dunnigan, chief of police said that as nearly as he could gather from an eyewitness police story, Miss Jones' incoherent account, the shattered and bloodstained furnishings and other evidence, death came as a climax to a struggle between the two women—a fight marked by a mad flight and chase throughout the many rooms and alcoves of both floors of the house.

"Apparently," said Dunnigan, "Miss Jones chased Miss Booth through the entire house. Furniture had been thrown about and broken.

Fishing Boats Upset

Hurricane Tosses Disabled Ship, Heads for New England

A hurricane roaring toward the New England coast yesterday disabled a freighter, and took at least one life when two cabin cruisers were overturned in heavy seas.

Mackay Radio reported intercepting a message, according to Associated Press, which stated that the Swedish freighter Laponia was drifting in a hurricane 350 miles east of Cape Hatteras, her steering gear disabled and tanks leaking badly. Ships in the area were asked to stand by.

The Laponia, 5,609 tons gross, sailed from Rio de Janeiro for New York August 26.

Eleven persons were rescued by the Coast Guard when two small fishing boats were swamped off Barnegat, N. J., in a heavy swell attributed to the storm heading toward that area. One of the fishermen was drowned.

In Washington, the Weather Bureau issued a warning last night that the hurricane, off Cape Hatteras, was moving "slightly east of north" at 18 miles an hour, and that its center would pass east of Nantucket tomorrow afternoon. Caution was urged along the New England and eastern Long Island coasts, where the hurricane's fringe will bring high tides and gales. It was along this shoreline that the hurricane of 1938 took a toll of 600 lives.

Caution also was advised vessels in path of the storm. Two scheduled take-offs of European-bound clipper planes from LaGuardia field, New York, were postponed on account of the warning. A third flying boat, the Bermuda Clipper, due in New York yesterday, was delayed until today.

The storm was due to have little effect here. The forecast for today and tomorrow is fair and slightly cooler.

175 Raiders Shot Down, Britain Says

Germans Abandon Mass Assaults for 'Time Table' Raids

(Germany's highest claim for one day since the heavy raids began was 182 on August 18.)

The German Sunday daylight raids on England were in two big waves of 350 to 400 planes. Some of the big Nazi bombers were brought down in the heart of London—one on Victoria Station.

Then, as night came, the Germans shifted to the lone raider technique. They seemed rattled by the intense antiaircraft fire over London to the extent that they dropped their bombs as soon as they arrived over the city and without the usual preliminary "runs" over a target.

The daylight raids came after the quietest night for London since the Nazi luftwaffe intensified its war of aerial attrition on the night of Saturday, September 7.

Raid in Church Hour

The night raid had lasted from 1:16 a. m. until 3:27 a. m., and it was not until 11:50 a. m. that the Nazis returned. This was the hour when London's churches were concluding late morning services and thousands of people were homeward bound.

The German planes, scores of bombers, protected by yellow-nosed Messerschmitts, swarmed up from the southeast coast against a gray sky patched here and there with blue.

Antiaircraft guns thundered. A bomber went down, smoke streaming from its tail. Two other Nazi planes fell in the suburbs. One of the fliers parachuted to safety.

Dance in Streets

Hundreds of people, instead of scurrying into air raid shelters, watched the dog fights and the effect of the antiaircraft fire. Two planes came down over the central part of the city, and three airmen parachuted to earth. Spectators danced in the streets as a Spitfire did a "victory roll."

After an hour and 4 minutes the all-clear signal sounded, but at 2:12 p. m. (8:12 a. m. E. S. T.) the raiders were back in greater force. High above the layers of gray clouds they could be heard in furious combat with British planes. The air was filled with the thunder of motors, the thin, sharp sound of machine guns and the noise of exploding shells and bombs.

The Exchange Telegraph's account of the first daylight raid said the bombing "appeared to be more frenzied than discriminate."

The bombs appeared to be falling on one of the most exclusively residential parts of the suburbs, the news agency said.

Bombs Fall 4 or 5 at a Time

"It is conceivable that there are a few small factories in the district, and, of course, secondary railway lines, but for the most part this area is the legitimate dormitory of the metropolis," said the agency.

"Bombs began to fall not singly, but four or five at a time as the first brusts of machine-gun fire was heard high above the clouds."

During Saturday night, raids were made on the industrial midlands and other widely separated districts of England and Wales.

The government said 18 German planes were shot down over England Saturday and acknowledged the loss of nine British fighting planes. Six British pilots were reported safe.

Trawler Shoots Down Plane

The Admiraly said a German plane was shot down by two minesweeping trawlers, the Libra and the Conquistador.

The Press Association reported that a high explosive bomb hit and penetrated the roof of a movie theater where there was an audience of 300, including many children.

Four children and two adults were killed and 20 injured.

"How the bomb injured so few is a mystery—or perhaps a miracle," an eyewitness said.

Many had left the auditorium and gone to a shelter in the basement. A 70-year-old air raid warden on duty there learned that his wife and son had been killed. He stuck to his post.

on the advancing army as possible.

A British communique said:

"The enemy has already exposed himself to severe handling by our aircraft and armored fighting vehicles.

"One enemy column descending to the coastal plain at Halfaya, due south of Sollum, suffered heavily from our artillery fire."

[The Fascist high command reported sharp fighting along the Egyptian frontier. Italian bombers cleared the way for the advance, flying low over British mechanized forces and troop concentrations in screaming attacks. Two British Blenheim bombers were reported downed.

[The Italians acknowledged the British were striking back with air raids all the way from Asmara, capital of Eritrea, to Addi Ugri, on the northern frontier of Ethiopia, and on Bomba, Libyan port on the Mediterranean, but that damage was negligible.

[New Italian raids were reported on British of Malta with bomb hits on the arsenal and seaplane base. In the eastern Mediterranean British naval units were bombed and in the Indian Ocean a 10,000-ton British cruiser was reported hit and badly damaged.]

Rome Gives Send-Off

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, Sept. 15.—The campaign against Egypt received its official send-off in Rome today. The British first announced it, then took it back, and are finally now minimizing it as an occupation of no-man's land.

Both sides are coy about breaking the news of the campaign, probably because nothing decisive has yet occurred and it still remains possible that the Italian forces will make a temporary halt. Neither side wants to engage its prestige until the die has really been cast.

The British version of the abandonment of Sollum, and its supposed uselessness, is of course, scoffed at here, but it is true that Sollum is not an important objective.

Strategically, the first big objective is probably the Pass of Hal Fai on the escarpment which runs back from the coast. That escarpment is the key to the preliminary defense of Egypt and the Italians are already on it and in the vicinity of Hal Fai, so there should be some stiff fighting any day now.

Britons Bring Nazi Flier Down a Peg

London (Monday), Sept. 16 (AP). A wounded German aviator who was shot down in a London suburb was captured last night by a detachment of soldiers who fended off a crowd that surrounded him and tore his parachute to pieces for souvenirs.

West India Docks Battered

London's great West India Docks on the Thames were battered from the air again Sunday, informed sources said, and the German air force intends to keep them blazing and bomb-churned in its campaign to paralyze British industry and shipping.

German pilots reported bomb hits on armament and industrial centers in Liverpool, gasworks and factories in Warrington and Brighton, and on a row of railroad centers between the Channel coast and London.

In London, they said, fires lit by bombs Saturday night still were burning late last night.

Besides the sinking of an 8,000-ton merchantmen out of a convoy north of Ireland, reported in the high command's summary of Saturday's operations, German sources said another 8,000-ton merchant ship was hit "so heavily with bombs it went up in flames."

Big fires were said to have been observed also in Woolwich—(where there is a large British arsenal)—and at the great bend of the dock-lined Thames between Greenwich and the center of London.

Reviewing the previous 24 hours of warfare, the German high command announced that at a cost of five planes the Luftwaffe raided "military objectives in Middle and South England with emphasis on London" where dock and harbor facilities "suffered blows."

"The Liverpool harbor and a Warrington rolling mill as well as several airports, traffic systems and harbors in Southern England were effectively bombed."

The high command told of night raids by the British on Belgium and France and along the western German frontier in which, it said, the R. A. F. struck "a single military objective—a military camp." Seven persons were reported killed and 16 wounded.

R.A.F. Blasts Anew At Take-Off Bases

'Much Damage Was Done,' British Report In Widespread Attacks on Gun Emplacements, Supply Depots, Airdromes and Docks

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 15.—Nazi shipping, barge concentrations and military equipment and stores assembled on the French coast, were heavily bombed last night by the Royal Air Force, the Air Ministry announced tonight.

The British struck also at distribution centers and lines of German communication.

Antwerp, Ostend, Flushing, Dunkerque, Calais and Boulogne were all heavily bombed, the Air Ministry said. Attacks were also made on gun emplacements at Cap Gris Nez, France, and on supply depots at Osnabruck, Mannheim, Aachen, Hamm, Krefeld and Brussels, and on enemy airdromes.

"Much damage was done, particularly to the docks at Antwerp," the Air Ministry said, adding that, "one of our aircraft is missing."

In the fierce thrust at Germany and at the German "front line of invasion" in the Channel ports of France, Holland and Belgium, R. A. F. bombers "systematically" sought out "the German high command's invasion machine," said the Air Ministry News Service, and wrought havoc on it despite heavy storms in which lightning struck planes and ice coated the wings.

One R. A. F. pilot attacking Antwerp, Belgium, set afire a 5,000-ton merchant ship and said he saw more than 300 barges in the harbor—possibly the dagger point of intended invasion. Ostend, too, was found to have been greatly strengthened in the past week, and was hit hard.

Docks, warehouses and oil sheds all along the continental coast were struck heavily.

Sunday morning newspapers, recalling Prime Minister Churchill's warning of last week, that Hitler may attempt his invasion any day, declared that tomorrow night there will be a full harvest moon and the high tides of the autumnal equinox around the British coasts. The full moon, however, is regarded as just as advantageous to defenders as to the attackers.

"If Hitler, as many observers have forecast, planned his attempted invasion for today he was made to think again by one of the most scarifying R. A. F. raids of the war on the Channel ports of France and Belgium," said the press association.

[German authorities in Norway have closed the southern and western coasts, presumably to conceal possible offensive preparations against Britain, the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported today under an Oslo dateline.]

London newspapers, speculating on whether Hitler was ready to risk all now, declared the Luftwaffe in its first phase of the battle for Britain failed to destroy R. A. F. airdromes and in the second phase which began September 7 failed to demoralize London.

The Sunday Express, owned by Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, declared London was ready for "the ordeal" this week.

Prepared, Says Beaverbrook

"Hitler is now prepared, so our leader, Mr. Churchill, tells us, to submit the issue of this war to the fearful test of atempted invasion of these islands," the paper said.

"Along the coasts of Europe are massed legions of fanatical Nazis to operate the engines of destruction.

"Against these hosts we in Britain possess a navy which dominates the seas, an air force increasing in strength from day to day, and the largest army ever assembled here in our history.

"Moreover, at last there is reason to believe that our men are equipped with material equal to that of their enemy."

Gen. Charles De Gaulle said a military invasion of Nazi-occupied Europe is practicable for an offensive force possessing naval and air superiority sufficient to seize and hold a deep bridgehead and guarantee continuity of supply.

Large scale use of parachute troops would be "imperative," he says.

This statement, by the head of "The French National Committee," appears in a book entitled "The Coming Invasion of Germany," by James Marlow, published today.

Hindsight and Foresight

New Policies for Old?

BY HOLGAR J. JOHNSON
President Institute of Life Insurance

This inquiry has just come to me:

"Several years ago, before I married, I took out an endowment policy. Now, with a family to think of, I feel that I should have more protection. I have been advised to drop my old policy and then take out a new one—straight life. Someone else tells me, however, that I can change my present policy over and then take out another for the additional protection I need. Is this possible?"

JOHNSON

It is. Your policy is a contract between your company and yourself and can be changed to one with a lower premium, provided that you are still insurable.

The last thing you want to do is to let your old policy lapse, until you are sure you can pass the company requirements for a new one.

Moreover, it is often to your advantage to keep your old policy rather than drop it and take out a new one, for the old one may contain certain privileges which are not now available.

Therefore, if your situation changes—as it may—I suggest that you get in touch with your agent—or with the company direct if you have lost track of him—before you consider dropping the policy you have.

The whole question of changing policies has been greatly confused lately by a lot of unsound advice—free and otherwise. Because of this fact, the Insurance Department of the United States Chamber of Commerce has recently issued an interesting pamphlet. It is Insurance Bulletin #51, entitled, "Should You Change Your Old Life Insurance For New?"

I understand you can get a copy at your local Chamber of Commerce. Or if more convenient, drop me a post-card request and I'll see that you get one.

Ickes and Bridges Clash on Defense

Forum Audience Applauds, Hisses As Sharp Words Fly

Sharp words over politics in national defense—words that frequently drew applause and hisses from the studio audience of several hundred—were exchanged between Secretary Ickes and Senator Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire, in a Nationwide radio debate last night.

Bridges termed the Roosevelt Administration "a candy stick government that finds that Nation unprepared in our armament, our finances, our economics and our national unity."

The Secretary of the Interior declared the Administration had spent more than $1,000,000,000 in emergency funds before this year for planes, ships and numerous other defense projects, which he listed.

Sharp Words Exchanged

While the discussion topic was "The New Deal and National Defense," the debate was spiced with references by Ickes to "Candidate Willkie, the refugee from Wall Street," and "his 'me too, but' campaign," and by Bridges to "our candy stick President, Mr. Only," and "Mr. Indispensable."

In the early years of Hitler's rise, Bridges asserted, "Roosevelt aped Blum of France, copied Baldwin, collaborated with Chamberlain, the two sleepy British appeasers," leaving this country less prepared against invasion than was France.

He charged Gen. George Marshall, chief of staff, Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Knox did not have a free hand in defense administration.

He asserted "the Administration has given encouragement to subversive elements in the population comprising . . . the Fifth Column."

And he referred to Mr. Roosevelt's trips to inspect defense projects as "phony Presidential antics." All he did at the projects was pose for pictures, Bridges said, and "the plant schedules of the factories he has inspected have been set back from three to five days each in preparation for his inspection."

Lists Accomplishments

Listing defense accomplishments of the Administration up to 1940, Secretary Ickes said the President had allotted PWA emergency funds for "fleets of planes," more than 50 military airports, a $10,000,000 Army mechanization project, a $9,000,000 ordnance production program, "$74,000,000 miles of strategic highways," 50 warships (including two aircraft carriers, four cruisers, four heavy destroyers, 16 1,500-ton destroyers and four submarines) and for a number of other defense purposes.

"This PWA fleet," he said, "was the largest single peacetime addition ever made to the United States Navy. From Harding to Hoover, Republican Administrations sent American men-of-war scuttling to Davey Jones' locker. Today, thanks to the New Deal, we have the biggest and finest peacetime fleet in our history . . . Senator, you have not merely missed the boat; you have missed the whole fleet."

Remarks grew even more biting in extemporaneous debate which followed presentation of Ickes' and Bridges' prepared statements.

"All I gathered from your speech," Ickes told Bridges, "was that you approved your candidate's description of the present Administration as 'candy stick.' As for me, I'd rather have that than an all-day sucker."

Minton Backs Ickes

Supporting Ickes, Senator Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, declared "Bridges and Willkie seem to think that what this country needs is a debate." He asserted also that opposition to defense appropriation bills had come almost entirely from Republicans.

Representative Vreeland (Republican) of New Jersey, supporting Bridges, precipitated the most heated discussion of the night when he agreed to Ickes' statement that F. B. I. Director Hoover would get to the bottom of last week's powder plant explosion—provided "he isn't kept quiet by other sources."

Ickes retorted that it was "rank disloyalty" to imply the Administration would abet the suppression of such an investigation.

The program—Theodore Granik's "American Forum of the Air"—originated in the National Press Club auditorium.

Dempsey Runs Neck-and-Neck With Chavez in Senate Race

By the Associated Press

Albuquerque, N. M., Sept. 15.—The Democratic primary battle for United States senatorial nomination developed tonight into a see-saw battle between Senator Dennis Chavez and Representative J. J. Dempsey as late incoming returns from yesterday's balloting favored first one then the other.

On reports from Spanish-speaking counties, Chavez earlier today overcame an 8,000 Dempsey margin. Dempsey forged to the front again on the strength of complete returns from the east side of the State early tonight.

There were more than 150 precincts, most of them in admitted Chavez counties, still to be heard from.

The tabulation of 753 of the 914 voting divisions showed: Chavez, 40,811; Dempsey, 42,554.

Differ on Hatch Act

Chavez has been a staunch Senate foe of the Hatch "clean politics" bill, while Dempsey was the measure's champion in the House.

In the Democratic gubernatorial race, incumbent John E. Miles continued to hold an apparently conclusive margin over Mayor Clyde Tingley, of Albuquerque, Governor from 1934 to 1938.

From 731 divisions, the count showed: Miles, 52,818; Tingley, 28,755.

Former Attorney General Frank Patton, until recently an attorney for the Federal Wage-Hour Division, lengthened his lead over eight opponents in the crowded Democratic race for the House seat which Dempsey is vacating.

Townsendite Behind

With 360 divisions in, Patton's count was 9,936, against 7,303 for Clinton P. Anderson, Albuquerque insurance man, and 6,354 for former District Judge Fred E. Wilson, of Albuquerque. Other candidates trailed.

In the Republican balloting Albert K. Mitchell, rancher and strong Willkie supporter, pulled away rapidly from his opponent, former Governor R. C. Dillon, Townsendite, in the senatorial balloting. From 217 divisions, the count was: Mitchell 4,818, Dillon 1,433.

Maurice Miera, seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination, piled up 4,388 votes to 1,786 for Seth Alston, on returns from 209 divisions.

Crile Leads Rogers

Herman Crile, of Roswell, after a seesaw battle with Waldo Rogers, of Albuquerque, moved out in front in the Congressional race on reports of 200 divisions. The count: Crile 2,545, Rogers 2,137, H. V. Johnson 625.

Late in the afternoon, Dempsey publicly voiced concern over late reporting of the returns from northern Spanish-American counties.

The Representative commented: "They are holding back. It all depends now on how far they are going to go."

At Chavez headquarters, the late Sunday vote was promptly interpreted by workers to signify a Chavez victory "by 7,000 or 8,000."

Willkie Better, Speaks Today At Coffeyville

hold down the number of visitors to the penthouse today.

However, seven Kansas physicians, headed by Dr. Merritt Ketcham, managed to get in a brief audience. They wanted to sound out Willkie on a question that has caused much controvery in Washington, socialized medicine.

"Do you favor socialized medicine?" Dr. Ketcham asked.

Willkie wrote out his answer:

"There is no one to whom socialized medicine is more repugnant that I. I believe in the medical skill as derived from the competitive system."

Raymond Leslie Buell, head of Willkie's research division and chief adviser to the nominee on foreign affairs, was stricken today with an intestinal disorder and was removed to a hospital.

Seven speeches are listed for tomorrow, the main one at Coffeyville, Kans. Willkie will speak there at 4 p. m., C. S. T. (5 p. m., Washington time), and his words will be broadcast on three radio networks.

Coffeyville, the scene of Walter Johnson's start as a baseball immortal, was reported tonight to be preparing a whopping welcome for the Hoosier candidate.

Although he probably has hung up a modern record for oratorical volume, since he left Rushville, Willkie insists that his speech at Coffeyville will be the real opening gun of his campaign for the Presidency.

Considering the hour, a large and enthusiastic crowd turned out to see Willkie's arrival in Kansas City.

He made the trip from the station to the Muehlbach in characteristic fashion, sitting on the turned-down top of a touring car and responding to the cheers with outstretched arms.

Coffeyville, Kans., Sept. 15.—Coffeyville, which remembers Wendell Willkie as "Professor Willkie," touched up final details today for his visit to deliver the first major speech of his campaign Tuesday.

The Republican Presidential nominee's appearance may mark the opening of his campaign, but for Coffeyville folk it is principally a homecoming.

Hotels were already jammed. Bunting, banners and Willkie pictures decorated downtown streets and buildings.

The nominee will arrive on his special train at 3:30 p. m. He will speak at the baseball park, renamed "Willkie Park" in his honor.

Dallas Knapp, arrangements chairman, said he expected a crowd of between 50,000 and 75,000. A parade through the downtown district and a program at the park will precede the nominee's arrival.

Former students and hundreds of residents who knew him 26 years ago when he taught history and coached basketball in the local high school were hopeful of at least a handshake.

If time permits he will be taken for brief visits to the old brick schoolhouse and to the home where he boarded with Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Florea.

The occasion also will mark a homecoming for Walter Johnson, former big league baseball pitcher. The "Big Train," now running for Congress in Maryland, will introduce Willkie.

Remarks Backfire

Among the batch of newspapers that was sent to Willkie's suite was the Kansas City Journal, which carried a Gallup poll showing that President Roosevelt had gained on him in Missouri. The poll gave Roosevelt 53 per cent, Willkie 47 per cent.

Willkie's aides were disturbed today by the backfire from two of the nominee's statements—his "To hell with Chicago" remark on Friday and his charge yesterday that President Roosevelt had urged the Munich settlement and had therefore helped "Sell CzechoSlovakia down the river."

What Willkie meant to say in the first instance, of course, when he discovered he was in Cicero and not in Chicago, was "To hell with Ed Kelly and Pat Nash," the two Chicago bosses.

With respect to the Munich statement, Willkie toned it down to the extent of retracting the remark that President Roosevelt telephoned Hitler, Mussolini and Chamberlain. But he stuck to his guns on the general charge that Mr. Roosevelt urged the settlement at Munich and therefore was an accessory to selling Czecho-Slovakia down the river.

3 Cheer Producers

For all the furore over Willkie's Munich statement, it must be reported that crowds that heard it were much more impressed by other things he had to say.

No. 1 cheer producer undoubtedly was Willkie's repeated assaults on President Roosevelt for claiming, along with Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin, to be an "indispensable man."

No. 2 was his reminder that he had been a soldier in the "A. E. F." and would never send American boys to die "In the shambles of European trenches."

No. 3 was his promise to strengthen America by increasing production and increasing honest jobs.

He got a rise out of the crowds, too, when he referred to President Roosevelt's activities in connection with the Chicago third-term draft, and also when he attacked the President for trying to "pack" the Supreme Court and trying to purge the Senate of those who whipped him on that issue.

Willkie got one of his best laughs yesterday at Galesburg when he recalled how President Roosevelt wanted to retire Supreme Court Justices at the age of 70, and then turned around and named 73-year-old Henry L. Stimson as his Secretary of War.

Willkie and Martin in 'Disagreement,' Democratic Chairman Declares

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Sept. 15.—Wendell Willkie and the Republican national chairman, Representative Joseph W. Martin, are in "strange disagreement," Edward J. Flynn, head of the Democratic National Committee, asserted here today.

FLYNN

Speaking at a rally of several thousand Cuyahoga County Democrats, he declared there also was conflict between the Republican Presidential nominee and a great majority of Republican Representatives and Senators.

"Mr. Willkie has indorsed the President's preparedness measures and those formulated to keep us out of war," Flynn said in a prepared address, "but Mr. Martin voted against the Neutrality Act of 1939.

"Mr. Willkie says the farmer should not be deprived of the present farm benefits. Mr. Martin voted "no" on the appropriation of parity payments in March, 1939 . . .

"If by any chance Mr. Willkie were elected, we would witness the sad spectacle of the President's recommendations being rejected by the Congressional leaders of his own party. Certainly Mr. Willkie should at least see to it that a fair majority of the members of his own party support some of the measures that he advocates."

Pepper Sees Roosevelt Victory, Hitler Defeat

Danville, Ill., Sept. 15 (INS).—Senator Claude Pepper (Democrat), Florida, in opening the southern Illinois Democratic Presidential campaign, today predicted in an address victory for President Roosevelt in the approaching election and defeat for Adolf Hitler in the feared invasion of Britain.

Of the prospects of Mr. Roosevelt, Pepper said:

"I predict that almost two centuries of an American way of government will result in the overwhelming reelection of Roosevelt—for he is one of the two great voices in this world today representing the things for which we are fighting."

Of the war abroad, he said:

"I predict that Churchill will hold Hitler until winter claws at the vitals of Hitler's force-driven slave machine. I believe no slave economy in the long run ever wins over a free people."

Senator Guffey Assails Willkie

Gilbertsville, Md., Sept. 15 (INS). Wendell Willkie has neither the brains nor ability to be a "good farmer," Senator Joseph Guffey (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, declared today in a speech before a Democratic picnic and ox roast in this agricultural community.

Guffey attacked a suggestion attributed to the G. O. P. standard-bearer that, when possible, farm taxes be based upon crop value to avoid unduly heavy tax burdens in lean farm years.

"The tax rate is established by local authorities," Guffey said. "The Federal Government has nothing whatever to do with it."

Under such circumstances, he said, no farm community could make up an honest budget or make proper provision for carrying charges on its debts.

A. L. P. Backs Roosevelt

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 15 (U.P.).—The State committee of the American Labor Party, by an almost 2-to-1 majority, voted early today to support President Roosevelt for reelection.

Indorsement of the President came after more than eight hours of bickering among right and left-wingers in the party.

Police were forced to intervene several times to quell riotous demonstrations, fist fights and heckling, and on one occasion found it necessary to eject delegates until harmony could be restored.

Hull Stresses Americas' Unity

Copyright by New York Times

Continued maintenance of cordial relations and close cooperation between the American republics is essential to all of them, Secretary of State Hull said last night in felicitating the five Central American states on the anniversary of their independence. They are Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua.

Hull's statement follows:

"It gives men great pleasure to send a message at this time to the republics of Central America on the occasion of the anniversary of their independence. I can recall no time in their history when the countries of the Western Hemisphere were justified in celebrating with grater gratitude the privileges bestowed by liberty on the citizens of free nations.

"Events during recent months have emphasized anew how essential to our joint interest and defense is the maintenance of the very close and cordial relations existing among all the American republics, and the continuing development of those relations in effective day-to-day collaboration in matters of common concern. The meeting of foreign ministers in Havana last July constituted a notable milestone in the progress of practical cooperation, to which none contributed more loyally than the distinguished representatives of the five republics whose independence is celebrated today.

"The peoples and governments of Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua need no assurance on this their anniversary as independent nations of the sincerity of the good wishes of the United States and of all the Americas for their continued welfare, progress and happiness."

Reception of Draftees to Be On a Mass-Production Basis

Fort Dix, N. J., Sept. 15.—When the Nation's young men are called for training under the draft bill they will find that the principles of the "speed-up" and mass production have been combined to whisk them into the Army.

The draft reception centers being set up in the Nation's nine Army corps areas are a far cry from 1917. Planning a streamlined fighting force, the Army has already modernized its recruit reception system.

The Second Corps Area—covering New York, New Jersey and Delaware—for example, will have two reception centers—Fort Dix and Fort Niagara.

Fort Dix a Model

The Fort Dix center may be the model for the country—thanks to two years' study by a quiet, bespectacled young engineer of Trenton, N. J., Reserve Capt. L. P. Thompson, who made the problem of recruit handling his hobby.

Heart of the Fort Dix system—expected to handle about 2,400 men in 10 hours—is the "recruit processing building," a vast cement structure converted from a hay barn—relic of days before gasoline fueled the Army's motive power.

The newcomers will first enter a receiving room where they will fill out application forms, and, moving with production-line speed, will receive a brief psychological examination calculated to reveal aptness for learning, and degree of manual and mental dexterity.

Trained interviewers next will question the recruit regarding his experience, and the type of work he likes. Capt. Thompson explained that classification officers would consider 123 distinct qualifications in assigning a man to one of 300 different Army jobs.

Passing through a battery of shower baths, the recruit enters a three-lane medical examining battery, pausing every few steps before a medical officer who checks one item in a rigorous physical examination.

The medical men weed out the "rejects," who are routed outside to board train or bus for home—perhaps within an hour of their arrival at Fort Dix.

They'll Get Combs, Razors

Recruits who pass the medical examination are as good as in the Army, and pass on to the supply section.

First, they will receive a barracks bag, with comb, toothbrush, razor, shaving soap, tooth paste, towels and handkerchiefs. Clothing comes next.

Apparently the days of droopy breeches and too-big or pinching shoes are gone, for each item of the recruit's equipment will be carefully checked for size.

Khaki-clad now, the recruit will go to a new receiving camp on the grounds. This will consist of one and two-story barracks with hot-air heat, running water and inside toilets. It will accommodate 8,000 men and feed them in a 1,000-man capacity cafeteria.

Transfers Planned Early

Few recruits will stay in the receiving barracks more than four days before transfer to other training camps.

Capt. Thompson explained that 23 per cent of accepted recruits would not be available for immediate duty, by reason of illiteracy, inability to speak English, curable dental and physical ailments, or psychological quirks. This group will be placed in a special training batallion for 90 days to adapt them for service.

Conscientious objectors will be examined by psychiatrists to determine whether they are authentic objectors, are trying to evade service by subterfuge or are suffering from a curable neurosis.

Takoma Park Meeting

A meeting of the Health and Welfare Center of Takoma Park, Md., will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the headquarters on Columbia avenue.

Pay Respects to Speaker's Family

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

CAPITAL MOURNS—Early morning callers who paid their respects yesterday to the family of Speaker William B. Bankhead included the Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull

Speaker," he said, "every American loses a tried and proven friend of our system of government.

"His experience, his fairness and his personality had endeared him to his colleagues and to all who knew him. I personally feel his loss deeply because for many long years his family and mine have been friends and he and I held each other in affectionate regard."

The President's journey to Jasper will mark the third time he has attended the funeral of a Speaker since the start of his Administration. He went to Illinois for services for Henry T. Rainey in 1934 and to Tennessee for Joseph W. Byrns' rites two years later.

Family at Bedside

A steady stream of callers yesterday poured into the Mayflower Hotel, where the Bankheads were staying, and messages of condolence arrived by the hundred to console the Speaker's widow, his brother, Senator John Bankhead, and the Speaker's daughters by a former marriage, Tallulah, the actress, and Mrs. Eugenia Hoyt, of New York.

Mrs. Bankhead, Mrs. Hoyt and Senator Bankhead were at the bedside in Naval Hospital when the Speaker succumbed to an abdominal hemorrhage suffered Tuesday in Baltimore as he prepared to deliver a political address launching the Maryland campaign.

Tallulah, in private life Mrs. John Emery, arrived at 2:30 a. m. yesterday, less than an hour after her father's death. She had carried out the traditions of the stage by completing her role Saturday night in a play at Princeton, N. J., before rushing to the Speaker's side.

Col. H. M. Bankhead, the Speaker's other brother, was expected to arrive by train today from Ottawa, where he is commercial attache at the American Legation.

As high Government officials and leaders of all political faiths last night joined in tribute to the courtly, soft-spoken Alabaman, who had completed more than 23 years of service under the Capitol dome, close friends and physicians insisted that his devotion to Congressional and party duty contributed to his death.

It was recalled that he served as keynoter of the Democratic National Convention in July against the advice of physicians and friends. Similarly, associates urged him not to undertake the Baltimore address Tuesday night, but he insisted on accepting the invitation.

Secretaries Pay Tribute

Secretary of State Hull and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau both paid tribute to the Speaker in formal statements.

Hull described Bankhead as "one of the most respected, beloved and outstanding leaders and statesmen of this generation." He said Bankhead had a "long and truly historic record of useful and capable public service," and added that "the people of every State will truly mourn his loss."

From his Fishkill, N. Y., home, where he is spending the week-end, Morgenthau said that "the loss of Speaker Bankhead, at a time when his talent for leadership has been of such great value to the Nation, is a sad blow for all of us."

Representative Rayburn, who was conceded on all sides last night as scheduled to succeed to the Speakership, termed Bankhead "one of the ablest and most outstanding statesmen of this generation."

"For 25 years," he said, "he and I were close associates and warm friends. My loss, therefore, is deep and personal."

Typifying reaction of Republicans was the comment of House Minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., who said that "every member of the House in the last two days has fervently been praying he would recover and resume his splendid public service."

"It was my privilege to know intimately Will Bankhead for nearly 16 years," Martin said. "He was a strong partisan, but he could appreciate fully the viewpoint of the opposition. As Speaker, he lived up to the highest traditions and gave the minority their full privileges under the parliamentary rules."

Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, declared the Speaker's death meant "a distinct loss to the Nation."

"I served in the House with Representative Bankhead and, as all of his other colleagues, I entertained great respect for his ability and his graciousness," Glass said.

House Will Adjourn

After the state funeral at the Capitol today, the House will adjourn until Thursday. Then the Democrats must decide whether to choose a new majority leader to replace Rayburn immediately, or leave the office open until a new Congress convenes in January.

The latter course was followed when Byrns died, but four members were mentioned yesterday as possibilities for the job.

D. C. Model Yacht Skippers Triumph Over Baltimoreans

While intrepid skippers dared the choppy Anacostia in another event of the President's Cup Regatta sailing races yesterday, members of the Washington Model Yacht Club were making a clean sweep of competition with Baltimore model enthusiasts on the Reflecting Pool.

The two-day races up and down the glassy surfaces at Lincoln Memorial ended with W. C. Schalaefer out in front with 86 points. Schalaefer recently won the National "A" Invitation Model Yacht Regatta at Port Washington, Long Island.

Maj. A. W. Greely, with 81 points, was runner-up, and J. J. Patrick, both of the Washington Club, was third with 773. Other scores included Perkins, 85; Harwood, 47; Moore, 45; Hagerty, 44; Martin, 35; Coles, 28; Mouat, 26, and Downing, 20.

60,000 Guardsmen Begin Army Duty

The Housing Authority said that standard drawings and specifications had cut in half the time which otherwise would have been required to prepare architectural plans for defense housing projects, for which Congress recently authorized expenditure of $150,000,000.

Senate consideration of the excess profits tax measure, designed to raise hundreds of millions yearly to help pay defense costs, was delayed for a day because of the death of Speaker William B. Bankhead early yesterday. However, the Senate plans to resume discussion of the bill tomorrow. House consideration of legislation still standing in the way of Congressional adjournment, will be delayed by a three-day recess taken out of respect to the Speaker.

To Hear Testimony

Nevertheless, House members, charged with providing as speedily as possible the funds needed for starting the draft machinery, arranged for Acting Chairman Woodrum, of Virginia, to begin hearing testimony of War Department officials today on the President's Saturday request for $1,940,886,976 in added defense money and authorizations. The sum would include that needed to finance local draft boards and the feeding, clothing, paying and training of those summoned to service.

Passage of the tax bill by tomorrow night, with "three or four days" allowed for composing of differences between the House and Senate versions, was forecast last night.

Senate concurrence in the conference report, approving $1,000,000,000 fresh capital for the RFC and $500,000,000 for the Export-Import Bank, is expected without debate tomorrow. The report received House approval last week-end.

Adjournment by September 28 still was being discussed, but a real threat to that program was seen in the need for action regarding sugar marketing quotas, which expire by limitation December 31. The House has voted to continue the quota for another year, but Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, chairman of the Finance Committee, has called for hearings.

The final deficiency appropriation, dealing with other than defense expenditures, is expected to require little time.

The conscription bill, which started its 86-day journey through Congress last June 20, not only affects the Nation's manpower, but requires industry to cooperate in the vast rearmament drive. It gives the President power to commandeer on a "just rental" basis plants of owners refusing to accept national defense contracts.

One of the first things Mr Roosevelt is expected to do in connection with conscription after he signs the bill is name a director of selective service, and set up a civilian selective service board.

Three men said to be under consideration for the important task of directing the selective setrvice are Maj. Gen. Allen W. Gullion, judge advocate general of the Army; Lieut. Col. Lewis B. Hershey, head of the joint Army-Navy committee, which made a study of a conscription program; and former Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson.

THE TELEPHONE IS STILL BEING INVENTED

EVEN before there was a telephone, there was a laboratory—that of Alexander Graham Bell in Boston, where the telephone was born. That was 64 years ago, but the telephone is still being invented.

Telephone service is what it is today because engineers have never stopped working to learn more about speech and hearing. In the Bell Telephone Laboratories hundreds of scientists engage in constant research. The results? You can talk more easily and be heard more clearly today over the telephone because of these men of science.

From these Laboratories, among a thousand and one other things, have come new types of telephones, cables no thicker than your wrist carrying 4200 wires, even the wire networks over which nation-wide radio broadcasts* come to you.

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company — YOUR company — shares with the other twenty-three regional companies of the Bell System in the benefits of the Laboratories' research. And every telephone user benefits in the better service it makes possible.

Possible Budget Cuts Also Slated For Discussion at Federal Workers Conclave Opening in D. C. Tomorrow

The five-day week and the question of possible budget cuts that would lower Federal employe working standards will be discussed at the United Federal Workers of America first annual convention, opening here tomorrow.

It also appeared likely yesterday that Jacob Baker, U. F. W. A. president since the organization's founding, would be reelected by the delegates. No opposition to his continuation has arisen.

First action of the convention will be a meeting at 10:30 a. m. today of the National Policy Board in the national headquarters, 532 Seventeenth street northwest. Approximately 250 delegates, from 25 States and the District, are expected today.

Committee and group meetings will be held in the Ambassador Hotel and the full convention sessions in Almas Temple, 1315 K street, northwest.

Sidney Katz and Oscar Witmer, of the Maryland and District Industrial Union Council, and Jacob Baker will address the opening session at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow. Senator Mead and Representative Ramspeck will speak at 3 p. m. Committee meetings are scheduled for 7:30 and 8 p. m. Then the District U. F. W. A. Council will sponsor an entertainment program in the North Interior Building Auditorium.

Speakers at Wednesday's meeting will include Representative Fries, President Harry B. Mitchell, of the Civil Service Commission, and Eleanor Nelson, U. F. W. A. secretary-treasurer. A dance will be held at Almas Temple at 9 p. m. Wednesday. The Thursday morning session will be addressed by T. F. Silvey, Ohio State C. I. O. secretary, and Allan Haywood, C. I. O. organization director. Committee reports and elections will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday, the final meeting.

Spinster Slain, Companion Held

As nearly as we can learn, Miss Jones finally caught up with Miss Booth and felled her with an old Windsor chair. The chair broke and parts of it were used over Miss Booth's head. We found the body in a pool of blood, the head in the kitchen and the rest of the body in the dinette."

Neighbors said the fight began shortly after 5 a. m. (E.S.T.). There was an argument in the garage under the fieldstone and stucco house where Miss Jones kept her four large, expensive cars and a station wagon.

The argument was followed by raised voices in the house, the sound of crashing furniture and, finally, shrieks. Then the neighbors called police.

Town Patrolman Frank McCaffery, first to arrive, said he found all doors locked.

"Through the windows, I could see Miss Jones raising the chair over the prostrate Miss Booth and bringing it down on her head," he said. "I yelled for her to stop and broke the glass in the dining room door to try to reach the lock. Then I broke down the kitchen door and rushed in.

"As Miss Jones was about to strike again with remnants of the chair, I grabbed her hand and forced her to sit down."

Dr. Frank Harnden, of Pittsfield, Mass., said Miss Booth, his sister-in-law, was the legal guardian of Miss Jones for 25 years. They had traveled abroad together and lived together, first in New York and, for the last ten years, in the $30,000 Westchester County home.

During their residence here, neighbors said, the spinsters entertained few people; during the last year, none at all.

Harnden said that some years ago Miss Jones' relatives had her committed to a Long Island sanitarium, but she remained less than a year.

BundCamp Raided For Blast Clews

The sheriff expressed the view that literature had been removed before his supposedly secret raid.

He said he was told, "I suppose you're investigating this camp because of that Kenvil explosion."

At his Allendale home, Representative Thomas said the explosion had "speeded up the demand" for a hearing to study subversive acts in New Jersey.

With the death toll at 47, the Hercules Powder Co. called in a chemist today to see if he could determine why the explosion of a smokeless powder unit had been so terrific.

A. M. Ball, of Wilmington, Del., the company chemist, answered in the affirmative a question whether the explosion Thursday had "violated the rules for behavior of powder."

He said he was "greatly surprised," but declined other amplification. Nine agencies are already at work seeking the explanation.

16 Hurt as Train Stops Suddenly

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—Sixteen persons were injured, one seriously, today when New York Central train No. 4 from Chicago stopped suddenly a few blocks out of Grand Central Terminal when a signal light turned red.

Virtually all had been standing in the aisle preparatory to alighting and were thrown to the floor by the jarring stop. Many passengers were delegates returning from last night's meeting of the State committee of the American Labor Party at Utica.

Blum Locked Up, Faces 'War-Guilt'

of the heaviest responsibilities of pre-war French statesmen.

[Although the Vichy government now apparently blames Blum for cooperation with Russia, actually a French-Russian military alliance was negotiated in 1935 by Pierre Laval, then French foreign minister and now vice premier and a prime mover in the Vichy regime.

[Laval also proposed a large loan at that time to Russia, and furthered a French-Russian trade agreement.

[The military pact came into effect in March, 1936, when Albert Sarraut was premier, three months before Blum took office.]

Moreover, Blum has been bitterly attacked for his attitude toward the Spanish Civil War when France sided with the Spanish Republicans although never openly intervening. As a Jew, he often bore the brunt of remarks bearing on his race, both in the press and Chamber of Deputies in pre-war days and even when his government was in power.

Now the racial question has been brought to the fore more sharply than ever.

The Blum government, which was strongly anti-Fascist, pushed not only an accord with Russia but a policy of close collaboration with Britain. The alignment with the former British ally now also is assailed as a grievous mistake.

Blum's Peoples Front government was a combination including Daladier's Radical-Socialists. Daladier, who figured in the Blum administration, later came to power as premier and headed the government which declared war on Germany.

An official statement tonight said merely that Blum had been placed in "administrative internment" as have the others held at Chateau Chazeron. This is the official term for the custody in which they are being held until the time when formal charges may be lodged against them. When the charges are made, they can be placed under official arrest.

De Gaulle Plotting Cited

Vichy, Sept. 15 (AP).—A charge that followers of the Gen. Charles de Gaulle are attempting to stir up trouble in "various parts of the French state" was authorized today for publication in the French Monday morning press.

The term "French state" was taken to imply France proper.

The activity of De Gaulle sympathizers in French colonies has been admitted but until now no charge has been made of any actual plotting or intrigue in France.

Glenn Frank Killed in Crash

the headlights were smashed and it was impossible to determine if headlight trouble caused the accident.

Frank had been evangelist chautauqua lecturer, writer, editor, and "boy president" of the University of Wisconsin (at 38) before he became actively connected with Republican politics.

The son of a village school teacher, he was born in the northern Missouri hamlet of Queen City. At an early age he showed an aptitude for public speaking and would mount a stage and make a speech —for a coin.

He was 16 when he joined the ministry, which led him into the role of evangelist and chautauqua speaker.

His early education was received at the State Normal School at Kirksville, Mo., and later he was graduated from Northwestern University.

He topped his career as educator when he became president of the University of Wisconsin at Madison in 1925. Although still under 40, he had been assistant to the president of Northwestern University from 1912 to 1916; associated with the late Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant; editor of Century Magazine; member of post-war peace committees and author. He later became a syndicate columnist as well.

The regents of the University of Wisconsin ousted him in January, 1937, after what many Wisconsin politicians asserted was a political intrigue to remove him. He then took over editorship of a farm publication with headquarters in Chicago.

Until his appointment to the Republican Party post in Chicago in December, 1937, Frank had never taken a prominent place in Republican politics. He had once quipped: "I'm a Republican by ancestry and inertia."

His administration at Wisconsin was replete with experiments, upheavals and political investigations, several of which were aimed at liberal professors on Frank's faculty who were accused of fostering radicalism.

His books included "The Politics of Industry," "American Looks at His World," and "America's Hour of Decision."

He and Mary Smith, of St. Louis were married on June 2, 1917. Glenn was their only son.

The Republican Program Committee which Frank directed, last February 17 presented a 28,000-word report to the Republican National Committee in Washington, outlining major principles and suggestions on practically every phase of domestic and foreign policy.

The report was prepared after Frank and the committee had spent two years "taking soundings" among the Republican rank and file.

Willkie Shocked

Kansas City, Sept. 15 (AP).—Wendell Willkie said tonight he was "greatly shocked to learn of the death of Glenn Frank."

"The recent report of the Glenn Frank committee was as constructive a political document as has appeared in years. I am personally distressed at his death," the Republican Presidential nominee added.

'Muted' Barrage Rains on London; Could Be 'Duds'

London (Monday), Sept. 16 (AP).—Nazi raiders gave London a muted bomb barrage early today.

Puzzled Londoners saw missiles hurtle earthward without exploding or impact. This went on for at least a half hour.

It may mean a step-up in the sowing of time bombs, such as those which have fallen around Buckingham Palace and St. Paul's Cathedral.

They may prove to be duds, Londoners hope so.

Cardenas Urges Political Peace

Mexico City, Sept. 15 (AP).—President Cardenas declared today that "some people are trying to cause a rebellion in Mexico and entice the Mexican people away from the ways of peace." He urged abandonment of political quarrels in the interest of national unity.

In words apparently aimed at Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan, independent claimant to the presidency, and his partisans, Cardenas asserted that "the people of Mexico who enter poltical struggle sincerely will not agree with htose who went abroad to seek foreign help."

Wallace Relaxes Before Continuing Trip

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 15 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace, Democratic candidate for Vice President, was back home here today for a brief rest before resuming his speaking campaign.

Wallace played tennis, attended a picnic and retired early tonight. He plans to leave at 10 a. m. tomorrow for Indianapolis, Ind.

Army Man, Student Flier Killed in Plane Crash

Long Beach, Calif., Sept. 15 (AP).—Thousands of persons saw a privately owned all-metal monoplane crash into the Rainbow Pier Lagoon today, carrying at least one man to his death.

The pilot was identified by police as Sergt. L. C. Slinen, Army Air Corps, stationed at March Field, where officials reported he was on leave for the week-end. He was not an Air Corps flier, but had been taking private flying lessons.

Special Police Officer Jess Hayward said the ship dropped in an almost vertical 2,000-foot dive. Hayward said some spectators thought they saw a man hurled from the plane as it fell.

Naval Lieutenant Kills Fiance, Ends Own Life

New York, Sept. 15 (INS).—Angered because his sweetheart refused to marry him at once, a young naval lieutenant, according to police, today shot her as she slept and then sent a bullet through his own brain.

The tragedy occurred only a day after the woman, Florence Tucker, 21, was graduated from the Brooklyn State Hospital School of Nursing, and accepted an engagement ring from James Bacon, 22, attached to the United States naval hospital at Portsmouth, Va.

Bacon was in New York on leave to attend Miss Tucker's graduation. Police theorized that the youthful officer shot the nurse because she insisted on taking a job in preference to immediate marriage.

The Drive On Egypt

It took only a fortnight for the Italians to overrun the British Somaliland and raise their flag over Berbera, the capital of that colony. The drive on Egypt which they have now undertaken should prove, however, a far more formidable undertaking.

British Somaliland was allowed to go by default. The British garrison there was small and obviously no match for the large and well-equipped forces which the Italians sent in. Rather than risk an unequal struggle for what was, after all, minor stakes the British chose to abandon the colony.

In Egypt, however, the Italians have to contend with the cream of the British Middle Eastern command and, what is of equal importance, with British sea power. There is the further hazard that long stretches of unbroken desert intervene between the Italian bases in Libya and the Suez Canal—the ultimate objective of the Italian drive. Yet unless the British can be driven out of Egypt and the eastern Mediterranean, Italy's position will remain parlous and could, in not too long a period, become desperate.

At the present time the British control both exits to the Mediterranean. Because of this the British blockade operates with especial force against the Italian kingdom. Italy entered the war with raw material and food supplies for only a short war.

In the circumstances, it is not surprising that the Italian forces are now pushing into Egypt; the surprising thing is that this was not done earlier for, in the meantime, the British have had time to reinforce their Mediterranean fleet and their Middle Eastern army and air force.

It may be that Mussolini waited until the Nazi attack on England was on full blast. It may be, on the other hand, that the threatened invasion of the British Isles will never come off and that the attack on Britain's Mediterranean lifeline will be the main effort made by the Axis powers during the next weeks. In any event, the war in Egypt is no unimportant sideshow.

If Mussolini is successful and the British are forced to clear out of the eastern Mediterranean Britain's difficulties will enormously increase. On the other hand, an Italian failure in Egypt would accentuate Italian war-weariness and make Italy more than ever a prisoner of British sea power. The struggle in Egypt is thus one for extremely high stakes.

No Yardstick Yet

How political must a speech be in order to be classified officially as a political speech? Week before last this riddle was worrying the radio executives, who try to give equal free time to the two Presidential candidates. At that time The Post pointed out the need for a yardstick. The need is even more acute now that the issue has become tangled up with the problem of enforcing the Hatch Act.

At the moment this dilemma is in the lap of the Senate Elections Committee The Hatch Act fixes a limit of $3,000,000 on campaign expenditures by any Presidential candidate. But what are campaign expenditures? Practically every action of the President, unless he calls himself names, may be a political advertisement for his administration and indirectly for himself.

The problem laid before the Elections Committee is also a dilemma for the President. When Mr. Roosevelt joked about it in his address to the teamsters, he showed he had given the matter some thought. If he does not wish to waste part of his $3,000,000 on some routine journey during which he may make a chance remark that this dam or that bridge is a good piece of work, he must face the possibility that his opponents will charge him eventually with having exceeded the limit on his campaign expenditures.

The Hatch Act is having its first major trial and much can be learned in this campaign to make it a smoothly operating law. There should be no hesitation in facing the difficulties to which its limitation on campaign expenditures has given rise. For if the act should be interpreted to exclude from this limitation the cost of supposedly nonpolitical speeches and traveling expenses of the President, it would give that official a decided advantage over his opponent.

Cartoonists may picture Mr. Roosevelt as two persons—the Chief Executive and the candidate for office. For legislators the problem is not so simple. They must recognize that what the President says and does as Chief Executive may be far more effective campaigning than mere indulgence in partisanship. It would be an extremely unfair limitation which excluded all semiofficial expenses of the incumbent and included all expenses of his challenger.

Rubber And Tin

The United States is singularly fortunate in that it produces within its own borders a large number of the raw materials needed for peacetime industrial use and for rearmament. But even this country, despite its bountiful resources, is far from being self-sufficient.

Steps are properly being taken, therefore, to provide this country with alternative sources of such vital raw materials as tin and rubber. These efforts must be regarded as an important aspect of our defense program.

Until now the United States has been importing about 95 per cent of its tin and 98 per cent of its crude rubber from the Orient. Should present sources be cut off because of political or military developments in southeastern Asia, many important American industries would soon find themselves in difficult straits. The rearmament program also would suffer a setback.

It is encouraging to note, in this connection, that, through the efforts of the Defense Commission, an early decision is likely to be reached on the proposal to establish a tin smelter in the United States. At present the tin ore produced in the Netherlands East Indies and British Malaya is refined in Great Britain or British centers in the Far East. Argentina's small plant is the only tin-smelting establishment in this hemisphere. There are, however, substantial tin deposits in Bolivia.

With proper smelting facilities in this country, Bolivia might supply us with perhaps 60 per cent of the tin ore we need. We would thus still be partly dependent on East Indian sources. Nevertheless, the probability of securing tin under emergency conditions would be greatly enhanced.

The problem of rubber is at one and the same time easier and more difficult to cope with than is that of tin. As the production of synthetic rubber increases, our dependence on overseas imports will decline. Yet the price of the synthetic product must be notably reduced and our capacity to produce it must be greatly extended before we can look with any degree of complacency upon the possibility of losing our crude rubber supply.

Some years ago Mr. Henry Ford financed a large-scale rubber-growing project in Brazil, the native home of the rubber plant. Now the Government has made available a sum of $500,000 to investigate the possibility of mass production of rubber in various places in the Americas. One group of American experts is already in Costa Rica and will visit other Central American nations. Another group is in Peru and before returning home expect to visit Ecuador, Colombia and Brazil.

The nations of Latin America, for their part, have given every indication of being willing and eager to cooperate with the United States in this regard. The exchange of our manufactured goods for vital raw materials from Latin America would strengthen economic ties between the two continents in addition to furthering hemispheric defense.

In the long run the present efforts may thus have very constructive results. The difficulty is that even were it possible to begin large-scale cultivation of rubber in Central and South America at once it would be seven years before the trees would come into production.

Information Please!

Our photographic editor, Mr. Miller, calls our attention to a war problem which has hitherto gone unnoticed. It is not exactly a problem of pressing importance; nevertheless, it is fraught with serious and interesting complications.

Mr. Miller is concerned about what will happen when and if Britain wins the war and the young refugees now in this country are returned to their homes. This, of course, may not transpire for some years; meanwhile children of such impressionable age cannot fail to be strongly influenced by the mores, speech and psychology of their foster families.

Mr. Miller is particularly worried about the difficulties that might confront, for example, an English schoolmistress when she reassembles her old class after its repatriation. He envisages some such scene as this:

TEACHER: Now then, I dare say that when you were in the States you were far too busy scalping Indians and hunting buffalo to keep on with history lessons. But let us see how much you remember of what you learned before you left home. First boy, suppose you tell the class who it was that went to the relief of Lucknow.

FIRST BOY (late of Brooklyn): Cheez, I dunno. I gezzawas Vito Tamulus.

TEACHER: Dear me. I was afraid of this. Second boy, see if you can tell me about Hengist and Horsa.

SECOND BOY (late of Baltimore County, Md.): Yes'm. Well this Hinkus, see, he gits hisself a job on this here ranch, see, and this here lady that onza ranch, sheza one's been havin' all this trouble with russelers, see. An' the foreman he's the head crook, on'y she don't know it, see. And this Sheriff, he jessa big crook too. But the Sheriff makes out like he's ascairt of——

TEACHER: Stop! Stop! I cawnt understand a word of it. But I'm sure, somehow, that you haven't any of it right. Third boy, what do you know of Wat Tyler?

THIRD BOY (late of Iowa): Haw! I hain't never heerd that one yet. But I heerd the one about what Mary——

TEACHER: What nonsense is this? What Mary do you mean?

THIRD BOY (hilariously): Haw! Why, Mary Chris'mas. Haw! Haw!

At this point the teacher, who has endured with superb cheerfulness and courage all the horrors of the Nazi bombardments, begins to scream hysterically. Finally she plunges headfirst through one of the schoolroom windows.

Speaker Bankhead

By the death of William Brockman Bankhead the Democratic Party has lost one of its ablest and most devoted leaders and the Nation an outstanding public servant.

Speaker Bankhead came from a family which has been continuously represented in Congress for well over half a century. His father, the distinguished John Hollis Bankhead, was Senator from Alabama for many years before his death in 1920. His brother, John, has held that high office since 1931. Yet, oddly enough, Speaker Bankhead's first love was not politics but the stage. During his youth it was only his mother's objections that kept him from following a career that was later to be pursued with great success by his daughter, Tallulah.

William B. Bankhead had the unusual distinction of having consecutively held the three highest positions in the House—chairman of the Rules Committee, majority leader and Speaker. His popularity with his fellow Democrats was indicated by the great drive made at the Democratic National Convention at Chicago last July to bring about his nomination for the Vice Presidency, a drive that failed only because the Administration had placed its full support behind Henry A. Wallace.

But if Speaker Bankhead felt any disappointment over what had happened at Chicago he did not show it. He continued to work earnestly and determinedly for the Democratic cause even though warned by his physician to husband his strength. He died a victim of his profound sense of loyalty and devotion to the party which, in honoring him, had honored itself.

One For Pegler

George Scalise, former president of the Building Service Employes International Union, is awaiting sentence. He was convicted by a New York jury of having stolen money from the organization he once headed. The membership of this union consists mostly of scrubwomen, chambermaids, elevator operators, porters and window cleaners.

No true friend of labor could fail to applaud the exposure of such practices as those for which Scalise was indicted, tried and convicted. The racketeers who make labor unions their particular prey are among the most detestable of parasites. Their victims are the poor and the weak.

Fortunately, the world of organized labor is generally free of racketeering. Yet in so far as it exists, the unions cannot afford to shirk the responsibility of eliminating the evil. In the case of Scalise they obviously failed to do so.

It was the press which took the initiative—or, to be more accurate, it was Westbrook Pegler, the columnist, whose vigorous and astringent pen called public attention to a disgraceful state of affairs. The results speak for themselves. It is gratifying to see the power of the printed word so constructively demonstrated.

The greatest mistake Great Britain made was in not posting a sentry to guard the grave when she and Germany buried the hatchet at the end of the World War.

Most of us are tolerant. We're entirely willing to concede that our opponents have a perfect right to their wrong opinions.

Whatever became of all those old persons who were clamoring for pensions? Did they grow out of their second childhood and cease to believe in Santa Claus?

The Anti-Cat Nazis

From the Manchester Guardian. Reprinted in the Living Age.

Despite the decrease in the number of cats in this country, writes "D," they are still far more numerous here than in prewar Germany. Our stock must still run into millions, wereas, according to an approximate census of animals made some years ago, there were then only 450,000 in the whole of Germany. In some parts of that country they were so comparatively rare that a Frankfort journal published an appeal for "the rehabilitation of the cat," deprecating the prejudices against cats alleged to be prevalent in the fatherland and pointing out, among other arguments on their behalf, "cats, especially kittens, make excellent playmates for the young." That plea, of course, might have little effect under the present regime, which probably would favor tiger cubs as playmates for the Nazi young.

Reply To Phillips

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of September 11, "The Once Over," by H. I. Phillips, states that "There is no more chance of war millionaires in the next war than there is of Hitler developing into a radio comic . . . The public loves baloney and there is no baloney like the idea that industry is an unpatriotic, selfish, get-rich-quick organization that's got to be watched every second."

Recently, a Navy Department representative testified at a meeting of a Senate Appropriations Subcommitte that industrial plants, especially subcontractors, refused to cooperate with the Government because they were not making enough money from defense contracts: "The refusal of recalcitrant owners of various plants and facilities to cooperate with the Government was by them expressly based upon their contention that they should receive bigger profits and because they were getting much larger returns through filling the orders of private industry and of foreign countries, especially Great Britain."

The above statement does not seem to me to indicate much patriotism on the part of industrialists.

New Columnist?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: For several years we have all missed the daily comments of the late beloved Will Rogers in the daily papers of the Nation.

No columnist has been found who could match his skill in well-turned phrases and skillful thrusts. Now the electors of a great sovereign State have retired such a man. A man whose charming repartee has often been buried in the musty pages of the Congressional Record. A man whose services the newspapers of the Nation should lose no time in commandeering.

Republican Leadership

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A well-known columnist recently took exception to Mr. Walter Lippmann's article as to the lack of leadership exercised by Wendell Willkie in the Republican Party. His ground was that Mr. Willkie has as yet no patronage or other Presidential perquisites with which to exercise the authority of leadership.

That statement seems plausible. But more careful analysis shows the opposite. Mr. Willkie has now the same authority that most outstanding leaders have had at the start of their careers. He has the power to say, "You will win with me or not at all," because that is the fact. And Republican politicians are like all other politicians. They want to win.

Mr. Willkie, when he wrested the Republican nomination from the Republican politicians, started a war. He stated that he wanted to "meet the champ," and he is meeting him. But that statement may be misleading. The "champ" is not an individual boxer. He is the commander-in-chief of one of the most formidable combinations in American political history, a combination of New Deal and city machines supplied with political munitions by vast WPA appropriations.

Mr. Willkie is supposed to be commander-in-chief of the forces opposing this combination. But a commanding general cannot win a war by going out and taking shots at an enemy with a .45, even if he is a crack shot. Mr. Willkie's keen marksmanship with the spoken word is a delight to watch. But this is a war, not a shooting match. It is a war between two opposite conceptions of government, industrial productivity against New Deal statism. And marksmanship alone will win no campaign against the most adroit political general of the century.

That general's army may have been half mutinous. It has lost some distinguished members by defections to Mr. Willkie. But any idea that it is no longer a formidable army is flying in the face of facts. Mr. Willkie's one chance of victory is to organize a better army.

Where then is the Republican heavy artillery? When will its organized attack on the third-termers start? Only two months are left. We who read the papers and want a Willkie victory are still waiting for the actual battle to warm up. Mr. Willkie's acceptance speech was good. We know his published itinerary for the campaign, and know that Tom Dewey is going to help him. But it will take artillery barrages and heavy ones to drive the New Dealers out of their political trenches. That is not a job for individual champions, however gallant.

Thinking Americans today want unified leadership. They believe it more necessary than anything else because of the forces that threaten us. Details of production and organization can be worked out once we get a strong leader.

The New Deal claims to offer such leadership. However, many Americans are doubtful of their claim. That is why, at Philadelphia, so many people demanded Willkie.

But a leader must lead. And if Mr. Willkie is tough enough of fibre to lead America through eventualities which may occur in 1941 or 1942, he is tough enough in fibre to handle Republican politicians now. His opponent did not hesitate to ram a third term nomination down the throats of old-line Democrats. If he could win a nomination that way, it would be reasonable to suggest that Mr. Willkie could win an election that way.

Independent voters would turn toward a leader strong enough to force unity on his own party. If Republicans in Congress would speak and vote in accordance with the principles laid down in the nominee's acceptance speech, such unity would be achieved. A unified Republican party could drive through the weaknesses of the New Deal like a blitzkrieg through a trench line. But the efforts of a discordant Republican Party are more likely to prove "too little and too late."

In recent Congressional debates on national issues, Republicans have been scattering all over the political landscape, regardless of the nominee's publicly proclaimed principles. Mr. Willkie has the same authority today that has started outstanding leaders on their way. He has power to say to Republican officeholders, in substance, "You'll win my way or not at all." He can say it because it is true, and because, if they stop to think, they know it is true. The votes that decide the election will be independent votes which, if cast for Mr. Willkie, will be cast for him and not for the Republican Party.

Independent voters would like the one best reason for casting their vote for Mr. Willkie. That reason would be assurance of future national leadership by demonstration of present political leadership. Mr. Lippmann was right in his analysis. Mr. Willkie has the authority. It may still not be too late to use it.

Einstein's God

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many persons who follow conventional church leadership unthinkingly, will be shocked at Prof. Einstein's announcement that he abandons belief in a personal God.

Prof. Einstein has injected nothing new into human thinking by his recent avowal of what is, practically, atheism. For a nonpersonal God is a nonintelligent and a nonintelligible God, whom we, in our muddled thinking, call "nature."

The ancient Hebrew prophets answered the Einsteins of their day by preaching, and exemplifying in life, the doctrine that ease and prosperity never developed moral character. The wine that was purified, had to be "emptied from vessel to vessel." The coming Messiah, for whom they looked, would follow in The path of the prophets, and be "a man acquainted with grief."

Christianity was built upon this doctrine of the Hebrew prophets, and history has exemplified the soundness of it. Apparent chaos has invariably preceded epochs of advancement in human liberty, intelligence and moral character. The world of mankind seems to require an occasional house cleaning. It is now having one. But while these epochal visitations have always brought out sentiments concerning God, such as Prof. Einstein has just given utterance to—"God is his own interpreter." Time has always shown that what was permitted was eventually in the interest of human betterment.

Ashurst's Defeat

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The editorial carried in a recent issue of The Post commenting upon the defeat of Senator Ashurst in the Arizona primaries attempts to convince its readers that the basic cause of his defeat was his opposition to the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill.

It is entirely possible that The Post's surmise is correct, and because of that possibility and the political phenomenon of Senator Ashurst's defeat was deserving of space in your editorial columns.

However, your writer placed himself in the position of the fellow who couldn't see the forest on account of the trees. He has built himself a scaffold upon which he has hung his reputation as a political analyst. A perusal of the results of other primaries throughout the Nation will upset the unfair balance The Post has contrived to create.

For instance, several days ago Senator Hiram Johnson was nominated for reelection on three different tickets in California by a wide margin. Also, Senator Shipstead was nominated on the Republican ticket in Minnesota by an equally wide margin. And it was the first time he ever had run on that party's ticket. In recent weeks Senator John Thomas, of Idaho, was nominated on the Republican ticket. In addition to these, the results reveal that Senator Vandenberg steam-rolled all opponents in his bid for reelection; the Governor of Idaho was elected on the Democratic ticket, and Senator Burton K. Wheeler did something that's never been done before—he carried every precinct in Montana in obtaining renomination.

All of these gentlemen opposed the Burke-Wadsworth bill.

The Post Impressionist

Little Gentleman

WHITEY, an almost indiscernible blot hunched well down in the deepening shadows that the walnut tree threw across the back porch steps, was steeling himself for an ordeal. He didn't like having guests for dinner. It was not only the scrubbing and primping involved that made such occasions so terrible. One must not only be clean and neat, but must be what adults were pleased to refer to as a "little gentleman." And being a "little gentleman" called for strenuous efforts along such lines as making a fool of oneself on request, not asking embarrassing questions, and passing food to guests without being told to do so.

Many long drills by his parents had given Whitey a reasonably firm grasp of the duties required of him when "company" was present. But Whitey, like most small boys, was somewhat of an individualist and could not be depended upon beyond a certain point. Nor could the whereabouts of that point be determined with any great accuracy. This fact was fully recognized by Whitey's parents and was the main reason for the carefully thought-out talks that they had with their offspring immediately before the arrival of any guests.

These talks were generally effective. Whitey, thanks to his father's eloquence in presenting his case, could usually be brought to understand the importance of behaving like a little gentleman.

But the evening in question was no ordinary evening, and the guest no ordinary guest. And Whitey was being called upon to be more than merely a "little gentleman." He was being called upon for tact, and tact was not Whitey's strong suit.

The guest of the evening was a gentleman of some importance. His feelings must not be harmed under any circumstances. And he was singularly well qualified for having his feelings hurt. He had a nose. It was no ordinary nose. It was not even an ordinary extra-large nose. It was so outstanding as to give an onlooker the impression that the gentleman was following something, and as if its mere size were not enough, it was well garnished at the end with a cluster of shiny knobs and showed a tendency to twitch with every breath its possessor drew.

A long conference between Whitey's parents had ended in the decision that the path of least danger lay in telling the youngster exactly what the unfortunate gentleman's problem was, and seeking to prepare him to keep a straight face even should he be confronted by a proboscis an elephant would brag about. For two days then Whitey had been undergoing a strenuous course in combined stoicism and tact. And the treatment was beginning to show results. Whitey was no longer the same boy. His face carried less expression than that of an Egyptian mummy. He had reached the point where it was difficult, if not impossible, to conceive of the serious line of his lips breaking in order to form a smile.

His parents had begun to question the wisdom of their actions. Their guest would think they had an undergrown Zombi in the family. But it was too late to start on a new tack, and they could only hope for the best.

Whitey's parents were nervous as the time for the guest's arrival approached. The final earnest plea to their son had been delivered—zero hour had arrived. Whitey's parents were nervous, but Whitey, under a face as impassive as that of a cigar store Indian, was more than just nervous. For Whitey, in addition to the average small boy's dislike of good behavior, possessed more than the average small boy's share of imagination, and the past few days had witnessed the appearance in that imagination of countless indescribably weird noses. He dreamed of them all day, and had nightmares about them when he slept. And the imminent appearance of The Nose made him tremble like a leaf.

The guest arrived in due time, and Whitey was called from his shadow to be presented. He went into the house slowly, calmly, and shook the guest's hand. Speaking carefully and distinctly, he informed the guest that he was well, and that he hoped the guest was the same. He then sat down in a corner to await dinner.

He did not have to wait long. As they went in to the table the guest complimented Whitey's parents upon the charm of their youthful offspring, and placed a kindly hand upon his shoulder. Whitey's parents smiled happily at each other.

Whitey continued to look directly out into space. He was dying of curiosity but did not trust himself to look up at the marvelous nose that was undoubtedly twitching somewhere above his head. The talks had been a great success and Whitey was desperately determined not to let his parents down.

The meal got under way without mishap and was going beautifully. Whitey said little and kept his eyes fixed on his mother's silver salt shaker, directly in front of his plate. For a while he forced himself to think only of the process of eating. Soon the long drills in being a "little gentleman" asserted themselves though, and he realized that it was his responsibility to offer whatever food was near him to the guest. Beads of perspiration stood out on his forehead as he looked around for something to pass, but there was nothing in his vicinity, and he relaxed with a faint wheezing sigh that passed unnoticed. But no sooner had he settled back to contemplation of the salt shaker than it struck him that the presence of the shaker itself constituted a duty. He took a few deep breaths and extended one hand toward it.

Whitey transferred his gaze to the guest's stomach. He cleared his throat, and held out the salt shaker. "Would you," he spoke in a clear, grave voice; "would you like some salt on your nose?"

France's Example

By Dorothy Thompson

After Earnest Contemplation

IN TWO MONTHS of reprieve from the task of constant comment on the shifting scene, I have forced myself ruthlessly to regard and earnestly to contemplate the example of France.

In the entire history of great nations and communities of men there has been no such disaster. The temptation is to avert one's eyes. The temptation is to close a door in one's mind. The temptation is to accept the superficial explanations and justifications that are rife.

But one dare not close one's mind. For what happened to France happened to a society too much like our own—in its social and political structure, it its values, in the push and pull of internal forces. What happened to France happened to a capitalistic society dominated by the middle class, with a great tradition of humane values and a high regard for individualism. It happened to a country, outwardly strong—strong militarily and strong socially. It happened to a country with a high standard of living and an advanced culture. What happened to France happened to that nation which was the very flower of middle-class civilization.

TO ATTRIBUTE the collapse of France to the relative weakness of French technology contrasted with German is superficial. The military, technical and strategical position of Poland was much worse than of France, but feudal and impoverished Poland, without the benefit of its own experience, which was at the disposal of France, made a better showing.

To attribute the collapse to the German and Russian Fifth Columns begs the question. Spain's "rabble" army, beset by an armed Fifth Column assisted by the positive or negative collaboration of the whole Western World, made a great showing. It took four years to defeat the Spanish Loyalists and four weeks to defeat France.

IT WAS NOT the French Army alone that collapsed. First-hand information has begun to come through. I have talked with an American friend who drove an ambulance at the front. I have talked with another friend—an anti-Hitler German—who escaped from a French concentration camp in a town occupied by the German army and walked from Brittany to Marseilles, through German lines and French lines, in and out, in an escape which is a miracle. I have talked with others. French soldiers were deserted by their officers. They fought with ancient rifles. They were left without ammunition. The disorganization was prodigious. Government officials, from prefect to prime minister, fled. There was chaos.

What collapsed in France was not an army. It was a social order. It was a world. That world was not defeated. It fell. That world proved to be a facade—a beautiful, intact facade upon a structure rotting from foundation to roof. It was not exploded by bombs. It collapsed at a push. It was a whited sepulcher.

Also, I recall my own sense of doom, accumulating as I moved from one place to another in Europe during April and May—a sense of doom that was like a tight, constricting band around my head and heart. It grew with every interview I had with an Allied diplomat. Writing from Europe, I described it as a sense of dream and nightmare—the nightmare of German power, visible and terrific—and the vacuous somnolence, the simpleton security of a world dreaming in the track of an approaching cyclone.

IN THE MAGINOT line, in the officers' mess, I ate jumbo asparagus and drank champagne, and the officers congratulated France on having butter as well as guns; they hoped the Nazis would attempt to crash the line—and a few miles farther on it was all open.

SINCE THEN, at home, we hear words from those who aspire to political leadership—and, again, the meaningless explanation: "The fault is due to the Popular Front, to Leon Blum." That means: This unique disaster that ends an epoch is due to a brief incidental interlude in the history of a people ambling toward destruction.

I am terrified as I listen to these explanations. M. Blum and his government emerge as one blurred face in a company of ghosts. I find no sharp, distinguishing features between Flandin and Daladier, Gamelin and Weygand, Paul Reynaud and Mendel, Bonnet and Blum, the Comite des Forges and the Confederation of the Trades Unions, Petain and Baudoin, and Laval. All of them were members of the same society, reading from Left to Right or from Right to Left. All displayed in their attitude and behavior and in the institutions through which they expressed themselves the same characteristics. All of them belonged to a social order cherishing nineteenth-century middle-class values—a social order born in blood and ecstasy, but the blood gone thin and the ecstasy long evaporated.

Now, in one last obscene quiver of departing vitality, some of them call the others to the stand, to answer on trial before history, choosing few scapegoats for the sacrifice. They might as well choose every tenth man, at random, from amongst all the representative men of France in the twentieth century.

YES, I AM terrified when I see ourselves falling in with this explanation. It is ominous. It is as though we were already picking for the sacrifice those who are to be held responsible for our own collapse in some not too-distant future. It is as though we were preparing the basin in which to wash our hands of our own guilt. From the heart of anguish someone must cry to the American people: "Stop it! Wake up from your dream!" The world that fell in France has fallen forever. The timber of which it was built was rotted through and through. We, too, must rebuild, and rebuild quickly. The rebuilding cannot be postponed. It is part of the defense. It is the beginning of defense!

Our business is not to prepare an explanation for our future collapse, but to prevent that collapse.

That involves, first of all, the heroism of enduring the truth.

For there is a handwriting on the wall of our civilization. It is written as high as the Eiffel Tower in Paris. The words say: "Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin. "God hath numbered thy kingdom and finished it.

"Thou art weighed in the balances, and art found wanting.

"Thy kingdom is divided and given to the Medes and Persians."

Unless the experience of democratic Europe bringing us to a contemplation of our own sins and induces in us an act of conversion, we can write those words on the Chrysler Building one of these days.

Let us start with accusing, not somebody else but ourselves.

FRANCE WAS divided—a schism ran through society like a gaping crack springing the walls apart. But France talked about unity, too. There was plenty of moralizing. But moralizing does not create morale; it merely indicates its absence. Morale in a society and unity in a society are results, not causes. They come of common aspiration and common action for the accomplishment of a common aim. You cannot create a common aim out of the ruthless scramble of each individual and group for his own privilege. The weakness of the nineteenth century was to believe that out of such struggle the fittest would survive and that the survival of the fittest meant, automatically, the greatest good for the greatest number. What survives is the strongest gangster.

The liberty of each to pursue his own interest is not synonymous with the liberty of a society.

Nor is value inevitably indicated by price. We have counted it so, in terms of money and the return of investment on money. The end of this is economic arterial sclerosis. Capital decays in a sulk for 2 per cent and labor starves rather than take a cut. The party system is debased to the point where each puts the other on trial for the sins of both of them and each tries to break the other's sabotage. The schism can bring down the building. In the wreckage we shall see that all the walls are built of the same rotten material. Oliver Goldsmith's dire prophecy of what happens to a land where wealth accumulates and men decay can be rephrased and come true on both counts: for men also accumulate, while wealth decays.

All of us want to be saved—provided it doesn't cost too much. Capital, fearing confiscation, wants to be certain that if and when the dreaded moment comes the principle will be nicely amortized and the fortune seized will be as large as possible.

Labor wants to be sure that if it dies in chains it will be a well-fed, well-clothed corpse.

The intellectuals spend their brains rationalizing the case for one or another of the suicides.

So we are like the Irishman, who, confronted by a holdup man demanding his money or his life, cried, "Take my life! I'm saving my money for my old age."

In France, capital struck against Blum and labor struck against Bonnet. France put men who had risked their lives against Hitler into concentration camps, and the real Fifth Column ruled: one day the right wing of it and another day the left.

So Hitler struck against France. Live and learn.

Fair Enough

The True Hoosier

NOT THAT I ever feel any actual need of corroboration in my convictions—some of which are unique, not to say absurd—there is comfort, nevertheless, in an essay by Clifford Ward, of the News-Sentinel, of Fort Wayne, Ind., on the subject of Hoosiery.

These dispatches recently ventured some observations on the identifying characteristics, sartorial and social, of the true Hoosier by way of refuting Harold Ickes' charge that Wendell Willkie was putting on an act in returning to Elwood to make his acceptance speech.

Incidentally, in the same burst of constructive statesmanship Mr. Ickes made a rather nasty reference to John W. Davis, the Morgan lawyer, as the last previous "Wall Street candidate" for the Presidency, and, Junior G-Man that I am, I addressed my attention to the files and discovered that Mr. Ickes' own hero, Mr. Roosevelt, in 1924 indorsed that Wall Street man as the answer to the nation's need—a declaration which would seem to put Mr. Ickes out on a limb today along with Ed Kelly, Frank Hague and the corruptioneers, election thieves, horse-parlor magnates and gangsters who comprise their following.

AFTER ALL, if John W. Davis had Franklin D. Roosevelt's wholehearted indorsement for the Presidency of the U. S. A., who is Mr. Ickes to low-rate him, or could it be thought that Mr. Big was speaking for just one segment of a divided personality even as early as that and meant to praise Mr. Davis only from the neck for regularity's sake and not from the depths of a great, honest, humanitarian heart?

But I have strayed away from Mr. Ward, of the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel, who writes of Hoosiery with an understanding much deeper than my own, and agrees with me, but more so, that you can identify a true Hoosier, including even the rich Auslander, by the way his tie is tied, and by his way with strangers.

"There isn't any question about it," Mr. Ward says. "Pegler is right. We've seen transplanted Hoosiers up and down the country, and they always reveal the fact that they are transplanted. If the knees aren't baggy the pants don't look right around the waist. If the pants aren't baggy and the waistline is right the tie isn't tied right. If these details are perfect the gentleman's hair is tousled. If the general appearance is such as to foster the idea that the gentleman intended to do something better than merely clothe his nakedness you can tell a Hoosier by his willingness not merely to talk but to let you talk. Out here in Indiana people are the most interesting animals in the whole creature kingdom. They like spreading out into small groups where they can know each other better. We'll guess that there are more small communities in Indiana than in any other State, and that the residents thereof can tell you more about persons living across town than one Siamese twin can tell you about the other.

"THIS INSATIABLE curiosity with respect to other people is one reason why Hoosiers are all politicians and many of them writers. A Hoosier can no more help being a fairly good newspaper reporter than a Roosevelt can keep from dropping his r's.

"When Wendell Willkie professes to be angry at professional politicians he makes every Hoosier laugh. He has been a Hoosier politician all his life. When someone claims he hasn't had any political experience it is like saying that a year-old puppy will drown because he hasn't had a swimming lesson.

"Some section of the country has to do something about preserving its identity, and Indiana is doing it. You can look all over New York and never find a New Yorker. You can walk up and down Florida and California without finding anyone except persons from Iowa, Illinois and Michigan. Go to Michigan and you will find only people from other States. The only State where you can find people who belong where they are and act as if they did is Indiana."

I am going to have to lay off Mr. Ickes for awhile. I need him in my work, but if I muss him up too much I will have to get a new stiff, and his kind aren't easy to find.

BRITAIN WANTS SOME OF THESE, says Ernest Lindley of the United States' famous four-motored bombers. He adds that "if the additional help would materially improve the ability of the British to resist, without vitally impairing our own defenses if we sized the situation up incorrectly and the British suddenly went down, giving it would be a good investment for us"

Britain's Crucial Test

By Ernest K. Lindley

U. S. Faces New Questions Of Aid

WITHIN THE NEXT few weeks the world as we have known it may be drastically altered, perhaps shattered beyond repair. As I write, the hour of supreme test for Great Britain seems to be at hand, and the British power to survive it is doubted by the best independent military opinion here. Gloom regarding the British outlook is nothing like so profound as it was during the days immediately following the colossal military disaster in Flanders and the surrender of France. But there has been a dip in the curve of optimism which rose in July and August, as the British strengthened their ramparts and the Nazi assault failed to materialize. The dip was due, of course, to the inability of the British to cope with the great aerial bombardment of London. The damage done by the Nazi bombers was out of proportion to the toll taken of them by British fighter planes and antiaircraft guns, and apparently far exceeded the capacity of British bombers to retaliate by raids on more distant objectives in Germany.

On Wednesday the British defenses seemed to be a little bit stronger, thanks to a more intense antiaircraft barrage, apparently controlled by new methods. The British fighter squadrons were still in the air, although the pilots probably were suffering from extreme fatigue after days and nights of continual warfare.

Even if Britain stands, it seems doomed to enough damage at home and perhaps also in the Mediterranean to raise some new questions for us—questions which may have to be decided before the end of the Presidential election.

IF THE BRITISH stand, unquestionably they will want more of our airplanes. They are now receiving substantial deliveries and are scheduled to receive somewhat larger deliveries during the next several months. They are beginning to receive some new types simultaneously with their delivery to the Army Air Corps. They are pleading for every additional plane we can spare, and especially some of our celebrated "flying fortresses," which are far superior to any long-range bombers now in use on the other side of the Atlantic. As these require a long time to build, and the British only recently became interested in them, their only chance of getting them in the near future is through the purchase of some of those we already have, or by persuading us to divert to them some of the new ones which are now nearing completion on order for our Air Corps.

Whether any more of our planes, in the hands of or on order for our armed forces, should be diverted to the British should remain chiefly a military question. If the additional help would materially improve the ability of the British to resist, without vitally impairing our own defenses if we sized the situation up incorrectly and the British suddenly went down, giving it would be a good investment for us.

ALMOST CERTAIN to arise—it has already been brought up informally—is the question of permitting Canadian and British pilots to be trained in the United States. The R. A. F.'s shortage of pilots is reported to be even more serious than its inferiority in numbers of planes. The British are counting heavily on the training fields of Canada and, to a lesser extent, of Australia, to replenish and augment their supply of trained aviators. However, the snow and cold of the Canadian winter interfere seriously with pilot training. The British winter is milder, but fog and rain are handicaps—not to mention the danger of being bombed out by the Nazis. Australia has a suitable climate, but it is too far away, especially from airplane plants. The pilot-training program of Canada probably could be speeded up measurably if it were moved during the winter months to Texas or Florida or some other Southern State which enjoys warmth and sunshine in winter.

Under our joint defense plans with Canada we have a direct and lively interest in the quantity and quality of Canadian aviators. Our own plane production looks as if it would outrun our pilot-training program. If Britain goes down the aviators now being trained in Canada will become an immediate asset to the defense of the northern half of the Western Hemisphere. If Britain pulls through the winter, they will help to keep the war on the other side of the Atlantic. It would therefore seem advantageous to us to facilitate the training of aviators for the Royal Canadian Air Force. And if a number of young Britishers should cross the Atlantic to enlist in the Canadian Air Force, the potential defenses of the Western Hemisphere would be strengthened by just so much.

A THIRD QUESTION which may arise is the use of our yards and docks to repair British naval ships. The British have been suffering damage to two or three ships for every one destroyed. How seriously their own yards have suffered from aerial bombardment has not been disclosed, but severe damage remains possible as long as the Nazis maintain superiority in the air, while a period of intense naval action probably will increase the need of the British for repair facilities.

Every British naval vessel brought to this side of the Atlantic would strengthen the defense of the Western Hemisphere. This would become especially important if Britain, in her agony, should turn to a leadership less valiant than Churchill's and less concerned with the defense of the dominions.

These are questions which may arise in the next few weeks, even if Britain withstands the storm.

Ramspeck Bill Action

Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, is planning to seek action on the Ramspeck bill as soon as the tax bill is cleared, along with an amendment to boost the pay of the Civil Service Commissioners, it was learned yesterday.

The bill, which would permit bringing thousands of Government employes into classified civil service jobs with permanent status, has been resting on the Senate calendar for several months. Majority leaders, however, are reported to have assured employe groups that the bill is classed as "must" legislation.

The White House, and more recently the campaign platform writers of both major parties, have expressed support for extending the merit system.

Pay Boost Amendment

Senator Mead is the backer of at least four amendments to the bill as it stands now. Among his latest is one which would boost the pay of the three Civil Service Commissioners from $8,500 a year to $10,000 a year.

The amendment was drawn up after the national defense program had doubled the normal job of the commission and the size of its organization, and after the new Hatch Act gave it a new quasi-judicial function. The amendment would also increase the pay of the commission's executive officer and chief examiner job from $7,500 to $9,500.

Other amendments to be offered by Senator Mead would give the temporary census employes civil service status, provide that substitute employes for the Government workers who are drafted for military service would be appointed on a temporary basis, and give civil service status to employes under the Architect of the Capitol.

The proposed census amendment early last week brought scores of the bureau's employes to Capitol Hill to enlist support of their Congressmen for the measure. Their visit was reported to have provoked some Senators, and the latter called on Chairman Bulow of the Senate Civil Service Committee to dig up the facts on census employment. Census officials reported that of 8,100 employes, 1,800 came from New York, 1,300 from the District, more than 400 each from Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Mead's plan for hiring substitutes for Government workers who enter military service as volunteers or through the draft would bolster the section of the conscription bill insuring that the Federal employes shall be able to get their jobs back after their period of service.

The amendment says the substitutes can be hired without regard to the salary classification act, but their appointments will be good only during the time the regular employe is away from the job.

Sponsor's Amendment

Mead's proposal to give employes of the Architect's Office in the Capitol a chance to obtain civil service status would become part of the amendment sponsored by Senator Bulow to give civil service to clerical employes on Capitol Hill after they have served there at least four years.

Technical instructors for the War Department's air corps schools are still urgently needed after a civil service exam which closed August 15, the Civil Service Commission has reported.

The exam is being reopened for instructors in four salary grades from $2,000 to $3,000, and applications will be taken until further notice, the commission said.

Separate lists of job candidates will be set up in these branches of instruction: carburetion systems, engines, hydraulic systems, instruments, mechanics, propellers, fabric work, sheet-metal work, welding, heat treating, parachutes and air corps fundamentals.

The jobs are open at Chanute Field, Ill.; Scott Field, Belleville, Ill.; and Lowry Field, Denver, Colo.

Mussolini's Move

By Barnet Nover

The Campaign In Egypt

THE ITALIAN invasion of Egypt provides a key to a number of seemingly unrelated events which have occurred in and around the Mediterranean area during recent weeks. They now fit together like bits of glass in a kaleidoscope.

In the first place, there was the long delay between the successful conclusion of the Italian campaign in British Somaliland last month and the present drive in Egypt.

That delay could not be explained on purely military grounds alone. Well before Italy entered the war she had assembled a large force in Libya and East Africa. It was then, as it is now, considerably larger than the force which Great Britain possesses in Egypt. Yet the delay enabled the British to reinforce their fleet in the Mediterranean and their army and air command in the Middle East. The British position was also recently strengthened by the action of the authorities in French Equatorial Africa in joining up with Gen. de Gaulle.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI
He delayed his attack

IT IS, of course, possible to explain the delay on the ground that Mussolini wanted to time his assault on Egypt and the Suez Canal with a German invasion of the British Isles or at least an all-out Nazi aerial attack on England. But whether this is so or not the fact remains that an attack on Egypt, difficult in any case, could easily prove disastrous unless a danger of an attack on the Italian forces from the rear could be eliminated and, also, British sea power could somehow be circumvented.

Until now Britain's command of the Mediterranean, particularly of the Eastern Mediterranean has been unchallenged except by air and there is no evidence that Italian air raids on British warships and British naval bases in the Mediterranean have so far had much success.

That explains the Italian press campaign against Greece. When it broke out some weeks ago it looked like the prelude to an invasion, or at least like an effort to wring concessions from the Athens government merely by threatening invasion. But Gen. Metaxas held firm; Great Britain renewed her guarantee to Greece and soon after sent additional warships into the eastern Mediterranean. The Italian press campaign against the Greek kingdom subsided. But the psychological preparation for an attack on that country has been made. Once Great Britain is fully occupied with defending Egypt and the Suez Canall it is not at all unlikely that an Italian attempt to secure a foothold in Greece would be made. And in possession of Greek harbors and islands, Italy could direct a more concentrated aerial and submarine assault on the British fleet.

THE ROAD TO SUEZ from Libya is long and difficult. The best road is that which fronts the ocean and is, therefore, open to attack from the sea. If the march into Egypt is successful the lines of communications with Libya must be kept open. That may take a lot of men and supplies, and for that reason may reduce the numerical advantage which the Italians enjoy over the British in the Egyptian area. But if a large British force can be immobilized in the Near East by virture of an Italian thrust from the direction of Syria the numerical advantage in the English campaign would remain with Italy.

This raises the question as to just what the Italian mission in Syria has been doing. Ostensibly it was sent to supervise the disarmament and demobilization of the French force in that mandated area. But once that happens it may be possible to make that region an Italian base of operations. Then the British would be in a vise.

BECAUSE of what happened in French Equatorial Africa there have been rumors that Morocco and Algeria might also break away from Vichy and join De Gaule. That would be a calamity of the first order for Mussolini. For it would then be the Italian rather than the British forces which would be threatened on two sides.

This possibility brings up two other developments reported during recent days. The first is the rumor (from Switzerland) that Germany may soon take over that part of France which is still unoccupied. It is difficult to see just what advantage Hitler would derive from such an action. It is easy to see the advantage it might have for Mussolini. For with all of France in German hands and no even nominally free French government left, the French colonies in North Africa and the Near East, having no place to go, might throw in their lot with de Gaulle.

CONVERSELY, however, Hitler might be persuaded not to take over unoccupied France if Vichy can give assurances that Morocco, Algeria, Tunis and Syria will not desert to De Gaulle. This may be why Gen. Weygand has been sent on a mission to North Africa. If anyone can persuade the French forces there to remain loyal to Vichy it is he. And it may be the fact that Weygand received such assurances which led Mussolini to give the "go" signal to Gen. Graziani in Libya.

In any event the battle for Egypt is on. The British for their part, as Winston Churchill made clear in a recent speech, are not underestimating its importance. And if Hitler decides not to invade the British Isles at this time it may even prove decisive.

C. U. Professor Sees Materialism As Threat to U. S.

New York, Sept. 15.—The defense of American democracy requires an uncompromising offensive against the "totalitarianism of the material," Dr. George Johnson, professor of education at the Catholic University, Washington, told 1,500 Catholic school teachers gathered in St. Patrick's Cathedral this afternoon for a vesper conference to mark the opening of the 141st year of Catholic education in the parish schools of New York.

Dr. Johnson, who is secretary-general of the National Catholic Education Association, made an indirect reference to Albert Einstein's recent denial of the doctrine of a personal God when he scored all those who question the truths of religion as unable to give a satisfactory justification for the assumptions upon which democracy rests.

Mr. Cummings' Party Highlights Social Scene

Although Invitations Read 5-7, So Gay Was the Event That Guests Stayed 'Way Late, a Tribute to the Host

HIGHLIGHT of yesterday's society-go-'round in the Capital City, was the cocktail party given by former Attorney General Homer S. Cummings at his home 2700 Tilden street. The official hours were from 5 to 7 o'clock, but so intriguing are all Mr. Cummings' parties that, come break-up time, no one had begun to think of leaving. As always guests lingered far, far into the evening.

It was a gaily informal party with the host circulating around, rather than forming a receiving line, and greeting guests wherever he happened to catch up with them. Most of the company wound up in the spacious dining room, which was dominated by a long lavishly-laced tea table. Centering it was a bouquet of white dahlias and ferns, flanked by tall white tapers in silver holders, and at either end of the table were two small bowls of white asters and pink roses.

All the usual tea-time dainties were in abundance, but the hit of the afternoon was a very special pot of brown, Boston-baked beans, which were baked with molasses and seasoned to a queen's taste.

A well-blended company, as always, were those who came to the popular former Attorney General's party. They included representatives from diplomatic, official, and Governmental circles, members of the smart set and several of the fourth estate.

Senator Barkleys Among Guests

Mrs. Alben Barkley, who arrived with the Senator and their daughter, Mrs. Max Truitt, was one of the many who sampled the baked beans and said they were first-rate. Accompanying the Barkleys to the party were Mr. and Mrs. Leo Keiler, of Paducah, Ky., and their daughter, Blanche, who is on her way to art school in Providence, R. I.

The Minister of the Union of South Africa and Mrs. Ralph William Close were seen in the crowd. They were telling friends that they were staying on at the Chevy Chase Club, where they have spent the summer, until October 1, when they will move back to the Legation.

Miss Ann Callaghan, gowned in a figured chiffon frock with accents of black and white, was here, there and everywhere, serving as hostess and seeing that guests had a good time. Former Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper were there, as was their daughter, Mrs. Frank Bohn.

Senator Tom Connally was on hand, also Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer and Mrs. Lionel Atwill, who will stay on in Washington for several more days before she leaves for California. The Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. Thurman Arnold arrived with their son, George Longan Arnold, who will leave soon to enter Yale.

Mrs. Nellie T. Ross Also Present

The Director of the Mint, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, was there; also Judge and Mrs. Harry Blair, who are in the midst of moving to another house in Alexandria; Mr. and Mrs. William Stanley, Mr. and Mrs. Bulkley Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Essary, Justice and Mrs. David A. Pine and Mrs. Fred Britten.

Gordon Dean was telling friends that Mrs. Dean will be back from California this week, and others noted around the tea table included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Waldrop, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Dickins, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Brandt, Ugo Carusi, Mrs. N. A. Townsend and Justice and Mrs. Bolitha Laws. The latter has just returned from Duke University, where Miss Nancy Lee Laws recently entered the freshman class.

Marjorie Crosier Plights Troth To Charles B. Peck

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Crosier, of Adams, Mass., announced at a luncheon Saturday at the Whale Inn at Goshen the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marjory S. Crosier, to Charles B. Peck, of New York City, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert H. Peck, of Washington.

Miss Crosier was graduated from Adams High School and Skidmore College and is now with Time, Inc., New York City.

Mr. Peck is a graduate of Duke University and is a certified public accountant in the firm of Lybrand, Ross Bros., and Montgomery.

Newlywed Pantaleonis Now on Trip

Bride Is the Former Daisy Heath Evans; Couple to Live in Del.

Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Pantaleoni, whose marriage took place on Saturday, are now on a honeymoon trip through the South. Later they will make their home in Wilmington, Del., where the bridegroom is connected with the du Pont Co.

The bride is the former Miss Daisy Heath Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Ward Evans, of Washington. Mr. Pantaleoni's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Goffredo Pantaleoni, of Maywood, N. J. The home of the bride's uncle, Paul Mackall, a vice president of Bethlehem Steel Co., was the scene of the ceremony at which the Very Rev. Roscoe Thornton Foust, dean and rector of the Protestant Episcopal Cathedral of the Nativity, officiated.

Anne Edmonson Maid of Honor

The bride appeared in a white lace dress with a matching veil. Her bouquet was of white orchids. Miss Anne Edmondson, of New York City, was maid of honor, wearing white faille trimmed with green velvet and a green velvet hat. She carried a white muff with flowers.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. James Walker, Mrs. V. J. Pazzetti 3d, and Miss Elinor Holton, of Bethlehem, and Miss Joyce Blaikie, of Englewood, N. J. Their costumes were similar to that of the matron of honor.

Best Man Is Bridegroom's Father

The bridegroom's father was best man, and ushers included J. Paul Evans, Joseph Latorraca and Ernest Ohsol, of New York; E. G. Grace, jr., of Phhiladelphia; Frederick Shick, of Bethlehem, and John Gibbons, of Wilmington.

A number of out-of-town guests attended the wedding.

The bride was educated at the Baldwin School and Vassar College. Mr. Pantaleoni attended the College of St. Joseph in Rome and the College of the City of New York.

Maj. Gen. Boschen, Daughter on Trip

Maj. Gen. Fred W. Boschen, U. S. Army, retired, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Betty Boschen Morris, left Washington on September 14 on a visit to the West Coast.

They expect to return about November 20, when Gen. Boschen will reopen his apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mexico's 130th Anniversary Of Freedom Celebrated Here

Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera Welcome 100 Guests at Embassy Party; Will Attend Festivities in New York Today

Members of the Mexican colony residing in Washington joined with the Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de Castillo Najera and other members of the Embassy staff in celebrating lasting evening the 130th anniversary of Mexican independence.

Though originally planned to be a party on a grand scale and to include many official and residential Washingtonians on its guest list, plans had to be changed due to the Ambassador's heavy schedule. As it was, over 100 guests made up the gathering that started at 9:30 o'clock and continued at the Embassy until midnight.

At that hour the Ambassador and all the company gathered around a radio to listen to a broadcast from the President of Mexico.

Speaking over a nation-wide Mexican hook-up the President of Mexico broadcast his talk from the little town of Dolores Hidalgo, where 130 years ago, Father Hidalgo called upon the people of Mexico to start the movement which was to given them their independence from Spain.

Castillo Najeras Leave for New York

Just after the broadcast, the Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera left by train for New York, where they will take part in a number of Mexican Independence day celebrations there today and will return to Washington tomorrow.

One of the outstanding fetes in connection with the ceremonies today in New York will be the one at the Court of Peace at the New York World's Fair.

Ambassador Will Speak at the Fair

At 7 o'clock the Ambassador will speak at the Pan-American Pavilion and the program will be broadcast to Central and South America. Later there will be a large anniversary dinner and ball at which the Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera will be honor guests.

Miss Fleming Due Here in Autumn

Miss Minnie Mae Fleming, who spent the past two winters here at the Shoreham Hotel, is expected to return to Washington from her home in Dallas, Tex., some time in the autumn.

Formerly connected with the League of Nations Association, Miss Fleming is widely known in the Capital. After leaving Washington early in the spring for her Texas home, she spent some time there and then joined a group of friends attending the Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

A Democrat for as long as she can remember, Miss Fleming now is an active member of the Anti-Third-Term Democrats Association of Texas, and has been making a series of speeches for that organization.

G. A. Paquins To Live Here

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Alfred Paquin, now on their honeymoon in Atlantic City, will make their home at the Argonne Apartments here.

The former Miss Elizabeth Jane Jacobson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Jacobson, and Mr. Paquin, son of Mrs. Roger Paquin and the late Mr. Paquin, were married on Saturday in the rectory of the Sacred Heart Church. The Rev. Lawrence J. Wempe officiated at the 3:30 afternoon ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory satin gown, fashioned with a tight bodice, short, puffed sleeves and sweetheart neckline. Her shoulder-length veil was held by a band of rolled satin and pearls and she carried an arm bouquet of gardenias and bouvardia.

Mrs. Carol Smith Galbraith, of Norwalk, Conn., was the matron of honor. She was gowned in rust faille, fashioned with a full skirt, tight bodice and matching hat of velvet, and carried Johanna Hill roses.

Raymond Gill Coe, of Washington, was the best man and there were no ushers. A reception at The Silver Bowl followed the ceremony. When the couple left for their wedding trip the bride was wearing a three-piece suit of wine color with white blouse and navy accessories. The bride was graduated from the Mary Nash School for Girls in New York and Mr. Paquin from George Washington University.

Mrs. Ranald Reid Is Expected Here Early in October

Mrs. Ranald Macfarlane Reid, daughter of Mrs. Hamilton Wright, who has spent the summer in Maine, is expected to come to Washington early next month. She plans to be here until it is possible for her to join her husband, Air Vice Marshal Reid, who is in command of British air forces on the Red Sea.

Mrs. Reid and her small son made a perilous trip from Aden to England last summer and were able to come to the United States later on the S. S. Washington, sailing from Ireland to New York.

Mrs. Wright has already returned to Washington from Maine, where another daughter, Miss Rosalind Wright, also spent the summer. Miss Barbara Wright is expected to return shortly from New Mexico.

Daughter Born To Wilcoxes

Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Wilcox are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, Elizabeth Alberta, at Columbia Hospital on August 30.

Mrs. Wilcox is the former Miss Mildred S. Caskey, of Philadelphia. Mr. Wilcox is a member of the Washington bureau of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin. Their home is in Arlington.

Hadassah to Hear Refugee Rabbi

The Business and Professional Women's Group of Senior Hadassah have completed arrangements for a member-bring-a-member supper party to be given at the home of Mrs. I. Bregman, 307 Summers Drive, Alexandria, on Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Rabbi Hugo Schiff of Beth El Temple, Alexandria, will be the guest speaker. Dr. Schiff before coming to the United States from Baden, Germany, a year and a half ago, was rabbi of a congregation of approximately 1,000 members. He was a member of the Great Synagogue Council of State of Baden, in charge of youth movements, education and cultural work, also educational and cultural work of Jewish adults. He was founder of the Jewish College and sponsor of co-educational summer camps in Germany. He spent about four weeks in Palestine before coming to this country. His topic will be "Rachel, Hebrew Poetess of Our Time." Rachel was known as Halutz. She died several years ago. Dr. Schiff will give a resume of her life and works and will translate some of her poems from Hebrew into English.

Sigma Pi Sigma Plans To Start Rush Season

Sigma Pi Sigma Sorority will open its rushing season with a meeting at the home of Miss Helen Bonnett Sunday, followed by another at the home of Miss Betty Pittle Tuesday, September 24. A formal party at the Shoreham Hotel has been set for September 27.

The first open dance of the season will be October 6, at the Hamilton Hotel. The sorority expects to enter three teams in this year's bowling tournament to be held on Thursday nights at the Columbia Bowling Alleys.

Officers, headed by Miss Jeanne Abramson, president, include: Miss Ruth Cohen, vice president; Miss Edna Karlinsky, recording secretary; Miss Jeannette Blan, treasurer and Miss Pittle, corresponding secretary.

Reception Given For Frank J. Sheed

Officers and members of the Catholic Evidence Guild of Washington acted as host to Frank J. Sheed, of London and New York at a reception Sunday evening at the home of the Misses Grace C. Hamelin, Madeline, Kane and Helen C. Kelly, 1321 Otis street.

Miss Gentzler Becomes Bride Of Mr. Bucknell

Weds Michigan Man Here on Parents' Silver Anniversary

On the silver wedding anniversary of her parents, Miss Geraldine Gentzler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Adam Gentzler, of 3930 Harrison street, yesterday became the bride of Robert Howard Bucknell, son of Howard C. Bucknell, of Centreville, Minn.

The candlelight ceremony took place at 4 p. m. at the Wesley Methodist Church, with the Rev. J. Luther Neff officiating. Marie Little played the nuptial music, Eleanor Bourdene sang, and Anton Kaspar played several violin selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was dressed in traditional ivory satin, a gown of her own design, with a rose point lace yoke, a tight basque waist, and a full, flowing skirt. Her long veil was held by clusters of orange blossoms and she carried a white prayer book from which fell satin ribbons tied with lilies of the valley.

Cousin of Bride Maid of Honor

Miss Marian King, of Three Rivers, Mich., cousin of the bride, was the maid of honor. She was gowned in roseberry taffeta in Victorian style, with a velvet bodice. Her halo was of matching tulle and she carried sweetheart roses, white gladioli and blue delphinium.

Mrs. William F. Kugler, of Metuchen, N. J., another cousin of the bride, was matron of honor, and wore silver-gray taffeta, with a halo of matching tulle trimmed in roseberry. She carried a sheaf of Briar Cliff roses and blue delphinium.

Kenneth L. Bucknell of Cadillac, Mich., was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Chapin Leinbach, of Orleans, Mass., cousin of the bridegroom; William F. Kugler, of Metuchen, and Robert Neff, of Washington.

Reception at Home Of Bride's Parents

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. The mother of the bride wore a floor-length gown of dulcet blue crepe with a small hat of autumn brown velvet flowers and a corsage of brown orchids. The mother of the bridegroom was gowned in floor-length grape wine crepe with navy blue accessories and an orchid corsage.

Mrs. Lewis Takes a House For the Winter in Georgetown

IN WASHINGTON, city of changes and comings and goings, one is always interested but never surprised at the plans of one's friends and acquaintances. For instance, the friends of Mrs. Noyes Lewis are interested to learn that she has taken a house in Georgetown for the winter. But they are not surprised, at least her friends who live in Georgetown are not, because they think it normal that everyone should want to live there.

Mrs. Lewis arrived Saturday from a vacation spent at Winter Harbor, Me., and immediately began settling into her new abode which she has leased from Capt. and Mrs. Clarence Hinkamp. With her is her young son, Bin, who has spent the summer with her at Winter Harbor and who is now very much occupied with preparations for school.

Mrs. Lewis' mother, Mrs. Frank Noyes, one of the real grandes dames of Washington, will return to her home on Massachusetts avenue in about a fortnight's time. She too, owns a lovely house in Winter Harbor, where she spends the summers. It makes quite a family reunion out of the vacation, as a number of Mrs. Noyes' Philadelphia relatives also own places in the small, attractive, Maine resort.

VERY MUCH MISSED in the Capital this winter will be Prince and Princess Aleksander Hohenlohe. Prince Hohenlohe has resigned as Attache of the Polish Embassy. He and his pretty and chic princess will make their headquarters in Philadelphia with her step-father and mother, the recent United States Ambassador to Poland and Mrs. Anthony Biddle.

Countess Lasocka is anxiously awaiting the arrival of her mother who is due to arrive any day now from Lisbon by the Clipper. She fled from Poland after the death of her husband, the former Polish Ambassador to France, and, hardly had she arrived in France, when she had to flee to Portugal. There she has been waiting, as the weeks went by, for her turn to have a place on the Clipper. It seems that the planes are so loaded with important mail that they have room for only a few passengers, and eager, would-be travelers are doomed to frequent disappointments.

The latest first-hand news that her mother comes from the Countess Lasocka has had from Countess de Gramont who saw her in Lisbon. Countess de Gramont, her departure was so much regretted last winter, is now back at her apartment in Washington with her children while her husband continues to serve his country abroad.

A CHARMING bachelor who has come to Washington is Carmel Offie, right hand man of Ambassador Bullit. Mr. Offie has accompanied his chief in various posts, notably in France and Russia. For his stay in Washington he has taken an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Edward Weintal, once an attache of the Polish Embassy and now co-author, with Sir Willmott Lewis, of a weekly news letter, says that it is practically a pleasure to register as an alien. At the postoffice, where he and his colleague registered together, he found the officials so kind and encouraging that he felt more like a guest cooperating with the government than like a foreigner.

It is pleasant to learn that the Countess of Gainsborough and her daughter, Lady Maureen Noel, both of whom were so very popular in Washington last winter, will return to the Capital the first of October. They have been visiting relatives on Long Island this summer.

Burglars Get $346 Loot in 3 Gas Stations

Streetcar Motorman Robbed of Pass Books Worth $37.50

Thieves entered three gas stations early yesterday, escaping with a loot totaling $346, police reported.

James Suite, of Mount Rainier, Md., employed at the Negus gas station, 3001 Rhode Island avenue northeast, arrived at work yesterday to find a side window had been broken and $156.83 missing from a desk drawer. Also stolen was an automatic pistol.

Entrance was gained by breaking the glass of the front door at a gas station located at 2651 Bennings road northeast, where $150 was stolen from a wall safe. The theft was reported by Martin G. McCarthy, 822 Concord avenue northwest, manager, who told police the safe may have been left unlocked.

Burglars stole $39.41 from the cash register of a gas station at 25 Florida avenue northeast, it was reported by Alfred Stango, proprietor.

While a streetcar stopped to discharge passengers at Seventh and O streets northwest, a colored man seized three books of street car passes valued at $37.50 from John B. Polling, 5719 Fourth street northwest, motorman, police reported.

New Orleans Mill Fined $42,167

Secretary of Labor Perkins fined the Lane Cotton Mills Co., of New Orleans, $42,167 Saturday, after holding that the company had violated the Public Contracts Act.

Her order, affirming a ruling of the public contracts administrator, said Government contracts would be withheld from the firm for three years.

The company was charged with violating the overtime and child labor provisions of the act under 17 contracts with the Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

Buttermilk Biscuits

WHAT appetite do you know that isn't at all times avidly seeking for a new taste thrill? If you are the cook and want to offer up a plate of delicious zestfulness, try serving buttermilk biscuits.

The following recipe for making the buttermilk biscuits is the one that comes tested from the Seal-test Laboratory Kitchen, New York City.

Buttermilk Biscuits

Mix and sift 2 cups flour, 2¼ teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon soda. Cut in 6 tablespoons butter with two knives or rub in with the fingertips. Stir in ¾ cup butter milk mixing just enough to moisten the dry ingredients. Turn dough onto a floured board and roll out to about ½ inch thickness. Cut with a floured biscuit cutter. Place in buttered shallow baking pan and brush with milk. Bake in a very hot oven, 450 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes or until brown. Makes 20 small biscuits.

To make Cinnamon Rolls vary the above recipe as follows:

Roll the dough to about ⅛ inch thickness and brush with melted butter. Sprinkle with ½ cup of brown sugar mixed with 1 teaspoon of cinnamon and roll up like a jelly roll. Cut in ½ inch slices and place in a buttered shallow baking pan. Brush with milk and bake in a very hot oven (450 degrees F.) for 12 to 15 minutes or until brown. This recipe makes 15 to 20 rolls.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl Would Like to Announce Her Engagement to Man Before He Leaves for Army Training Camp; but He Hasn't Broached the Subject to Her; What to Do?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I would like your advice on a certain situation that confronts a girl friend of mine. It seems that she had known a young man for about six months, when suddenly they realized they were very much in love with each other. He lives in another city, and last Easter, he asked her to visit his family for the week-end, which she did. His family seemed to like her and her family likes the young man.

Now, this young man belongs to the National Guard, which, as you probably know, is going in for a full year's training. His regiment is leaving for training next month. There seems to be no doubt that he will marry the girl on his return.

But the problem is this: The girl is a very serious young person, very much in love; and he is the sort of fellow who is considerate enough not to want to tie her down socially during his absence. He has not mentioned "engagement" to her, and she is wondering if it would be proper to mention it to him.

Her mother would like very much to have the engagement announced before he leaves next month; and so would the girl. She doesn't care greatly for dancing and parties, and wouldn't be interested in going out with other boys. The boy is of much the same disposition. Both are very reserved. What is the proper handling of the situation?

BETKA.

Girl Had Better Keep Her Hopes to Herself

DEAR BETKA: Frankly, it looks to me as if the girl and her mother are interested in railroading the young man into a marriage promise. Since "he has not mentioned 'engagement'" to the girl, one must assume he has reasons of his own—more selfish than magnanimous — for wishing to keep clear of that binding commitment.

You may be sure that if marriage were as much on his mind as it is on the girl's mind, he would be discussing the subject with her, pro and con, as the day draws nearer for him to depart. He would be urging her to decide whether they should be married immediately or whether they should wait; and if they agreed to wait, he would be probing the question of whether to announce the engagement or keep it a secret. With anxious jocularity, he would be promoting some understanding as to how she was going to conduct her social life in his absence. That's the way it would be if he were bent on marrying her, sooner or later.

In my opinion, his failure to raise any such question can only be interpreted as evidence of non-marrying intent. And this being the picture, as I see it, the only "proper handling of the situation," from the girl's angle, consists in keeping her wistful hopes to herself.

M. H.

One College Man Appraises Another

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I happened to read your column of September 10, in which you analyzed the character of a college trained man, who was questioning a girl's suitability to be his wife, inasmuch as her formal education had ended with high school.

As a man of considerable college "training" myself, let me say that this chap (for all his advantages) hasn't learned the first principle of common sense, not to mention good breeding. Nor has he the least concept of what love means between a man and a woman. He doesn't know how to act on that emotion. (Aside. I don't think any college would be, or could be, proud of such a by-product).

Granted that, acting on impulse, he did write the girl about his misgivings concerning their "cultural disparity" (as he expressed it), and was genuinely conscience-stricken after receiving her stinging reply, there were ways and means of retrieving that mistake, if he had normal social intelligence.

The average man, on receiving such rebuke from the girl he loved, would have taken the next train or plane for her city, and would have MADE her believe he was sorry and ashamed. He would have won her forgiveness for his blundering. He would have convinced her that he loved her, in spite of his crudity. Trains and planes run every hour in all directions, all over this very small country of ours.

My judgment of this fellow is that he is an only child; the spoiled brat of parents who neglected to teach him the rudimentary elements of good manners while he was still in short pants. I suggest that he refer back to The Post of September 10, and read Malvina Lindsay's column (alongside yours of that date), which is headed, "Formula for a Stuffed Shirt." He might recognize the fate for which he is heading. If his "proud and intelligent" former sweetheart never marries, she'll be better off than if she marries this pompous ass. Sincerely,

OLDSTER—'06.

Colored Shoes Brighten Drab Fall Ensemble

Designers Provide Cheerful Relief For Decreed Black

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor.

IF YOU'RE bored with the inevitable black from top to toe, if you crave the same excitement you feel in the autumn air, here's the way to inject that new feeling into your clothes.

MARSHALL ADAMS

The answer comes by way of a widely known designer of luxurious shoes, Herman Delman, in town today and tomorrow for style consultation at a local store. Mr. Delman's designs have long been known for distinction of line, detail and color. He feels strongly on that last point and insists that since "black with black" is old-looking this season, black can only be cheered up by pungent use of color in shoes and accessories. To prove his point, Mr. Delman brought his choicest collection of originals from his New York custom-craft workshops, all of them in subtle and subdued colors.

Work of Noted Designers

Each color had been carefully thought out, not alone by Mr. Delman, but by a group of America's top designers, who, each season, "style" a series of coordinated color affiliates. They include Strook's woolens, Mallinson's crepes, Howard Hodge's hats, Koret's bags, Kislav's gloves and Mr. Delman's shoes, all dyed to harmonize and blend for those discriminating women who get the fidgets when colors are even a trifle off-key.

These colors, indorsed by Mr. Delman for preference over the ubiquitous black, include: Dark brown, a mellow harvest brown, juniper green, an autumn forest green, Indian summer, a rich, ripe russet; huckleberry, a frost-nipped purple; night-flight blue, a dark autumn navy, and scarecrow gray, a more flattering gray than the name implies. Colors are interpreted in interesting combinations of colored suede, reptile with calf, Boroso (baby sharkskin), and calf and kid piped with patent or reptile in strap, sabot, oxford or step-in styles.

Favors the Pyramid

Mr. Delman is enthusiastic about the pyramid last for the majority of feet, because, according to him, "by every optical illusion test, feet look inches smaller in them—a look every woman desires this season." The new narrow silhouette demands feet to look proportionately small, Mr. Delman feels. He thinks the day of the obviously clumsy shoe is passed. This brought up the query, "What about wedges?" Mr. Delman, with a slight look of distress, closed that subject by saying, "Most women want to look appealing to men, and men don't like bulky, unfeminine footwear, so this year's majority of classic, becoming styles is the answer."

The Girl Still Pays—Except

TUT, TUT, JUDY! At this point you're certainly a mixture of thrills and perplexity. You're all excited over Jim's invitation to attend a football game in a nearby State. But you're worried over who pays the train fare—you or your host.

Well, if your host has invited several other persons in his party and intends to accompany the group on the same train, if he can afford it, he should pay for the transportation. However, if you and Jim alone go up on the same train and he insists on paying your fare, well, you might let him. (Emily Post doesn't agree with me, she thinks you should pay your own fare.) You should at least offer to pay your own way. Now, if you expect to make the train or plane trip by yourself, you should plan to pay your own expenses. Nevertheless, if Jim has a great deal more money than you and if he really insists on sending you a ticket, accept it. It's done in the best of families these days among the smart younger crowd.

Whether or not you should permit Jim to pay your transportation to the out-of-town football game depends upon the circumstances. Each individual's case is different, and there's no hard and fast rules. For example, if Jim is a mere acquaintance, pay your own train fare, even if he insists on paying it. It is better to err on the conservative side than to give him wrong impression. On the ofter hand, if Jim is a friend of long standing and you're sure his motives are honorable, don't hesitate to allow him to pay your transportation. Be sure of your ground there.

'Men Are Different'

He—Say, when you get through that luncheon today——

She—I'm not going.

He—What's the matter?

She—I havn't anything to wear.

He—Of all the silly excuses!

She—Well, do you think I'm going there in my old summer clothes with all the rest of the girls in their cute little fall wools and beetle bronze shoes . . . and new pouch bags . . . and pompadour hats——

He—That's just like a woman! Nobody'd ever know the difference.

She—They wouldn't! Why, Sadie Stepp simply looked a hole through my old patent leather bag when I met her downtown Saturday, and yesterday at church everybody was looking at myelegs.

He—Say, do you think you're Marlene Dietrich?

She—Don't be silly. It was my hose. Here I had on these old summer Hawaiian Nude stockings when everybody else was wearing September Mist.

He—Well, why on earth don't you get some fall stockings?

She—I haven't had time—and besides I need everything. But I'm certainly not going to make a spectacle of myself sailing into a luncheon in a summer suit . . . and toeless sandals . . . and patent leather bag . . . and a straw HAT.

He—What do you care what people think?

She—I don't. It's just that everybody's in fall clothes and——

He—I'd be a superior to such things.

She—You simply can't be superior in old clothes.

He—Women are certainly funny. Now, men are different. I'd go downtown in overalls if I wanted to—say, where's my hat?

She—Right there—on the hall table.

He—I mean my felt.

She—What felt?

He—That gray felt I wore last spring.

She—Oh, you don't want that today, do you?

He—Of course. The straw season ended yesterday.

She—Oh, but it wouldn't make any difference, just one more day, would it?

He—Well, I don't suppose there will be any straws downtown.

She—I don't believe anybody would notice——

He—Say! You haven't given that felt away, have you?

She—Oh, no, no. It—it's just that it really ought to be cleaned . . . and besides, Junior was playing with it——

He—Say, where is that hat?

She—Well, it's in the upstairs closet. It's just that it doesn't look very well—you see some moths got in that closet—and I think you really look better in the straw.

He—I think I'll wear it just the same. Nobody's going to notice a few moth holes.

Stretching Is Best Exercise To Lose That Dumpy Look

By Ida Jean Kain

YOU can rest assured that the stylists will not try again soon to squeeze you into a wasp-waist corset. Such restraint was too uncomfortable! That was carrying things too far and they even had camplaints from the health departments.

But one brush with the fall fashions will tell you that your waist must be fairly slim on its own account—and that's the way waistlines should be slim. Nobody wants a dumpy figure, but when you let the ribs settle down on the waist and the waist settle down on the hips, that's what you've got!

Exercise will trim down your waistline. The secret of effective waistline exercise is to anchor the hips securely so that none of the twist and bend is wasted. To lose a dumpy look through the midsection you must stretch; to squeeze off the fat you must twist; to limber the waist you must bend. So any exercise that combines the three movements is a triple threat to duff. Here's one:

POSITION: Sit on the floor, legs wide apart.

MOVEMENT: First, stretch the arms high overhead and pull your spine into a straight line. Clasp hands overhead. Now, twist sharply at the waist to one side and bending over touch hands to outstretched foot. Keep the tummy pulled up, back straight! Come back to position. Stretch again and twist in opposite direction, then touch other foot. Repeat eight times, making every movement count.

Now, from the same position on the floor, pivot at the waistline. With the arms stratched high overhead, hands clasped, pull slim through the middle, then bend to one side, circle to the front, around to the side, slightly back and up. Circle in the opposite direction and continue for eight counts. Do this exercise very slowly.

Another very effective waistline trimmer is to anchor the hips against the back of a heavy chair, arms folded in back, then twist sharply at the waist, right, then left. Keep the hips pressed firmly against back of chair so that they do not move as you twist.

A WOMAN'S

WASHINGTON

By JEAN BROWNELL

Judge Raedy Named to Preside Over Law School's Practice Court

ANOTHER Washington woman scored a "first" last week. She's Ellen K. Raedy, Municipal Court judge who has been appointed to preside over National University Law School's moot court. So far as is known, she is the first woman ever to become judge of such a court, which is the forum where law students conduct trials of fictitious cases.

JUDGE RAEDY

Judge Raedy's charm and humor already have made her a favorite at the school, where she has taught legal ethics since the spring of 1939. She will continue to teach the course in addition to sitting on the bench of the practice court. An alumna of the school herself, she is its first woman faculty member.

She is Irish on both sides of the family, and attributes her good fortune to the fact that she was admitted to the D. C. bar on March 17. She practised law with her two brothers before her appointment to Municipal Court five years ago.

One of the first calls Presidential Secretary Marvin McIntyre made after his recent return to Washington was to see his next twin granddaughters, born last month to his daughter, Mrs. Frederick Warren, of 3731 Appleton street northwest. Mrs. Warren has named the little girls Linda Lithgow and Sandra Spencer. Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre have been made grandparents three times over in less than six months, for their first grandchild, also a girl, was born here last spring to their son and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Kennedy McIntyre, of Philadelphia.

Last week's item about Electro the Robot reminded a reader of her visit to the World's Fair's Railroads on Parade. With her was her 10-year-old nephew, Junie, who was fascinated by the modified strip tease act put on in a Pullman berth as the show's climax. Just as the lady strips to her step-ins, of course, the train whistle toots and the view is obstructed by a piece of scenery. At this point Junie turned breathlessly to his aunt and said, "Let's sit through it again—maybe the train won't leave so soon next time."

SCIENCE MARCHES ON—Useful devices patented this month include a non-drip milk bottle, an eyelash curler, a marshmallow cutter and a fruit pitter. . . . An inventor has just patented a method of dye-printing fabrics by means of photography . . . A recent issue of the Patent Office Gazette indexes one item thus: "Carriage, Collapsible baby."

Leaving the floor of a local night club to make a long distance phone call, a couple asked one of the attendants, "Where are the pay stations?" Apparently misunderstanding the question, the attendant replied, "Ladies to the left, gentlemen to the right."

Furniture Styles Show New Trends

In the world of costume fashion, we hear rumors of Mormon hats, Indian feathers, Daniel Boone coonskin caps and Quaker bonnets . . . in fact with Paris out of the picture it looks like it's going to be anybody's guess as to what we'll be wearing on our heads.

But in decoration the fashion forecast for fall is much less confusing. We'll see the usual quota of eighteenth century English furniture with a new emphasis on the less familiar types of Queen Anne, while early American will be with us as always, along with modern and Regency as highlights. The news centers upon French provincial furniture, or, as it is perhaps more accurately called, French manor furniture, for the type of furniture now being revived is more formal, more sophisticated than the country sort of thing which the term provincial implies.

Keyser Flood Survey to Start

Keyser, W. Va., Sept. 15.—A group of United States Army engineers, with Assistant Engineer Raymond S. Poor in charge, has arrived here to make a flood survey of the city. Keyser is located on the north branch of the Potomac River, with New Creek running the length of the city and emptying into the river. New Creek is the main source of damage in flood periods.

Main protection, however, would be from a flood wall along the Potomac, it is felt.

Mayor John C. Freeland said the total damage to real and personal property by the flood of 1924 was estimated at $25,772, while the damage in 1936 was placed at $18,882.

Accused in Husband-Slaying

'Ma' Can't Tuck Trainee in Bed, but U.S. Plans Compensations

Men drafted into the armed forces of the United States will quickly drop the title of "conscripts" and be absorbed into the service as volunteer privates now are, officers of the War Department said yesterday.

A Washingtonian who enters the Army will not be sent to points as remote as Wyoming or Arizona, but rather, "It is planned that in the general geographical proximity to his home will be the training spot for every man entering the service," an officer stated. "It isn't intended, however, that he'll be so close to home his mother can come to camp every night and make sure he's tucked in," he added.

While the machinery for changing a civilian into a soldier has not yet been announced, it is planned that men will be sent to army posts through the clearing houses of reception centers. The time to be spent in reception centers cannot yet be determined.

There will be no regiments—not even a company—made up entirely of men enlisting for the one year term, officers emphasized. Existing units of the Regular Army and National Guard will be increased by the new men to much greater strengths, it was said.

Once in the Army, John Citizen will lead the life of any new private. He'll learn to drill, but because of the new simplified drill system, he won't have to spend the long hours in the monotony of "Squads right—Squads left," as his father did in the last war.

At 6 a. m. he'll turn out and assemble for inspection. For breakfast he'll eat bacon and eggs and coffee, and then start his work of drilling and learning to handle arms. He'll probably have some time off in the afternoon.

The War Department has extensive plans for a soldier's spare time. There will be motion pictures, athletic programs and libraries in all posts.

Softball, baseball, boxing, volley ball and mass games will be emphasized in the recreational program. The 100 motion-picture theaters on Army posts today will be increased, and a soldiers and his family can see shows at 20 cents apiece. Mass singing is also included on the recreational program.

Refugee Brings Thanks of 82 Spared Return to War Zone

Passengers of Ship, Given Temporary Haven in U. S., Prepare Message Of Gratitude for Hope Restored

The Mayflower Hotel's deep lobby carpets felt good under the feet of Jules Moed, war refugee, yesterday, after his anguished pacings of the steamship Quanzan's decks at Norfolk.

He was among the refugees carried by the Quanzan from Lisbon, August 9, to New York and Vera Cruz, to have landing denied through visa difficulties. He had thought for a time, as the others did when the ship put into Norfolk for coal to make the recrossing to Europe, that he and his family would soon be back in the Europe they had fled.

When intercessionists got many of them temporarily respite, they joined in a declaration of thanks to the United States. This document Moed brought here yesterday.

Its closing words were "God bless America."

Moed, en route with his wife and three children to New York to join relatives there, stopped off in the hotel lobby and called The Post. He said he would like to deliver a message of thanks from the passengers on the Quanzan. This, in part, read:

"After all our sufferings these last months we are too exhausted to adequately thank our saviours at this moment of intense relief, when hope had completely vanished.

"We were 82 (other reports gave 89 as the number) desperate human beings, fearing the dangers of the submarine and mine-infested seas, besides the dread of being subjected to the tyrannies of our war-torn and conquered countries."

The refugees said they "hope to remain in this glorious country for a while, until we go on to our respective new countries."

"We shall take with us," they continued, "undying memories of true democratic and human kindness which gave us new courage to start life afresh in a new world.

"We thank the American people. God bless America."

The refugees sharing in the statement were Dutch, French, Belgians, Czechs, Poles, Hungarians and Germans. They were refused admittance at both New York and Vera Cruz and were expecting to be returned to Lisbon, the port they left August 9, when the Quanzan turned to Norfolk to be fueled for the crossing.

Permission to leave ship was granted the refugees after days of questioning by immigration officials and under legal latitude given the Immigration Department. Many of them held visas good for 60 days.

Moed and his family, never before in America, gained respite Saturday and will remain for a specified period of time in New York. They would not speak of their experiences during the invasion.

612,223 Alien Registrations Are Received

A total of 612,223 completed alien registration forms, 4,035 of them from the District, has been received with accompanying fingerprints by the alien registration division of the Justice Department, it was announced last night.

Through Thursday, the daily average of returns has been 47,092 since the start of registration August 27, or approximately 11,000 more than the 36,000 daily total which must be maintained if the task of registering the Nation's 3,600,000 aliens is to be completed by the December 26 deadline.

Earl G. Harrison, registration director, explained that because of a two to five-day lag between registration and receipt of forms, actual registration has been much higher than total receipts.

Totals for various sections of the Nation were 114,472 from New England, 245,405, Middle Atlantic States; 113,504, East North Central States; 22,785, West North Central States; 30,004, South Atlantic States; 16,488, West South Central States; 3,305, East South Central States; 14,155, Mountain States, and 52,105, Pacific Coast.

Mothers...

Children "go for" the grand fresh flavor of this milk that's rich in cream and healthful milk solids.

ALREADY MANY MOTHERS have told us their children like Lucerne better than any milk they have ever had before. That is quite a compliment because, as all mothers know, children are critical judges of milk. Their keen taste quickly detects a difference in richness and flavor.

Pleased! Naturally we are. But not surprised. You see we planned Lucerne especially for growing children.

We started by getting milk only from the finest, cleanest Virginia and Maryland herds. Herds that are approved by the District of Columbia Health Authorities. This fine milk is rushed daily to our model new plant — the most modern milk plant in this whole area.

Here the milk is pasteurized and packaged quickly to protect its freshness and flavor. Then it is hurried to stores in refrigerated trucks. Daily tests make sure it is always high in butterfat (always higher than the law requires for Grade A) and in solid milk solids.

We thought of mother, too, in our planning. We package Lucerne in a modern light-weight container that is easier to carry, easier to use and that eliminates all the bother of washing and returning bottles.

You pay no deposit and there is nothing to return when you buy Lucerne. More, you save on every quart because no home delivery charge is included in the price.

We think you and your children will prefer Lucerne. Try it today.

Picture Highlights From Career of Speaker Bankhead

1. A varsity fullback at the University of Alabama, Speaker Bankhead never missed an opportunity to see the Crimson Tide in action. He liked to wear his letter at the games. The Alabaman . . .

2. . . . who served in the House for 23 years became Speaker in 1936 after the death of Joseph W. Byrns, of Tennessee. Mr. Bankhead is shown on the rostrum of the House chamber on that eventful day when he took the oath as Speaker. He previously was majority leader and when he was made Speaker he became known as the President's "strong right arm." The Speaker . . .

3. . . . could play as well as work. He is shown in this picture made in the spring of 1937 throwing out the first ball in a game between pages of the House and Senate which he umpired. The Speaker became a national figure as the "boy orator" who nominated Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama, for the Presidency in the 1912 convention at Baltimore. He was elected to the "War Congress" in 1917. Mr. Bankhead . . .

4. . . . was handy with the carving knife and became a "Master of the Ancient and Honorable Order of Turkey Carvers" after he demonstrated his skill at a turkey dinner given in January, 1937, for his and his brother's office staffs. Lewis Deschler, House parliamentarian, bestows the honor. One of the Speaker's earliest ambitions . . .

5. . . . was to become an actor. One of his daughters, Tallulah, did become a star and he is shown embracing her on one of her visits to Washington. The Speaker enjoyed family life and . . .

Stricken Man Waits Hour For Ambulance

Mix-up Results in Third Emergency Delay in Two Months

A victim of a convulsion awaited on the ground for an hour at Ninth street and New York avenue northwest last night before an ambulance arrived to rush him to the hospital.

The delay, due to a still-to-be explained mixup, was the third such incident in the past two months. A 62-year-old traffic victim, who had to wait 55 minutes for an ambulance last month, died shortly afterward in the hospital.

Victim of last night's delay was John G. Crew, 45, of 1121 Tenth street northwest.

Observing a crowd at the corner of Ninth street and New York avenue, Park Policeman B. J. Beckman investigated.

When he saw the stricken man, he notified police, and a Casualty Hospital ambulance and Scout Car 2 were dispatched to the scene. That was at 8:17 p. m.

At 8:32 police of Scout Car 2 informed the dispatcher they were on the scene. At 8:34 the call for the ambulance was canceled via police radio, and the ambulance was called back to the hospital.

Emergency Hospital received a call to the same location shortly after 9 p. m., and its ambulance being out of another call, authorities sent Sardo's ambulance, which brought Crew to Emergency Hospital.

Police explained that ambulance calls are canceled when it is determined that no medical treatment is necessary, or when treatment has been otherwise given. A preliminary check last night, however, failed to identify the party who had canceled the ambulance call. Police and hospital attaches denied they had recalled the ambulance.

On September 4 the Health Security Administration announced that a system was being organized to coordinate the emergency medical service of more than 30 hospitals and 90 ambulances in Washington, Maryland and Virginia. The machinery was expected to be set up by the end of this month.

Church Group Visits D. C. Workhouse

Volunteer Committee Greets Recently Named Protestant Chaplain

Led by Chairman Coleman Jennings, a chaplaincy committee of local volunteer church workers yesterday visited the District Workhouse at Occoquan, helped lead services and greeted the Protestant chaplain recently placed through their efforts.

Appointed September 1 as first full-time Protestant chaplain there, he is Leonard Edmonds, graduate of the Louisville Theological Seminary and the Council for Clinical Training in New York City. His "theological interneship" was served at Chillicothe (Ohio) Federal Prison.

After the services, in which other Interested Washingtonians participated, the group walked to Superintendent Ray Huff's home for a buffet supper and tea, and a meeting on the porch.

Use of the chaplain, whose salary is being pledged by several churches, will add to the regularly-conducted services at the workhouse, Huff pointed out, and will mean no change in the regular visits of volunteer lay and clerical workers to lead programs.

Much of the volunteer work is being carried on through the cooperation of the Social Welfare Department, the Washington Federation of Churches, of which the Rev. John L. Mixon is chairman.

The council's training program is conducted through 20 supervisors in hospitals, prisons and other institutions. The council selects theological students for training in the work.

Following Ceremony, Banquet Is Held In Beth Sholom

Led by President Jeremiah Weitz, the Combined Hebrew Congregations of Washington yesterday afternoon joined in dedicatory exercises for the new Beth-Hatevilah (Place of Immersion) at 3601 Fourteenth street northwest.

Worshipers from practically every synagogue in the city packed the building for the ceremonies, and had the opportunity to inspect the modern equipment for the age-old ceremony. It contains baths, founts and dressing rooms.

Following the exercises, the crowd went to the Beth Sholom Synagogue at Eighth and Shepherd streets northwest, for a banquet, and heard Dr. David I. Macht, member of the Johns Hopkins Hospital staff, deliver the main address.

Paul Himmelfarb served as chairman of the banquet committee, and Nathan Plotnick, vice chairman.

Weitz was instrumental in recently organizing the Emunah Society here, being named its first president. The society's objectives is the coordination of all sections and spheres of Washington Jewry for the strength and support of Jewish religious institutions in line with the traditional faith. The society will be officially incorporated in the charter of the Agudath-Hakehiloth (Combined Hebrew Congregations).

Dr. Pruden Takes Issue With Einstein

D. C. Cleric Calls Scientist's Views On Deity 'Illogical'

Replying to Einstein's questioning of a personal God's existence, Dr. Edward Hughes Preudan, pastor of First Baptist Church and president of the Washington Federation of Churches, yesterday contended that the philosopher is guilty of "rather illogical thinking."

While admitting that Einstein, in his speech of last Wednesday before the Conference of Science, Philosophy and Religion at the Jewish Theological Seminary in New York City, had "said a good many things on which we agree," the cleric said:

"On the subject of a personal God, he is about as complicated and involved as he seems to be to most of us on the subject of relativity."

Dr. Pruden apologized for the "illogical thinking" of Einstein in regard to religious matters and the question of a personal God on the ground that "he does not pretend to be a theologian, and I am sure he would not expect his excursions into the realm of theology to be taken too seriously. Dr. Einstein is a scientist and accustomed to dealing with material and mathematical things," he said.

As to the assertion of Einstein that "if God were omnipotent every occurrence, including every human action, every human thought and every human feeling and aspiration is also His work," Dr. Bruden declared that "if God had created us automatons, then Dr. Einstein's contention would be true; but God as a matter of fact created us free moral agents and granted us the privilege of making our own choices and decisions.

"God is, indeed, omnipotent," Dr. Pruden added, "but he deliberately limits his control over us so that character rather than mere innocence may be achieved."

Roosevelt Drive On in Alexandria

Alexandria's "Reelect Roosevelt" campaign headquarters will open officially today at 9 o'clock in the Professional Building, corner of King and Fairfax streets. Officers in charge will be Mrs. Elizabeth W. Kelley, executive secretary; Mrs. Harriett S. Goods, secretary, and Mrs. Vilma Stansbury, treasurer.

An intensive drive, to be directed by State Delegate Maurice D. Rosenberg, will be conducted and registration of Roosevelt supporters will get under way immediately. A goal of $1,000 has been set in the campaign for funds.

Methodist Women Merge Church Groups

Charter Meetings Planned This Week By Other Organizations

Following legislation of the new Methodist Church, women's organizations of two churches were formally merged into Women's Societies of Christian Service at charter meetings yesterday afternoon. Similar meetings are set for later in the week.

At Emory Methodist Church, Mrs Horace E. Cromer, wife of Dr. Cromer, pastor of the congregation, was named to head the Woman's Society of Christian Service. Also chosen were Mrs. John Lambert, vice president; Mrs. Reid Brande, recording secretary; Miss Louise Bergmann, treasurer, and the following secretaries:

Literature and publications, Mrs. John Gardner, wife of the president of the Box Men's Bible Class; supplies, Mrs. John Koopmann; children's work, Mrs. Sidel Cordero; missionary education, Mrs. Charles Patterson; social relationships, Mrs. E. M. Harmon; local work, Mrs. George Pell, and young women's and girls' work, Miss Frances Wilson.

Eighty-one women signed the charter roll. Pouring at a tea after the meeting were Mrs. Cromer, Mrs. H. T. Waesche, president of the former missionary society, and Mrs. Lambert. Dr. Cromer presided at the meeting until elections.

Mrs. G. Raymond Wilhelm was chosen to head the society at Hamline Methodist's charter meeting. Mrs. John R. Lapham, widow of the late dean of the George Washington University Engineering School, was named vice president; Mrs. Ema Horsmell, recording secretary; Mrs. George H. Miller, corresponding secretary; Mrs. William L. Evans, treasurer; Mrs. F. Louis Lieb, vice president of missionary education and service, and Mrs. George G. Cooper, vice president of Christian social relations and local church activities.

Tea was served by the newly formed Weslevan Guild, of which Miss Ethel Stickles is president. Dr. H. W. Burgan, Hamline, pastor, conducted the meeting until elections. Dr. Chesteen Smith, former Hamline pastor, participated.

Other Methodist charter meetings for the week follow:

North Carolina Avenue, tomorrow, 8 p. m.; Waugh and Petworth, local, and Bethesda (Md). Thursday, 8 p. m., and Epworth Methodist, September 27.

Eve's Temptation Just Free Apples To Truck Driver

Eve's temptation, the apple, overcame the occupants of a red pick-up truck on the highway near Culpeper, Va., yesterday.

It just showed what a farmer has to contend with, goldurnit!

Weathering the weather and the worms that get in apples and various apple diseases, the droughts and caterpillars, Orchard Owner Paul Nichols had picked his apples and set them carefully in baskets and set them carefully in baskets under the trees.

The Washington police last night broadcast a lookout for the truckload of apples in baskets, believed to have been heading up this way.

Arlington Chest Campaign Opens

The initial gifts division of the Arlington County Community Chest will begin soliciting department stores and large business establishments of Washington today, Mrs. Dorothy Dunn, chairman, announced.

The annual chest campaign, which for the second year will be run independently of the Washington Chest, is scheduled to start October 14 and close November 2. The Arlington Chest this year has three participating agencies, the Boy Scouts, welfare department and social hygiene board.

D. C. Guard Call Begins In November

All Untis Expected To Be Mustered Into Federal Service By January 6

Present plans of the War Department, though tentative and subject to change, call for mustering all units of the District National Guard into the Federal service by January 6.

The 260th Coast Artillery (anti-aircraft) Regiment, first District unit to be called into the United States Army, should be en route to training camp November 22, the day after Thanksgiving, under existing plans, Col. Walter W. Burns, commander of the regiment, said last night.

Meanwhile, a ranking Army officer told The Post that January 6 has been tentatively set as the date for mustering the Twenty-ninth Division, of which the remainder of District Guard outfits are a part. These include the Special Troops, the 121st Engineer Regiment, the First Battalion of the 104th Quartermaster Regiment and the 104th Ordnance Company.

The War Department's schedule for training Guard units as a part of the Army calls for sending the Twenty-ninth Division to Fort Meade, Md., near Baltimore, where one of the Army's mechanized units is based.

The 260th Coast Artillery will be mustered into service November 15 and will remain in the city for about a week before starting for Fort Bliss, Tex., where it will undergo a year's training.

The trip South, Col. Burns said, will be made by motor convoy and will require from three weeks to a month, with the time to be utilized in working out field problems.

The days remaining before officers and men of the 260th become Federal soldiers will be spent in checking over equipment and determining needs in material and arms.

Col. Burns said the regiment is expecting more than 100 vehicles, including 2½-ton and 1½-ton trucks, commercial cars and two radio cars.

Before the Guard leaves for training, it is expected that all members with wives will be discharged. He said it was his policy to excuse from service all men below the rank of captain with dependents and men now attending college whose education, he believes, "shouldn't be interferred with."

Stryker to Address Amateur Movie Makers

Roy Stryker, chief of the picture division of the Farm Security Administration, will speak on "The Use of Pictures in Our Daily Life" at the first fall meeting of the Washington Society of Amateur Cinematographers at 8 p. m. today at the Ambassador Hotel.

A former professor of economics at Columbia University, Stryker gave a course in the use of pictures at American University last year. Kodachrome film will be given to the winner of an 8-millimeter exhibition of movies made by amateur filmers of the club.

Man and Two Sons Ill Of Food Poisoning

Angelo Chipouras, 52, fruit stand operator, 435 Massachusetts avenue northwest, and two sons, Pete, 14, and George, 22, were taken to Casualty Hospital last night after being stricken with food poisoning. It was found necessary only to give them first aid.

His wife and daughter, Catherine, 17—who ate the same Sunday dinner of spaghetti and roast lamb—were affected only slightly. Another daughter, Tessie, 19, felt no ill effects from the meal, she said.

100,000 Here To Be Listed For the Draft

Patriotic and Civic Groups Volunteer To Help Cox in Task

The American Legion, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Federation of Citizens Associations and other patriotic and civic bodies have volunteered their services to aid in the task of registering nearly 100,000 draft-age Washingtonians, Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, the Capital's selective service executive, said last night.

More than 500 citizens, Gen. Cox added, have either volunteered or been recommended for the more than two score key and advisory posts in the city's draft machinery which the National Guard chief is responsible for establishing.

In the task of selecting the personnel of local draft boards, key organizations in the drafting establishment, Gen. Cox is expected to rely on the recommendations of neighborhood leaders. He also will have the assistance of National Guard staff officers whom, he revealed last night, he has been preparing for the job for the past year.

All his recommendations for appointments will go first to the District Commissioners and then to President Roosevelt. Announeement of appointments to the most important posts of assistant executive, disbursing officer and medical assistant is expected to be made when the President signs executive orders setting up the national draft machinery early this week.

Approximately 18 per cent of Washington's population of 663,153 is in the 21-35 draft-age limit, Gen. Cox said. Some adjustment, he stated, may have to be made in plans calling for 19 registration areas based on the draft ages of 21-30 established in the conscription bill as it passed the Senate. Local boards composed of a chairman and two members will be named for each area.

Tipsy Driver Sighted

It happened early yesterday morning. The snappy new sedan careened from one side of the street to the other, struck a parked car, then sped on.

A witness told police he forgot to spot the license number but noticed the driver was "all dressed up in evening clothes." Police were looking for a tipsy playboy. The accident, by the way, happened on Brandywine street northwest.

Youthful Crime Syndicate Smashed in Georgetown

Housewife's Tip Leads to Arrest of Gang Of 6 Boys Aged 12-16; Youngsters Boast Of Ingenuity in Thefts Totaling $200

For weeks Georgetown residents have been subjected to a wave of early evening housebreakings.

In each case only handbags and purses were stolen, other valuable articles neglected.

Acting on a housewife's tip Seventh Precinct Police yesterday had the wave of housebreaking solved with the arrest of one, then another, and finally all six of a youthful crime band, led by a 14-year-old chieftain already on probation.

Proudly the youngsters boasted of ingenious tricks they used in 14 housebreakings, according to detectives who spent the week-end trekking all over Georgetown with the youths to revisit the scenes of their thefts. More than $200 was reported to have been taken in the past two months by the young marauders two of whom are 16, two 14, one 15, and the sixth only 12 years old.

When one victim was confronted by the youngsters she told police her pocketbook contained only two cents.

"That's wrong. There were three cents in it," asserted the self-confessed leader of the gang, who later told police how his young partners in crime mastered the art of cutting through screen doors, jimmying windows, perfecting second-story technique, and plotting means of thievery.

Many of the empty pocketbooks were recovered where they had been discarded, six on the estate of the former U. S. Ambassador to Argentina, Robert Woods Bliss, at 3101 R street northwest. Others were found in sewers and on top of garages.

Conducting the two-month investigation of the housebreakings were Detective Sgts. M. B. Moore and B. E. Thornton, and Precinct Detectives J. P. Meshkoff and J. T. Nash. In some cases the boys would distract housewives at the front door by seeking newspaper subscriptions, while colleagues entered through a rear door, police said.

Another of the sextet besides the leader is on probation for similar offenses. All were released in the custody of their parents, pending appearance in Juvenile Court.

Cabinet Reelected By Endeavor Union In Montgomery

Members of the Montgomery County Christian Endeavor Union unanimously reelected the entire cabinet, including President Ira Ward, at yesterday's annual convention at the Darnestown Presbyterian Church.

Others were Walter Snyder, vice president for upper county; William Watcher, jr., vice president for lower county; Miss Bessie Lee Athey, secretary, and Frank Higgins, jr., treasurer. The Rev. William Campbell installed them.

Special classes were led on "Christian Youth in a World of War and the World Peace Fellowship" by the Rev. Virgil Lilly; "Preparation for Marriage and the Home," Mrs. William Campbell; "Youth and the Alcoholic Problem," the Rev. James Kerr, and other subjects.

Prince Georges Group to Meet

The quarterly meeting of the Ladies of Charity of Prince Georges County will be held Saturday afternoon in St. Ignatius Hall, Oxon Hill, Md.

Guests will include Mrs. Gertrude E. Horrigan, president of the Archdiocese of Baltimore and Washington; the Rev. Joseph Buckley, of Forestville, Md.; the Rev. Richard E. Barron, pastor of Our Lady of Sorrows Church, Takoma Park, and Miss Philemon McCoy, executive secretary of Catholic Charities of Prince Georges County. Mrs. Irene A. Conner will preside.

U. S. Pay Roll Here Hits 138,487

Defense Program And Census Account For Record High Reached in July

Federal employment rolls in the District reached a new high of 138,487 during July, boosted by job, created by the rapidly accelerating national defense program, the Civil Service Commission disclosed last night.

The increase over figures for June of 4,633, or 3.5 per cent, was the largest in recent years. Commission records put the total pay roll of the city's first "industry" at $24,225,906, as compared with a June total of $23,246,874.

One-half of the increase, the commission said, resulted from the defense program. The balance was accounted for by additions to the Census Bureau.

Leading the growth of Federal personnel in the city were the Commerce, War and Navy Departments, the Civil Service Commission and the Council of National Defense. Employment in the Department of Agriculture dropped slightly.

The Federal establishment, in and outside of Washington, added 2,822 persons to its pay rolls in July, or an increase of 1.3 per cent for a total of 1,023,341.

Enrollment Up 10% in Georgetown College of Arts

Freshman Week at the College of Arts and Sciences of Georgetown University, which starts today, brings 270 students from 25 States and the District to the campus, college officials said last night. The number marks an increase of 10 per cent in initial enrollment.

Dr. Leo Bryson Norris, professor of clinical medicine at the university, will discuss "Personal Hygiene" before the class tomorrow, while the Rev. William H. Russell, of Catholic University, will speak on "Mental Hygiene."

Freshmen will confer with upper class advisers throughout the week. Regular sessions at the university begin September 23.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

A Distinguished Author Remembers a Stranger

Clare Boothe Writes Book, Promises Play; Miss Helburn Clarifies 'Twelfth Night;' This, That and the Other About the Theater

PERVERSE CIRCUMSTANCES having conspired to prevent my ever meeting the distinguished lady, it was extremely thoughtful and gracious of her to mail me an advance copy of her breezily written, informative and penetratingly level-headed book of "Europe in Spring"—which, to the best of my knowledge has not as yet reached the bookstalls—accompanied by the following cordial note:

BELL

Dear Mr. Bell: Now here is a little job of mine on the Nazis that you don't have to review. I am sending it to you hoping that if you have the time and inclination to read it, some of it may interest you—although the events of the past few days have blitzkrieged most of it.

Again with many thanks for the kind judgments you have made on my plays in the past. Sincerely yours, (Signed) CLARE BOOTHE.

I confess that I am under a bit of a handicap, at the moment, in offering a full appraisal of the merits of Miss Boothe's courageous and outspoken book. The evening it arrived—Friday, by the calendar—Mr. Dick Coe, the avid bookworm who serves as this department's right hand, preempted the volume, while we were attending to his official business, and read it at one sitting. His ecstatic praises are still ringing to the high heavens.

So far, we have been able to negotiate only about half the distance from cover to cover, but, as far as we have gone, concur with the avaricious Mr. Coe in his every enthusiasm. Miss Boothe is a young woman with clear perceptions, fearlessness and a fine flair for pungent writing. We are grateful to her for her remembrance.

Not the least important portion of Miss Boothe's note took this form: "P. S.—With any luck at all, Alexander King, a one-time editor of Life and now an editor on Stage Magazine, and I will bring into Washington a play called "The Yohimbe Tree," some time in December or January." That is a bit of the best of the news that has come along so far for the new season at the National. We have scored three straight hits for Miss Boothe on our tally sheet and hope we are not popping off out of turn in surmising that this will be the fourth—provided she had anything to do with its writing.

It was over the week-end, too, that Miss Theresa Helburn, guiding genius, with Lawrence Langner, of the Theater Guild, called up long-distance from New York, with tears in her voice and anguish in her heart, that we should have headed a recent story "Theater Guild Kicks Capital Over the Heart" in the matter of "Twelfth Night," the Theater Guild-Gilbert Miller production of the Shakespeare play, costarring Washington's Helen Hayes and Maurice Evans. It all seems to be a matter of another of those unpredictable vagaries of the booking offices.

First and foremost, Miss Helburn tells me, "Twelfth Night" is not canceled from the National's list of Theater Guild-American Theater Society subscription plays for the current season. We explained that our point was predicated upon the impression spread in Washington that the Hayes-Evans vehicle would appear here prior to New York, thus affording the National Capital one of its too-few opportunities for unbridled gloating. The Guild has been after a week at the National since the project started, according to Miss Helburn, but the right one cannot be secured.

If "Twelfth Night" can be brought here before it enters New York, it will be. If not, it will come after the Broadway engagement. Above all, Miss Helburn resents the suggestion that the Theater Guild is, or has any intention of, violating its obligations to its faithful Washington subscribers. That is something it never, has done and never will do.

I trust that makes the matter clear from both sides.

You may not have heard of it, but Tyrone Power also appears in "The Return of Frank James," the new Technicolor production, opening Thursday at Loew's Palace. He isn't even included in the billing. But, in the opening sequence he is seen with his back to the camera, being slaughtered, as he was, in the final sequences of "Jesse James," in which he starred. After that, Henry Fonda and Jackie Cooper take up the burden of the work.

Sidney C. Hoffman, manager of the Colony Theater, writes in to say that you probably will be interested to know that his playhouse, out Georgia avenue way, has been completely reseated with the most luxurious orchestra chairs known to the film-gazing business—large, opulent and widely spaced.

A letter from Ray Bell, formerly of the local Loew interests and now attached to the New York offices of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, tips off all and sundry to watch for "Willie," a kid cast with Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland in "Strike Up the Band." Ray says he is a "comer," or he personally, is a dud as a talent scout. The lad's real name, it seems, is Larry Nunn. Ray has made few mistakes, up to now.

Too-Hot-to-Handle Note

Royal Bombing And Roosevelt Trans-Lux Tops

Diversified Supporting Bill Rounds Out a Superlative Program

Between the pictures of the bombing of Buckingham Palace and President Roosevelt's talk to labor there are sandwiched in, at the Trans-Lux Theater for the current week, some of the finest news shots ever filmed.

For example, there are scenes from the halls of Congress as conscription legislation is speeded; inspection of the Eastern aircraft plants by Chairman Knudson; British refugee children already in United States schools, and most thrilling of all the ruthless bombing of Chungking as the Japs close the Indo-China trade routes.

In the world of sports there are the National Rifle matches; a Salmon fishing derby; shots of the Marble-Jacobs Tennis Championship match, and the football practice play of the teams of Tennessee, Texas, Notre Dame, Colby and Army.

Mr. Lehr at His Peak

Lew Lehr rolls them in the aisles with his description of a hog-rolling contest.

Among the short subject films there is a delightful musical number played by the National Philharmonic Orchestra, from Verdi's opera "Aida." "Steamlined" tells the story of the romance of railroading, and "Hurdle Hoppers" gives the crack United States Army Cavalry boys an opportunity to do their stuff at Fort Riley.

Leisen's Apartment Is Among Missing

To the long list of Hollywood film players and executives who are worried over the fate of relatives and friends now in Europe, Director Mitchell Leisen, of Paramount, added a serio-comic touch.

For Leisen, ironically now directing "Arise My Love," with Claudette Colbert and Ray Milland in starring roles, which has a Parisian background, finds that the apartment which he has maintained for years is among the "missing." It is located in the heart of Paris and contains many valuable antiques.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Sept. 15.

TRAVEL DEPT.: William F. Carey, former head of Madison Square Garden, and now Commissioner of Sanitation, was born in Hoosick Falls, N. Y. Carey is proud of his birthplace, and spreads its name wherever he goes . . . While returning, on a train, from a Western trip, his companions asked him about his early days, and Carey told them about Hoosick Falls. "We never heard of that place," they confessed . . . "Never heard of it?" Carey exploded. "It's one of the most important cities in America. Everybody knows about Hoosick Falls" . . . At the next stop, Carey approached the news vender on the train, tipped him, and delivered to him two copies of the Hoosick Falls Sentinel. The news vender agreed to follow Carey's instructions . . . Carey returned to his seat, and the news vender came through the train, shouting: "Get your papers: New York Times, Chicago Tribune, Denver Post, Hoosick Falls Sentinel!" . . . Oh, boy," Carey ordered, "give me a Sentinel."

LYONS

MOVIES DEPT.: William Wyler, the movie director, was in Lindy's telling of his early days in Hollywood, when he went to work for Universal Films. Carl Laemmle, head of the company, delivered to all employes a form-card marked "What Wrong with Universal?" and requested all of them, without signing their names, to write their suggestions on these cards, and drop them into a box . . . Wyler believed that this was only a whim on Laemmle's part, and so he wrote: "Why don't you get rid of that no-talented Wyler?" Then he dropped his anonymous card into the box—and the next day he almost was fired.

PSYCHOLOGY DEPT.: Laemmle brought Prof. Walter B. Pitkin, of Columbia, to Hollywood with a contract to apply his thorough knowledge of psychology to the motion picture industry. Pitkin's job was to read the film stories in advance of production, and then tell the Universal producers and directors exactly what stories and scenes would be successful with audiences—audiences whose psychological reactions he had studied . . . Prof. Pitkin's first lecture was made in the lunchroom, at 1 o'clock. He spoke for two hours, but made no impression upon the restless, fidgety producers and directors. The psychological theories he adduced were perfect, but he had forgotten that his audience had had no food since breakfast.

FINANCE DEPT.: Norman Light, genial manager of the Imperial Theater, was enamoured of a young show-girl. Their romance was disrupted. Then he read, in a column, that she was being courted by a Detroit millionaire whose name was mentioned. It took two weeks of research, among bankers, brokers and cafe owners, for Norman to secure his revenge. He met the girl, and asked her about her millionaire. She admitted his attentions. "And he has millions?" asked Light . . . She nodded . . . "He's writen you letters?" Light continued . . . "Yes," she assured . . . "Then you'll surely be able to identify his handwriting," said Light—and showed her a $50 check issued by that man, marked "Insufficient Funds."

BUSINESS DEPT.: Artie Shaw, now completing a movie with Fred Astaire, brought this idea to the producers. Shaw wanted an unusual movie short screened—which would be a distinct novelty in pictures. There would be scenes such as these: A motorist telling a cop. "But you just can't give me a ticket for speeding. I have influence." The cop thereupon tears up the summons . . . Another scene would have a husband telling his wife: "But I refuse to wash the dishes. I won't do it." The next shot shows the wife washing them . . . The final scene would show a prisoner screaming. "But you can't put me in jail. You can't do it." The next shot would show him free.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Sept. 15 (INS).—For some reason the whole town has been bidding like mad for "One Foot in Heaven"—the life of a practical parson, by Hartzell Spence, a newspaper man. The biography, based on the author's father, will be published in October and after Jack Warner purchased it he was so excited that he decided to search among the clergy for his leading man. Isn't that something? A Methodist minister as a movie actor? Warners are searching the highways and byways to find a William H. Spence, the subject of a biography—a man who, according to his son, was ardent in his devotion to the Methodist discipline and outspoken in his efforts in behalf of tolerance and honest living.

PARSONS

If ever there was a hexed Hollywood career it was Phyllis Brooks'. She tiffed with Twentieth Century-Fox and walked out just about the time she and Cary Grant broke their long engagement. Then RKO signed her and didn't cast her in a single picture for a year. Poor Phyllis was really discouraged when she went back East to try her luck in summer stock—but now maybe the blight is lifted. Today RKO wired her to return immediately for one of the best parts in Harold Lloyd's "Three Girls and a Gob."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Our new judge, J. F. T. O'Connor, is entertaining Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy as his house guest; Binnie Barnes and Mike Frankovich La Congaing. They'll soon be wed. The little blue-eyed, fair-skinned dancer, Raquel, who dances with Parriba at the La Conga, is the daughter of the late Dr. Hugo Reisenfeld; the little baby the Nat Deveriches adopted passed away last week; Claudette Colbert's mother slipped and broke her foot and will be laid up for some weeks; Natalie Draper, who is so pretty, at Ciro's with John McLean.

Hope Loring Lighton, out after many months of illness, with the Robert Montgomerys at Ciro's; Sally Eilers, who, for my money, is one of the very prettiest girls in our town, with Townsend Netcher, Rita Johnson and a party of friends also at the popular Ciro's; Mrs. Raoul Walsh had her daughter Marilyn with her and everyone at Ciro's commented on the child's beauty and what a bet she would be for Warner and it looks to me as if his suspension will soon end; one of our well known movie stars has more cousins! Every time a pretty girl comes on the set he introduces her as his cousin; Miriam Hopkins has been taking skating lessons for the Mrs. Leslie Carter role.

Kendell and Lewis Milestone entertained with a large party, honoring Lady Mendl, and Charles Chaplin made one of his rare social appearances. He's so busy these days, getting "The Great Dictator" ready, he scarcely leaves the studio; the Fred Brisson-Rosalind Russell romance really looks serious. Saw them dancing at Ciro's. Wish Rosalind would wear her hair as she did in the play "Tonight At 8:30." Bart Marshall came over to our table and I never heard anyone receive so many compliments on the sketch he did at the El Capitan.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Gayety

Miss Scarlette Kelly, of the Dayton, Ohio, Kellys' and a newcomer here, is house guest at Manager Ferber's Gayety Theater this week.

Scarlette's first name might imply she is a red-head, but the lass is a stunning blonde, petite in stature, and possesses a million-dollar smile. Miss Kelly's musical specialities and beauty parades are somewhat unusual in presentation.

Fred "Falls" Binder and Jack Rosen, two steller comedians, contribute much mirth and merriment to the production. The boys employ a good deal of slapstick comedy, but it's the type which proves highly amusing and, after all, that's what counts at the box office. Dick Richards is another funster whose dry humor finds favor with the audience.

The distaff portion of the bill, aside from Miss Kelly, has such beauties as Blonde Margie White; the dark-eyed and alluring Princess Aloha; Pat Paige, who renders valuable assistence to Messrs. Binder and Rosen, and Vanesse, a lass with more than average talent in several difficult and effective dance numbers.

Denny Lyons and Jimmy Francis are two lads who deserve credit for their excellent performances. Lyons is not only a fine straight man and musician, but offers "Oscar" in a ventriloquist number which is exceptionally good. Francis, a veteran of the profession, is at his best in this week's bill. ART JOHN.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Sept. 15.

On the "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" set, Carole Lombard looked like a million in a black velvet pajama coat, over black satin and white polka-dotted pajamas. She, Bob Montgomery and Alfred Hitchcock are like a trio of happy clams. Hitchy's getting so proud of his figure, now that he's taken off 30 pounds in nine weeks, and when I asked for his diet, he said, "Don't be silly—I just stopped eating, which is the only self-control I've used in my whole life." Hitchy's dressing room trailer sports a sign which reads, "Mr. Hitchcock's Corral."

HOPPER

Bill Perlberg was one happy man when "City for Conquest" turned out a smash hit. Bill bought the yarn for Harry Cohn at Columbia. Harry turned it down, sold it to Warners, and now Bill's saying, "See? I told you so." The picture proves again that Jimmy Cagney can play anything, and that Ann Sheridan can not only dance but act.

They've got a couple of newcomers from the New York Group Theater who are going places. First one is Arthur Kennedy. He has romantic appeal. This is his first picture, so what's he playing now? A hardboiled gangster in "High Sierra." Elia Kazan is also from the Group and not nearly as good-looking, but reminiscent in many ways of that unsheathed villainy on the screen we've come to associate with George Raft.

Incidentally, Kennedy is the only actor I know who took a college course and came out an actor. He studied dramatics for four years at Carnegie Tech. Max Steiner's music suggested Gershwin, which didn't distract from your enjoyment one whit.

Connie Bennett's calmed down considerable since the blow-up she had with Director John Brahm. So the other day when he was sneezing all over the place she sent for some pills which had always helped her. When they came, she rushed the bottle over to him, and the whole company shouted, "Stop! Don't take 'em—they're poison!" Yes, even Connie laughed.

It's Maria Korda, Alexander's ex, who's bringing Maurice Maeterlinck to Hollywood. I don't know what for—Zanuck's already done "The Bluebird."

That underslung white, purring, $8,000 car Publicist Alan Gordon drives around town has been doubling in brass, driving Linda Darnell, Lana Turner and Lois Andrews. Daily is stands outside his office—tourists lean against it while they snap pictures. But the height of something or other was reached the other day when a pair of newlyweds came in to his office and asked if they might drive it across the street to Ciro's and be photographed in the car with that background!

As their first step toward working out producing plans, Mary Pickford and Buddy Rogers have put under contract that genius of settings, lightings and practically everything pertaining to pictures, William Cameron Menzies, who's now been loaned out to Alexander Korda for "Lady Hamilton."

The Eddie Ribinsons gave a different kind of party in their garden the other day—a fencing bout, with some of the finest fencers, male and female, in the whole country. Duris DeYoung, an expert, made it very interesting by explaining the fine points as he watched the exhibition. At the finish, Nelson Eddy took up a foil and went after DeYoung, who lunged once, and Nelson was on the ground singing, "Somebody get me a horse—I can ride a horse!"

Poor Harold Ickes—shoe's on the other foot. Hollywood doesn't seem very interested in helping him with his propaganda picture called "Hydro"—which is all about dams—Hollywood hasn't forgotten that he charged our companies from $50 to $500 a day to use our national parks for location background.

Peter Lorre calls Kay Kyser "the poor man's Basil Rathbone."

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Detroit, Sept. 15.—Who wants an American League pennant? There's one going begging, chums. Four teams have been kicking it around as if the thing had a communicable disease. Indications are the pennant won't be won at all—it will just light somewhere and some American League team will find itself in the World Series.

POVICH

The pennant has already been tossed off at different times this season by four clubs—the Red Sox, the Indians, the Tigers and the Yanks. At least they haven't done much about winning it after finding themselves in the lead at various times. There is reason to believe that none of 'em deserve to win it. At any rate it will finally be won by the lowest total of victories that has turned the trick in many years.

The Red Sox were the first club to let it get away. Back in May and June the Boston team was making a runaway of the race. Today the Red Sox will be lucky to finish in the first division. They folded like a Balkan country hit by a Nazi ultimatum. Joe Cronin's pitching not only soured, but curdled. The surprising feature of the Red Sox season is how they happened to get so far in front in the first place.

The Indians, who succeeded the Red Sox in the lead, dashed out in front by six and a half games and looked as if they would breeze in. But at the time, we didn't know the Indians. They chucked it. Late last month when a couple of victories would have given Cleveland an unbeatable lead, they seized their opportunity about as resolutely as they'd grab a wildcat. They nose-dived into second place, losing nine of their next 11 games.

The Tigers have had a fling at it. They were lifted on top by the Cleveland backwash and were going pretty good. The Yankees came to Detroit as a new threat and the Tigers bumped 'em off two in a row. In the third game of the series, the Tigers hopped out in front, 4 to 0, behind Buck Newsom and here was their chance to definitely lay the Yankee threat. Another victory over the Yanks would put 'em four games behind the lead and out of it. And what happened? Newsom and the Tigers blew their four-run lead and put the Yanks back in the race.

A month ago, Yankee courage began to assert itself and Joe McCarthy's club started charging on the leaders. It was an inspiring upsurge that carried the Yanks to within a half-game of the lead after they had beaten Bob Feller in the first game of a double-header at Cleveland last week. If they could win the second game, they would take the undisputed league lead. And they blew it, to ancient Al Smith who licked 'em when Feller couldn't.

The Yanks sort of reestablished themselves yesterday by pounding out a 16-7 victory over the Tigers and there still appeared to be hope for 'em. They moved to St. Louis for a three-game series with the Browns and promptly took a 10-5 licking today, and are still three games out of the lead when a victory would have moved them up to a striking position.

The team that is far and away the most picturesque club of 'em all—and now the popular favorite—is the White Sox. Jimmy Dykes' collection of nondescripts have won eight in a row and suddenly find themselves a pennant contender, only 4 games out of it. That would be the romantic victory—Chicago's. The haul may be too great, but the possibilities are distinctly there.

The White Sox, at least, aren't muffing it. Any pennant they might win, they'll deserve. Dykes' team is acting like a club that has suddenly discovered there isn't a hell of a lot to beat in this league and has decided to go out and take it all. If it is a question of courage in the stretch, they may do it. They have the fans' best wishes from Coast to Coast.

In any event, the American League contender in the 1940 World Series will be the underdog for the first time since 1933, when the National League Giants went against the Nats as the betting favorites. The Cincinnati Reds, functioning like champions, appear fit to beat any American League contender.

The Indians have pitching, but they can't hit, and they haven't proved their courage yet. The Tigers get tolerable pitching and do hit, but you have to see that spavined Detroit infield to properly depreciate it. Gehringer, Bartell and Higgins recalleth the Ancient Mariner "who stoppeth one of three." The Yankees, with only one .300 hitter, are merely masquerading as Yankees. It's not much of a league, chums.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

Washington, Sept. 15.—In response to our recent query on how Whizzer White became the property of the Detroit Lions we have at hand two clarifying messages from Art Rooney, White's former employer at Pittsburgh, and Tommy Emmet, the Lions' publicity department.

CONSIDINE

"At the close of the 1938 season George Richards, then owner of the Detroit club, asked me if I would take $10,000 for White," Rooney writes. "I didn't expect White to play but I accepted his offer. White went to Oxford—and I lost the ten thousand. The war caused White to come back to America, and I tried to get him to play for us. But he decided to go to Yale.

"Tim Mara, owner of the Giants, then asked my permission to contact White and I gave him the permission. I don't know what took place between him and White. But after our April meeting the Detroit club asked for permission to make a try at signing White. I told him about giving Tim the permission and that I would ask Tim if he had given up on Whizzer. Tim asked me to wait another week until he tried once again. After a couple of weeks Tim informed me to let Detroit try to get White, and I told Detroit to go ahead on the deal. My price for White was $5,000, which Fred Mandel, the new owner of the Lions, sent to me.

"What took place between White and Mandel is beyond my knowledge. I do not know what Mandel did to get White to play. But in your column you asked, '... Is White collateral for a loan from Mandel to Rooney?' My only answer to that is that I do not know Mandel well enough yet to put the bite on him. Maybe I could use Brumbaugh or maybe Condit as collateral for a little bite on you."

Emmet points out that the story of the deal was properly publicized at the time. And that one of the things that brought White to Detroit was that "White has always had a soft spot in his heart for Detroit. This came about because of Earl Dutch Clark, a Colorado product and an idol of White when the Whizzer was in high school in Wellington, Calif., and the Dutchman was playing for Colorado College. Clark played five years for the Lions.

"The first person to talk to White about playing post-graduate football was not Rooney, but Clark. Despite the fact that Clark, then coach of the Lions, and Richards, the owner then, knew they would never get White in the draft, they hoped by having him sign with a club like Pittsburgh or Philadelphia they might be able to negotiate a deal.

"Selling White on the idea of returning to football was not done overnight. Mandel spent a lot of time on the Whizzer before he signed the contract. He had made arrangements with Rooney to negotiate with White last February."

Which clarifies everything except Mara's expostulating surprise over the deal and his belief that he got a royal run-around.

Dick Chapman, the new amateur golf champ, trained almost a year for the tournament. A gay boy who shocked his rich family some time back by becoming a night club singer, Chapman went on the wagon last October and announced his intention of winning the 1940 championship. He played little or no tournament golf during the ensuing months, but spent many hours practicing. He turned himself over to Craig Wood, winged foot's famed pro, and Wood simplified his swing, straightened him out and gave him a pro's philosophy of hitting positively.

A special diet kept his weight up to standard. He went into the tournament blazing hot and never cooled off. He was 8 under par for 157 holes of tournament play, was 4 under for the last 27—against Finalist McCullough—won the medal with a 36-hole total of 140 knocks, one short of the record for the tournament, finished a total of 32 up on his six opponents and gave McCullough the worst beating any finalist has taken since the first tournament in 1895.

And if you don't believe he's a wotta-man, his estranged second wife wife followed him all through the tournament. But Chapman walked with his new girl, strolling hand in hand with her down the fairways during the finals.

The reason Oscar Vitt did not quit in disgust when his team bellyached to Alva Bradley was that he will get a fat bonus on all the admissions the Indians take in over a specified number this year. Naturally he wanted to be around until the end, no matter how untenable his position was. He will return to the Yankee farm system next year and will be succeeded by Luke Sewell, who in turn will be succeeded by the prophet Job.

Tribe Trims Macks Twice to Regain Lead

Feller Hurls Two-Hit Ball To Win, 5-0

Cleveland Takes Nightcap by 8 to 5; Fireball Bobby Has No-Hitter Until 8th

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Sept. 15.—Cleveland pennant stock took a spirited jump on the American League Bourse today as the Indians knocked Connie Mack's athletics over in both ends of a bargain bill to regain the leadership by a full game.

Fireballer Bob Feller turned in a matserful two-hitter to blank Philadelphia in the opener, 5 to 0, and the Tribe overcame a four-run deficit to capture the afterpiece, 8 to 5.

The Indians' Sunday slam before 26,039 enthusiastic customers allowed them to jump from a half game behind to a full contest ahead of the losing Detroit Tigers, and gave Cleveland its fifth triumph in six starts.

Feller, whose pitching opposition was Southpaw Porter Vaughan, also 21 years old, retired the first 22 men in order and was threatening to post the second no-hitter of his brilliant career when Dick Siebert appeared on the stage as the man with the long moustaches. With one out in the eighth, Siebert hit a pitch on the handle and it popped just over Ray Mack at second base. The infielder leaped in a desperate effort to make a catch, but missed by about a foot. Ironically, Siebert was the villian whose handle-hit over Mack also spoiled a no-hitter for Feller in the eighth inning of a game at Philadelphia July 12.

Hayes Gets Jeff Heath

The Athletics collected another hit in the ninth as Frankie Hayes singled to left field, Jeff Heath getting his glove on the ball trying for a shoestring catch. Otherwise Feller's mastery was complete as he hurled his twenty-fifth win of the year; against nine losses. He didn't walk a man—the second suih performanie of his career—and he fanned seven.

The Indians won the game for Feller with three runs in the fourth on as many hits and two walks. Lou Boudreau and Hal Trosky led off with passes from Vaughan, Beau Bell bunted to force Boudreau, and Ken Keltner singled for the first Cleveland hit, clogging the bases. Ray Mack brought in two men with a single over second and Rollie Hemsley's double sent Keltner home. That was all Cleveland needed, although the Indians scored twice later.

A Moore Contribution to Opening Redskin Victory

On one of the few chances he got to carry the ball for the locals, Wilbur Moore (35) is shown making a sizable gain in the fourth quarter of yesterday's Redskin-Dodger game at Griffith Stadium. Dick Cassiano, former Pitt star, is all ready to pull Moore down from the rear

Baugh and Filchock Spark Team to Three Scores, Field Goal; McFadden Also Stars

Football fever struck Washington amidships yesterday as the Redskins opened their National League campaign with a 24-to-17 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers and an offensive display which broadcast a hint that they'll be the strongest club in the Eastern division in 1940.

A throng of 32,763—slightly less than a record opening day crowd—stormed into Griffith Stadium to see the Redskins go into the game a 3-to-1 favorite over the supposedly rejuvenated Dodgers and emerge victorious by the skin of their teeth after a second-half attack of overconfidence.

While the Redskins and the Dodgers both covered most ground through the air and utilized passes in all their touchdowns, it was neither a Skin nor a Dodger who completed the first pass.

Sonja Henie, recent bride of Dodger Owner Dan Topping, made the first completion with a pass from the field stands to a huddle of players after Jesse Jones, new Secretary of Commerce, invited her to take over the honor of throwing out the first ball. He had been scheduled to toss out the ball in the first burst of opening game fanfare.

The boys from Brooklyn, with 18 new men among them, were revealed as little more than a toothless organization at this stage of the season despite their second-half comeback that almost nullified the Skins' lead.

Russell Kicks 3-Pointer

It took the Redskins just six plays—four of them passes—to score after receiving the opening kickoff. The second time they handled the ball they made it 10 to 0 on Bo Russell's 25-yard field goal. One punt later, Erny Pinckert made a shoestring interception of Ace Parker's pass on the Dodger 43 and in two plays—one a 37-yard pass from Frank Filchock to Bob McChesney—the Redskins were off to the races with a 17-to-0 advantage.

But this state of affairs didn't remain intact long, for as the second half got underway the Red-

Browns Trip Yanks Twice, 10 to 5, 2 to 1

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Sept. 15.—The Giant-killing St. Louis Browns threw the heetic American League pennant race into further confusion today by giving the world champion New York Yankees a double drubbing, 10 to 5, and 2 to 1, before the largest Brownie daytime crowd in 12 years.

The twin setback not only jolted the Yanks' hopes of annexing a fifth straight pennant, but reduced their third-place margin to a mere half game over the White Sox, who won twice from Boston.

Joe Grace's home run with Bob Swift on base in the fifth inning against Ernie Bonham, New York's sensational young right hander, sufficed to capture the second game for Elden Auker, after the Brownies, usually at their best against first division clubs, had slugged their way to the first game decision back of knuckle-baller Johnny Niggeling.

The Yankees got to Auker for a total of eight hits, but he kept them well spaced and was given spectacular defensive support. Bonham yielded only five hits in the six innings he worked.

A double by Joe DiMaggio, who yielded ground to Ripper Radcliff in their close race for batting honors, set up the lone New York run in the ninth inning. Joe got a single, double and home run in five times at bat in the opener, but failed in the clutch in the night-cap—fouling out with the bases loaded in the sixth.

The Brownies made every one of their 11 hits count in the first game, mixing them up with three New York errors and four of the eight bases on balls dished out by Yankee hurlers for their ten runs.

Kansas City Wins 2d Flag in Row

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 15 (AP).—The Kansas City Blues pocketed their second successive pennant today as the American Association closed its thirty-ninth season with the Columbus Red Birds, well down in second division in June, winding up in second place.

Minneapolis finished third, a game and a half behind Columbus, while Louisville, last year's "Little World Series" victor, was fourth.

The preliminary Governor's Cup play-offs start Tuesday night, with Louisville at Columbus and Minneapolis at Kansas City. Two games will be played in each city. The teams will move to Louisville and Minneapolis for three games, then return to the original parks for any games needed to decide the best four-out-of-seven winner.

Leonard Gives 6 Hits, Nats Beat Tigers, 6-1

York's Homer in Second Only Run by Detroit As It Drops Into Second Place; Washington Chases Hutchinson; Bloodworth Homers

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

Detroit, Sept. 15.—Large Dutch Leonard threw nine innings of grief at the Detroit Tigers and 21,130 Detroit fans this afternoon, toppling the Tigers out of the lead into second place.

He held them to six hits and beat 'em, 6 to 1. It was strictly dog-in-the-manger stuff by the Nats, who, 21 games out of the league, unfeelingly dragged the Tigers down a notch.

The Detroit defeat, coincident with a double victory by Cleveland over the Athletics, rearranged the league standings, which now show the Indians to be leading the league by a full game.

Hutchinson Chased

Luring the Tigers into attacking his knuckle ball, Leonard held them tight in the grip of scoreless pitching after the second inning, in which a home run by Rudy York—his twenty-eighth of the year—produced the Tigers' only scoring effort. York's homer was the only extra-base hit Leonard permitted.

Krakky to Face Newsom Today; Tigers Seek Lead

Detroit, Sept. 15.—In a frenzy to regain the league lead, the Tigers tomorrow will send Buck Newsom against the Nats. Newsom was knocked out of the box in five innings yesterday by the Yankees and will pitch out of turn.

It will be Newsom vs. Joe Krakauskas in the second game of the series. Krakauskas, restored to a starting role, beat the Yankees in his last start after several clever relief performances.

Steelers Tie Giants, 10-10, Before 18,601

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Sept. 15.—The Pittsburgh Steelers and the New York Giants, of the National Professional Football League, battled to a 10-to-10 draw today in a thrilling tussle under a warm September sun at Forbes Field.

The crowd of 18,601 was given plenty of fast action as the Steelers, who deadlocked the Chicago Cardinals at 7-to-7 last week, started today with surprising strength only to slow down before the Giants' offensive and record no better than a second consecutive Sabbath day tie.

Sensational passing sorties, a desperate and successful goal line stand by the home team in the final moments of the fast first quarter, a beautiful 48-yard field goal from placement by Armand Niccolai, Steeler right tackle, and another from 31 yards that tied the score in the final period marked the contest.

The underdog Steelers uncorked a long-promised offensive, so sadly lacking a week ago, and scored a touchdown on a 26-yard forward pass from Billy Patterson to Lou Tomassetti just seven plays after the opening whistle. Niccolai con-

Slingin' Sam Back In Form That Won Team World's Title

By Jack Munhall.

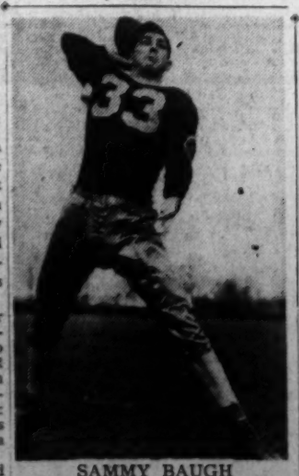
Mixing capable ball carrying with brilliant passing and flavoring the concoction with one of the greatest punting performances ever seen in Griffith Stadium, Slingin' Sammy Baugh yesterday made a sensational return to his form of 1937 that carried the Redskins to the world's professional title.

Completely free of injuries for perhaps the first time in three seasons, Sweetwater's contribution to the football world accomplished the following things as Washington turned in a convincing 24—17 victory over a strong Brooklyn eleven:

1. Averaged better than 50 yards on three punts which included a crucial 57-yard quick-kick.

2. Completed 11 of 14 forward passes, among them a 41-yard touchdown heave to Eddie Justice for the astonishing percentage of .706.

3. Carried the ball twice to pick up a total of 16 yards and 'quarterbacked' the team skillfully from his position at left halfback.



SAMMY BAUGH

Baugh, starting the final season of his three-year contract with the Washington club, was the cause of

Sutherland Says Sweetwater Star Never Played Better

Coach Ray Flaherty's greatest post-game rejoicing. Even more significant to Flaherty than the victory over Brooklyn was the knowledge that Baugh is ready for a great season.

With Andy Farkas, the Redskins' most dangerous ball carrying threat out of the line-up for an indefinite period and with Dick Todd showing to no outstanding advantage as Farkas' replacement, Flaherty more than ever before must rely on the magic of Baugh's right arm and toe.

No longer Jour and considerably more accessible and talkative than when he was piloting University of Pittsburgh elevens to an amazing record in college football, Sutherland declared in the dressing room

Walters Wins 20th With 5-Hit Effort; Mates Register 16 Safeties in 1st Clash

By International News Service

New York, Sept. 14.—The league-leading Reds took Brooklyn, 13 to 3, in the first game of a double-header before 35,000 fans today and then battled the second-place Dodgers to a 1 to 1 stalemate which was called at the end of the eleventh frame because of darkness.

Bucky Walters held Brooklyn to a single for six rounds and then coasted along with the greatest of ease, giving up only five blows, including Joe Medwick's seventeenth homer of the season. It was Bucky's twentieth victory of the season and sent Cincinnati nine games ahead in the National League pennant race.

Blasting Curt Davis off the hill in the first with a four-run rally, the Reds cuffed four Brooklyn pitchers for 16 hits, including a homer by Jimmy Ripple.

The afterpiece was a pitchers' duel, Paul Derringer held Brooklyn for eight innings before he weakened in the ninth to allow the Dodgers to score one run and tie the score. The Reds picked up a run off Luke Hamlin, who was relieved by Whitlow Wyatt in the ninth, in the second frame. Wyatt finished the contest.

Cards Defeat Phillies Twice

Philadelphia, Sept. 15.—St. Louis today bowled over the last-place Phillies in both ends of a double-header, 7 to 0 and 3 to 1.

Fiddler Bill McGee and Enos Slaughter combined their talents to give the third-place Cardinals the opener. McGee blanked the Phillies on three hits and Slaughter paced a five-run seventh-inning rally with a homer with the bases full.

In the nightcap the Cards teed off on Rookie Podgajny for two runs in the first inning to sew up the contest. Podgajny pitched creditable ball until the eighth when he was replaced by Masterson. Bob Bowman went the distance and gave up seven safeties to receive credit for the win.

Dizzy Scores Again as Cubs And Bees Split

Comebacking Dean Wins Nightcap, 7-4; Boston Takes 1st, 7-3

By International News Service

Boston, Sept. 15.—Jerome (Dizzy) Dean stayed on the victory trail today as he toppled the Boston Bees, 7 to 4, after the Chicago Cubs dropped the twin-bill opener, 7 to 3.

Staging a major league comeback after a tenure in the minors because of an arm ailment, Dean flashed his old-time form as he allowed the Bees nine hits. He struck out one batter and did not allow a walk.

After his mates gave him a six-run lead, Dean let up and the Bees tallied twice in the second frame on five hits. It was the only bad inning Dean had.

In the opener, Manny Salvo racked up his tenth win of the season as he held the Cubs to seven bingles. Shortstop Eddie Miller led the Bees' attack with four hits.

'Bargain Basement' Boys Win, 5-1 and 4-2, To Stretch Victory Streak to Eight Games; Lyons Gives 3 Hits in Opener; Kuhel Is Star

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Jimmy Dykes' "bargain basement" White Sox continued their upward surge in the American League's mad pennant race today with a double victory over the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 1 and 4 to 2, before 39,191 howling spectators.

The Sox now have won eight in a row and 15 of their last 18 games. It was "Ted Lyons Day" and the 39-year-old veteran, after receiving gifts and cash totaling $4,500, took the mound and turned in a three-hit performance. Joe Kuhel's tenth inning home run broke a 2-2 tie in the nightcap.

Lyons deserved a shutout in the opener, but Luke Appling's error in the first inning coupled with two singles enabled Boston to produce its only run. After that frame the Red Sox got only one hit and went down in order in seven of the nine innings. The White Sox tied the score in the third when Bob Kennedy singled and scored on Lyons' double. Chicago went ahead with two runs in the fourth and sewed up the game with two more in the fifth.

In the second game the White Sox forged ahead on three singles and a walk for a 2-0 lead. Ted Williams' single and Bobby Doerr's double in the fifth produced the visitors' first run. The second came in the eighth when Dom DiMaggio stole second, went to third on Tom Turner's bad throw to second and scored on Mike Kreevich's error.

The game remained a stalemate until the tenth when Turner singled with one out and Kuhel drove a hard line drive into the rightfield stands for his twenty-fourth homer.

Aknustic Four Wins National Polo Crown

By the Associated Press

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Stewart Iglehart gave one of the most brilliant exhibitions of polo ever seen on International Field today, but it wasn't quite good enough to whip Ebby Gerry's well-balanced outfit as Aknusti defeated Great Neck 5 to 4 to win the National Open Championship.

Iglehart, one of the world's two active 10-goal players, scored two of Great Neck's goals, harassed Aknusti on almost every play and easily justified his ranking but his mates were unable to come close to his fine playing before the crowd of 15,000.

Birmingham Nine Beats Pittsburgh For Amateur Title

By the Associated Press

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 15.—The Birmingham Acipco's team slammed out 18 hits today to defeat Pittsburgh, 10-to-2, and win the world's series of the National Amateur Baseball Federation.

Acipco's vitcory today was its eighth in succession in tournament play, and followed a 5-to-0 defeat by Dayton, Ohio, in the first round.

Jimmy Thomas, the tall right-hander, who was the loser against Dayton, held Pittsburgh to eight hits today and shut them out except in the fourth inning, when Hilker's triple and singles by J. Barlow and Bender produced two runs.

The two clubs, as the tournament finalists, were playing a two-out-of-three series, but Acipco took the first game yesterday, 7-to-2.

The victory was the first for any Southern team in N. A. B. F. annals. Birmingham teams lost in the finals in 1934 and 1939.

Pirates Beat Giants Twice, 10-3 and 4-3

Five-Game Losing Streak Ends; Homers Feature First Clash

By the Associated Press

New York, Sept. 15.—Two teams with five-game losing streaks collided today and the Pittsburgh Pirates ended theirs at the expense of the New York Giants with a doubleheader triumph, 10 to 3 and 4 to 3.

Besides losing seven straight, the Giants now have lost 16 of their last 20 games and today dropped into sixth place in the National League.

The nightcap was decided in the ninth inning on a single by Floyd (Pep) Young, scoring Vince DiMaggio, who had walked. Each team was held to seven hits and all the other runs of the game came through homers — for Pittsburgh Elbie Fletcher's sixteenth and Debs Garms' fifth with one on; for New York Babe Young's seventeenth and Mel Ott's seventeenth, the latter with one on.

The first game was a runaway with the Pirates paddling three pitchers for 15 hits behind the eight-hit hurling of Rip Sewell, who acquired his fifteenth victory against three defeats.

ARGYLE

Mrs. Ed Widmayer captured the Argyle Women's Club Championship with a 3 and 1 victory over Mrs. Clifford Scoggins in the title round. Mrs. Widmayer was three up at the turn and protected her lead on the back nine. The new champion thus ended Mrs. Richard Mothershead's three-year reign as champion, having defeated the three-time titlist, 5 and 4, in the semifinals.

The feature quarter-final match of the Argyle men's tournament, between Maury Cooper and Tony Willmett, was postponed until next Saturday. Fred Murray reached the semifinals with a 1-up victory over Richard Mothershead in a mild upset while others to reach the round of four were W. S. Lephew and M. W. Whittlesey.

Championship Flight

Tony Willmett and Maury Cooper will play Saturday; M. W. Whittlesey defeated Serge Benson, 6 and 5; Fred Murray defeated Richard Mothershead, 1 up; W. S. Lephew defeated Nolan Gibson, 3 and 2.

Post Grad... By Jack Munhall

FROM TENNESSEE RELEASE ON BACK BOB FOXX.

"Fighting, fleet-footed, fervent, flashy, ferocious, flexuous Foxx figures for the finest fomentation of football fanaticism with the Tennessee Volunteers in 1940.—Do you mean he's good, bub?

In most every college football camp at this time are senior players who until now have been bitter disappointments, but who are destined to suddenly blossom out and finish their careers in a blaze of glory, to invent a term ... Our local nominations as Johnny Come Latelies are C. U. halfback Charlie Moutenot, and G. U. fullback Jim Castiglia ... the prematurely gray Moutenot, a flashy ball carrier, and Castiglia, a bone crushing runner and at times a savage blocker, have never quite lived up to tremendously enthusiastic freshman notices. Moutenot, the flying Frenchman who in track uniform runs the 100 in little over 10 flat, has been handicapped by injuries, while Castiglia's disappointments remained unexplained ... At Georgetown they're hoping Castiglia will be another Joe Megien, who, you will remember, did practically nothing for three years and then in his senior season developed into a one-man wrecking squad and made the All-Eastern squad.

OODLES OF ODDITIES—Coach Paddy Driscoll has a new worrying twist ... he's moaning because the Golden Avalanche squad has too many "good looking" guys ... says he never saw so many "collarads on a varsity team" ... James (Sarge) Carroll, recently retired after serving for 13 years as Texas A. & M.'s manager of athletic equipment, has fought in this country's every war since the Spanish American. ... From May, 1899, to May, 1902, Sarge was in 56 engagements in the United States, the Phillipines, Mexico and Europe ... They may accuse the Clemson football team of "going out and getting them," but they can't say the Tigers go far in search of material ... for of the 48 players on this year's squad, 36 are from South Carolina and none of the other 12 hails farther North than Lynchburg, Va. ... Ray Morrison, new Temple coach and renowned as the ringmaster of S. M. U.'s aerial circus, says "forward passing is not the chief attacking plan. Sure I'm a great believer in aerial football. But I still insist that your attack must be fundamentally sound on the ground before the passes can pay dividends."

J. Ramsey Maddock, 1938 graduate of Blair Academy here, is a sophomore candidate for Lafayette's eleven, and is accounted a good prospect ... Aubrey Rion, Clemson's highly touted triple threat back, is the same lad who reached the middleweight finals of the last Southern Conference boxing championships ... What a stiff arm he must have! Al Blozis, Georgetown's shot put champion, may pass up the annual N. Y. A. C. games this month, so intent is he on football ... It was at these games last year that Blozis started a sensational year of record breaking by lowering the meet mark for the 16-pound shot ... Wesleyan University this season held a quiz to determine how its football heroes spent their summer ... Among the unusual information received was that one tipped over in an Army truck during a black-out;" another was forced to join the C. I. O., and a third was "date-less" during the vacation months ... This, he described, as "most unusual."

Albert Strong Takes Lead In Cup Regatta

Albert Strong, of Rock Hall, Md., yesterday sailed his Sally S. to win both morning and afternoon races in the 20-foot chine bottom class in the sailing events of the President's Cup Regatta, a feat which, coupled with his second place Saturday, places him first in his class with 17½ points.

Saturday's regatta record of 131 boats contesting was shattered yesterday when two new Penguins entered, bringing the number to a new high of 133. With moderate easterly breezes, the tall sails filled the river off Hains Point from 9:30 a. m. to 4 p. m.

One near-casualty occurred in the morning when Warner M. Willcox, 1937 comet champion, jibed his Night Wind on a turn and had her blown on her beam ends. He and his crew, Chet Haines, scrambled onto the centerboard and righted her almost before she wetted her sails.

In winning the afternoon heat, Strong crossed the finish line among the round bottom 20-footers, which had started 5 minutes ahead of his class, trailed more than 3 minutes later by Sea Witch II for second place. Robert E. Lee, skippered by Clarke Daniel, of Washington, finished the afternoon heat for comets 4 minutes 56 seconds ahead of Night Wind.

Final results in the three-race regatta, by classes:

20-FOOT ROUND BOTTOM—Yankee, Oscar Hartge, West River, Md., 40½ points; Wings, Carroll Smith, Galesville, Md., 35; Chesapeake, Ernest W. Hartge, Galesville, Md., 34.

20-FOOT CHINE BOTTOM—Sally S, Albert Strong, Rock Hall, Md., 17½; Lady Avon, P. E. Edrington, Washington, 13; Puddles II, Fred W. Carlson, Annapolis, Md., 12.

COMET—Night Wind, Warner Willcox, New York City, 82¼; Robert E. Lee, Clarke Daniel, Washington, 79¼; Scandal, R. Ernest Covert, Washington, 78¼.

HAMPTON—Silver Spray II, Bill Cox, Norfolk, Va., 20½; Phantom, Harold Cox, Norfolk, 19½; Gor Damp, Richard Counselman, Norfolk, 14.

LIGHTNING—Saucy Sal II, John L. Koehne, jr., Lawrence, Long Island, 12¾; Astral, George T. Buchan, Washington, 8; Vim, Jack Babcock, Washington, 7.

SNIPE—Rebel, Reid A. Dunn, Richmond, Va., 24½; Eleaner, Weston Valentine, Washington, 24; Bobby Dick, William Bender, Berwyn, Md., 22½.

CANOES—Banshee, Joseph O'Meara, Arlington, Va., 35¾; Black Streak, Charles MacMullen, Bethesda, Md., 34½; Vikinette, Charles Warner, Washington, 32½.

HANDICAP A—Bobcat, Corinthian Sea Scouts, Washington, 21; Wildcat, Corinthian Sea Scouts, 20¼; Royal Flush, Paul Edwards, Washington, 20.

HANDICAP B—Black Cat, Dr. Ralph Barnhard, Washington, 54½; Flying Cloud, Enos Ray, Fair Haven, Md., 54; Duchess, Robert Ray, Washington 52¼.

PENGUIN—Cat's Paw, Gerage A. Dankers, jr., Washington, 35½; Goblin, Phelps Hunt, Washington, 31; Puck, Forbes Morse, Manhassett, N. Y., 29½.

HANDICAP C—Sizzle Sea Scouts, 27½; Hova I, Sea Scouts, 26; Blue Streak, Anthony J. Oliver, 26½.

Arizonan Campaigns With Softball Team

Phoenix, Ariz, Sept. 15 (AP).—An all-star softball team helped Joe Hunt win the Democratic nomination for State treasurer.

He took the team on a campaign tour of the State. During the seventh inning "Stretch" Hunt stood at home plate and made campaign speeches. Gate receipts paid the traveling expenses of the team.

Georgetown A's Claim Crown

Georgetown Athletics nine claimed the colored baseball championship of Washington yesterday, following a 7—5 victory over the Washington Aztecs at Lincoln Park, Oxon Hill, Md.

D. C. Commission to Settle Armstrong Bout Muddle Today

Mead to Fly Here, Appear At Hearing

Manager of Welter Champ Will Seek To Shorten Battle With Furr Sept. 23

The comedy of errors that the Henry Armstrong-Phil Furr welterweight title fight has developed into is scheduled for an airing today before the District Boxing Commission, which is expected to make several reverse plays which will leave everyone happy.

Eddie Mead, globular manager of Hammering Hank, is to fly here from New York to urge the local boxing body to limit the fight to 12 rounds instead of the specified 15

While commissioners have stated that they will insist on the full 15 rounds National Boxing Association rules designate as championship fight distance, Matchmaker Gabe Menendez is confident that an agreement can be worked out with the commission.

Faces Suspension

Mead faces suspension in New York and the loss of $2,500 he posted on a contract that Armstrong would make his next title defense in Madison Square Garden for Mike Jacobs if he goes through with the Furr battle scheduled for Griffith Stadium a week from tonight.

Fat Eddie will fly to New York after today's hearing to appear tomorrow afternoon before the New York Commission.

As the picture now stands, Mead will be suspended in New York and lose the $2,500 if Henry fights for the title here, and he will be suspended in the District and N. B. A. States if he refuses to let Armstrong "risk" the title against Furr.

This situation becomes more ludicrous to the casual observer because it hardly matters whether the fight is set for 15 or 12 rounds. The 30-year-old Furr is not given a chance by seasoned fight followers to last more than half that distance with the champion.

Why Not Again?

As long as the N. B. A., which demands that titleholders defend the crown against one of the first 10 ranked fighters in his weight, has gone to the trouble of ranking Furr No. 7 after learning of the signing, they might as well execute some more about-faces and shorten the match to appease New York, one veteran fight fan insisted.

Apparently certain the fight will go on as planned for the benefit of the Variety Club's welfare fund, Armstrong stepped through an open-to-the-public workout yesterday at Turner's arena and will work again today at 3 p. m. while the commission is in session.

The champion, scheduled to fight Fritzie Zivic in the Garden 10 days after his date with Furr, said that he now weighs 148 and will scale down under the 147-pound maximum by next Monday night.

Furr, meanwhile, is working out at Meadowbrook Farms and Huron gymnasium happily thinking that he can tag Armstrong with the necessary blow to bring probably the biggest upset the welterweight division has ever seen.

Wood Steals OutboardShow

Takes Double Triumph In Motorboat Meet

By the United Press

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 15.—Gar Wood, jr., of Algonac, Mich., dominated the field today as he scored a double win in the second day's competition at the twelfth annual outboard championships at Lake Quinsigamond.

Wood set one of the two new competitive records made today and just missed scoring a triple win when Clinton Ferguson, of Waban, Mass., nosed him out in the class C amateur race.

Paul Wearly, of Muncie, Ind., who successfully defended his class A professional title, shared double honors with Wood by capturing the Class C professional race.

In point scoring Wood led with 2,300 points. Wearly had 2,100 and Ferguson was in third place with 1,475.

Dear Al:

Sonny Workman, forced to give up his mount in last Saturday's Eastern Shore, when he was taken ill before the race, is feeling much better. Some rather strenuous reducing had him down. Although he still is one of the Nation's ten best riders, I wouldn't be surprised, if Sonny doesn't give up the saddle soon. Workman has ridden for the best trainers in the game, and during these many years he has absorbed a lot of practical training ideas. Smart, a hard worker and not a slouch as a businessman, Sonny would make someone an excellent trainer. I'm not trying to write him out of the saddle and I'm not sure that he would even take a training job if one was offered; however, he always has been a credit to racing and the sport could use him when he decides to end his jockey career. I have heard Sonny abused by the fans occasionally. However, the records show that he has a clean slate. True, he has been suspended, but for only one reason—trying too hard to win a race. I wish I could have had him on Clymene closing day at Timonium. Speaking of Washington jockeys, let's give a hand to Eddie Smith, the one-time Northeast jitterbug. Eddie, strictly a family man, is in the best form of his career. Smith put up one of those billion-dollar rides on Little Beans in the Eastern Shore. He and Workman, too, have come a long way since those half-mile days. For a while in that seventh race last Saturday, I was beginning to believe we were back at Timonium. No wonder with Two Aces, Jockey A. F. Martinez, setting a mean pace—at 96 to 1, too. It looks as though those who have been yelling that jockey agents would be banned on the Maryland milers have another guess coming. At least, the agents were licensed as usual here and went right to work. The agents had been banned on the Maryland half-mile tracks which led to the belief that the same system would be used on the milers. The big-time jockeys are insistent that they be allowed to have agents. William Gillespie, secretary of the Jockeys Community Fund and Guild talked over the subject of agents with Chester F. Hockey, chairman of the racing commission last week.

See you on the rail. BILL.

First race—Becomly has been on the shelf since her effort in the East View Stakes in New York, where she finished sixth, only six lengths off the winner. Meeting the local talent in this event for Maryland breds, she shapes up as the winner. Mardi Gras can better his last and should be close. Buckle Up is speedy and might last for show.

Second race—Rough Brigade, winner of his last race at Narragansett, appears well placed in the second, with the contention comprised mainly of half-milers. County Cork likes this track and his chances would be greatly improved in the event of a heavy track. Blablah could threaten on best effort.

Third race—Rissa was finishing consistently close racing against medium grade platers on the Saratoga strip. In a wide open contest, she rates a slight edge. Annie Alone has lots of class and a return to her best form might easily see her come romping down in front. Zenana should receive serious consideration.

Fourth race—Cis Marion meets a field of better than average platers in this allowance event, and considering her successes in the handicap division figures to take down top honors. Sun Triad looks like the one to beat after fair races at Saratoga. Light of Morn moves up, but might be close.

Fifth Race—Conquer has needed the several races in which he had under his belt in New York and, finally reported to be in his best form, figures to earn the brackets in this claiming affair. Tow Rope showed excellent form in New England and shapes up as the chief contender. Tony Steel might be close.

Sixth Race—Navarin failed to live up to expectations when favored to win with $1,500 platers in New York. Disregarding that effort, he rates top figure on general form. Sanoma hails from a smart outfit and efforts at Saratoga indicate possibilities at a price. Knoxville has a bit of class.

Seventh Race—Braxton raced well at Saratoga and being pitted against a field cheaper than usual figures to earn the verdict. Chance Maker surprised to finish second in a cheap race at Narragansett and might be improving. Alexandrine displayed a dull effort when made favorite last out.

Best Bet—Becomly.

Chiefs Upset Grid Champions

Milwaukee, Sept. 15 (AP).—The Milwaukee Chiefs chipped the Columbus Bullies, defending champions, 14-2 today in the American Professional Football League opener.

Obbie Novakofski and Bill Hickey tallied the Chiefs touchdowns on a 74-yard run and a pass respectively.

Havre de Grace Horses to Watch

CARRIAGE TRADE—Off sluggishly and raced wide, this one closed gamely in that first try. Will get brackets real soon.

CAVALIER—Closed in bold fashion after virtually walking out of the gate. May beat best.

HIDE—Scratched when stablemate won last Saturday. Ready to beat cheap platers.

ROYAL BUSINESS — Waiting around for a crack down in good company over a distance of ground.

Skeeters Stage Armstrong 'Parachute Shoot'

Florence Zepp, an expert skeet shot in her own right, prepares to release 50 hydrogen-filled balloons, two of which contain tickets to the Henry Armstrong-Phil Furr welterweight title fight next Monday night, while prominent local skeeters get set to try to win the ducats. Plans to have the balloons dropped from a plane went awry when the Civil Aeronautics Authority said no sale. Left to right (kneeling) are J. M. Pearce, A. M. Rose, Frank Huseman, C. S. Hottel, George King. Standing (left to right) are A. H. Walter, R. C. Ridgeway, who won the ringside seats, C. Oliver, J. R. Hall, L. A. Singer and Joe Gamble. Three balloons got away

Nats Dislodge Detroit From League Lead

Leonard Wins, 6-1; Detroit Drops to 2d; York Pounds 28th

Freddie Hutchinson for four of their six runs and he left the scene under pressure in the sixth inning. Jimmy Bloodworth, George Case and Buddy Lewis led a nine-hit attack on Hutchinson. John Gorsica and Harold Newhouser.

Bloodworth started it. He swatted a homer far into the leftfield stands in the second inning for the first run of the ball game. Rudy York replied in kind in the same inning to tie the score at 1-1, but the Tigers were through and the Nats weren't.

Case rapped a fierce double against the left center wall in the fifth inning to score Pofahl, who had walked, and Ferell, who had singled, and the Nats lead was thus lifted to 3-1, amid the customers moans.

Buddy Lewis started Hutchinson's exit in the sixth with a two-bagger [illegible] pitcher passed Cecil Travis intentionally and then found himself in the grip of the habit. He also walked Sanford and Pofahl to force a run home, and Gorsica finally got the side out.

Another of Case's two-baggers helped fetch another Washington run in the seventh. His speed enabled him to get two bases on a routine blow to center, and Buddy Lewis promptly scored him with a single to right.

Newhouser gave up the sixth run in the ninth. Lewis doubled to center with two out, and Walker got him home with a single to right.

Leonard didn't permit more than one hit in any inning. He got over the big hump in the fourth when the Tigers filled the bases with one out on a single by Gehringer and walks to Greenberg and Campbell. Leonard also tossed a wild pitch into the inning and Ferrell contributed a passed ball, but the Tigers failed to score nevertheless. Higgins went after a Leonard knuckler and popped it up, and darned if Tebbetts didn't do the same. Leonard was pretty good today.

Tile Nine Wins B League Title Over Cafemen

First-Year Entry Wins, 12-0, Behind Taylor's Hurling

Plaza Tile's first-year entry in B section of the National City Sunday League wound up one of the most spectacular seasons of any local sandlot nine yesterday when it defeated Capital Cafe, 12 to 0, to capture the division title.

In the Junior Section, the only game of the day saw Naiman Photo team, paced by Pitcher Bill Fisher, defeat Kneesi Club, 21 to 8, and earn a championship series with Cardinal Athletic Club.

It was Plaza's hurler, Taylor, who provided the outstanding performance in the B game. He issued only four hits, fanned seven and was never in any real danger. His teammates rang up 11 hits, most of them in a five-run uprising in the third frame. E. Cinotti, Wynn, McCarthy and Taylor registered a paiar of hits apiece.

Fisher's victory in the junior battle was an easy affair, though Kneesi was closing fact at the end. Naiman had a hit for every run it scored in the seven-inning game, featured by the homer of First Baseman Lancaster. Harry hit a home run for the losers.

skins suffered that characteristic let-up that appeared in their preseason exhibitions, and the Dodgers came bounding back into the game to score a touchdown and a field goal as result of lucky breaks and to add another with a determined 70-yard drive down the field.

In almost every department the Redskins outshone the Dodgers. The Skins gained 369 yards—174 of it by passing—to the Dodgers' 276, rang up 15 first downs to Dodgers' 10 and completed 14 out of 20 passes. The Brooklynites tried 25 passes and completed but 12.

McFadden Leading Gainer

The game marked Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland's debut as a professional football coach, and it showed his Dodgers have a long way to go before living up to the preseason predictions.

Banks McFadden, the Dodgers' All-American halfback from Clemson, was the game's leading ground gainer with 61 yards in eight tries—one a 40-yard run in the third quarter that set the stage for the second Brooklyn touchdown.

The Redskins started out in the second half after an exchange of punts as though they meant to duplicate their 42-0 and 41-13 victories over the Dodgers last fall.

Starting from midfield, the Skins advanced the ball to the 27 as Johnston took a 9-yard pass from Baugh. Injured on the play, Johnston left the game and Jim Meade, the former Maryland University star, came in the game to run wild and carry the ball right up to the Dodger's 1½-yard line, where the Redskin blocking bogged down.

Meade Takes Ball

Meade carried the ball ten times, and he was hurled into the line under the goal posts seven times in a row, but it was no go, and the ball went over to the Dodgers.

Parker, who showed no ill effects from his ankle broken last May, kicked out from the end zone to Max Krause on the Dodger 30, and on the first play Meade fumbled on an attempted reverse to Ed Justice, nad John Golemgeske, Brooklyn taackle, recovered on the 33.

The Dodgers, with Parker doing the hurling, threw four pases for 12, 17, 18 and 22 yards before the final blow-off, which resulted in a Brooklyn touchdown. Parker tossed a bullet pass over the middle to Ben Kish, but the ball bounded off the hands of Kish and Justice into the arms of Mike Gussie, rookie guard from West Virginia, who stepped 3 yards for the score.

Hardly a moment later, Baugh went back to pass from his own 44 and fumbled the ball when he was rushed. A mad scramble ensued with Redskins and Dodgers dribbling the ball all across the field before Perry Schwartz, Brooklyn end finally recovered on the Redskins' 25.

A Dodger fumble recovered by Pinckert on the Redskin 38 launched the final Redskin offensive. Dick Todd, who came up with a total of 41 yards in three tries, galloped through the entire Dodger team to the 16. Filchock picked up 11 inside his left end and then tossed a pass into the left flat zone to Todd, who ran it over from the 8. Russell again converted.

Dodgers Show Power

For the first time, the Dodgers showed offensive power after taking the kickoff on their own 30. McFadden, faking off-tackle, cut wide around his left end and dashed 40 yards down to the Redskin 30 where Filchock and Wilbur Moore overtook him. A 13-yard gallop by Rhoten Shetley, rookie from Furman University, and Parker faded back to pass perfectly to McFadden on the 4. Filchock hit him, but McFadden pivoted and eluded Moore for the score.

Coach Ray Flaherty took no chances but used a veteran line up almost throughout the game. But for the substitution of Sanford in the first half, no other rookie saw action until late in the game when Bob Hoffman, blocking back, and Bob Seymour, fullback draftee from Oklahoma, got into the game.

In no mood to waste time, the Redskins took but three minutes, 12 seconds to march 75 yards down the field for the first score. Johnston took Cassiano's opening kickoff on his 10 and picked his way along to the 27.

Baugh went into action at this point with a pass straight down the field to Johnston that was good for 20 yards. Justice picked up three on a reverse, and Baugh flipped a short one over the middle to Justice for a first down on the Dodgers' 46. Johnston on a reverse carried it to the 43, a pass from Baugh to Millner picked up another yard and then Sammy faded back to midfield and cut loose with a high one down to Justice on the eight. Justice stepped over for the touchdown, and Sanford, the field goal kicking end from Alabama, came in to convert and put the Redskins out in front, 7-0.

Dodgers Drive to 34

The Dodgers took Sanford's kickoff on their 14 and drove up to the 34, where the Skins' defense clamped down, forcing Kish to kick out to Johnston on the Redskin 28. Johnston trotted it back to the 36 with some good blocking, picked up seven around his own right end and then made it a first down on the 49 on a reverse. A shovel pass through the middle from Baugh to Millner was good for 17 yards, and after another toss to Johnston put the ball on the Dodger 30, Sanford tried a field goal.

The kick was wide, but the Redskins quickly regained the ball after the Dodgers could advance it no farther than the 23. Starting on their own 30 they carried it down to the Dodger 27 as the quarter ended and Coach Flaherty sent in a new backfield of Erny Pinckert, Wilbur Moore, Dick Todd and Frank Filchock.

Moore scampered around end on a reverse for 7, Filchock went 4 to the 16 and then Bo Russell sent a perfect three-pointer between the uprights from the 25 to give the Skins a 10—0 lead.

After an exchange of punts, the Redskins were the beneficiaries of a lucky break when Ace Parker's short pass over the middle bounced off a lineman's shoulder and Pinckert recovered with a shoestring catch on the Dodger 43.

It took just two plays for Flaherty's second combination to drive the ball over. Filchock faded to the 50 and passed diagonally across the field to Bob McChesney, who was running at full speed down the leftfield sidelines with Parker and Banks McFadden, the Clemson All-American, on his shoulders. How McChesney caught that pass will remain a dark secret for some time to come, but out of the scramble he came with it on the 6-yard line, where he fell after the catch.

Filchock tore off the necessary 6 yards through his own right tackle and end, stumbling at the goal line, but getting back up to fall across. Russell's kick again was perfect, and the Redskins went out in front, 17 to 0.

Again the Dodgers could get nowhere, and after an exchange of punts, the half ended with the Redskins starting another drive from their 9-yard line.

Redskin Game Notes:

Dan Toppings Aloof; Navy Gridmen Attend

The Navy football squad and Coaches (Swede) Larson and (Rip) Miller attended the game. The Middies were seated in the centerfield bleachers at the start of play, but soon after were moved to the open stands in rightfield. Coaches Larson and Miller will be guests of honor today at the luncheon meeting of the Washington Football Writers' Association.

The Dan Toppings (he owns the Brooklyn club, she's the former Sonja Henie) snubbed the press from their seats in the first row of the rightfield stands. Miss Henie threw out the first ball at the insistence of Jesse Jones, who was to have performed the task, but after that it was difficult to see either. They had an escorting detail of one police officer and many ushers. The Toppings, the officer explained, wanted to see no one.

Late arrivals missed the first touchdown of the game, for Baugh heaved a pay-dirt pass to Ed Justice exactly three minutes and 12 seconds after play began.

Banks McFadden, the Dodgers' rookie halfback star, is one of nine brothers, all of whom attended Clemson College.

"Jarrin' Jim" Meade, the former University of Maryland line pulverizer, probably insured his 1940 berth with the Redskins by a good stint of plunging in the third quarter. Meade powered the Redskin drive that ended on the 1½-yard line. Singlehandely Meade lugged the ball from the Brooklyn 26 to the point where the drive stalled as Meade was sent into the line four times in succession. This was the only doubtful Redskin strategy of the game. After Meade's second plunge the Dodgers played a virtual 11-man line and had no trouble in stopping the bucks.

It was strictly a football day for the crowd of 32,763. They even booed as the announcer gave out timely scores from the red-hot American League pennant race.

It was also a fairly hungry bunch. Here's what they ate according to Uncle Billy Smith, veteran concessions proprietor:

150 dozen rolls, 1,000 pounds of hot dogs, 900 pounds of goobers and 500 cases of soft drinks.

6-Day Biker Peden Comes Here Today

The six-day bicycle racing situation gains momentum here today when William ("Torchy") Peden, 6-foot-2-inch, 230-pound Canadian redhead and the greatest rider of all time, reports here to conclude final training for the international six-day grind to be introduced at Riverside Stadium Sunday night at 9 o'clock.

Cesar Moretti, Italian daredevil, and Pat Mulvey, master track builder, are to accompany Peden here while other world-famous six-day stars are to report later in the week.

Peden, credited with the all-time record of 34 winning races, and Moretti, one of the most colorful competitors in the business, will start training immediately on Riverside drive and on nearby boulevards.

Mrs. Davy Starts Early in National Amateur Golf Play

Mrs. Myron Davy, the Maryland State women's finalist and Washington's only entry in the National Women's Amateur championship at Del Monte, Calif., next week, will be the second player off the tee in the qualifying rounds.

Mrs. Davy, of Congressional Country Club, will play at 8 o'clock, Pacific Coast time, with Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, of the Lakeside Club in Hollywood, home club of the movie colony, and Frances Glover, of Oakland.

The field of 164 will play an 18-hole qualifying round over the famous Peeble Beach course on Monday, while match play rounds will follow through the week.

Hollywood will be well represented, by Ruby Keefer, the No. 1 woman golfer of the movie stars; Mrs. Rod LaRoque, the former Vilma Banky, and Mrs. Bob Hope.

Defending Champion Betty Jameson heads the list of name stars that includes Marion Miley, etty Hicks, Jean Bauer, Dorothy Kirby and others.

Slingin' Sam Back In Brilliant Form

that he had never seen Baugh play better.

Sutherland also paid glowing tribute to the ability of the Redskins and their coaching staff. "They're a great ball club, make no mistake of that, "the tall dentist said, "and in Baugh they posssess one of the greatest players in football today.

"Never have I seen him (Baugh) play better than today."

Jock Puzzled

Asked which of the other Redskin backs gave his team the most trouble, Sutherland replied:

"Oh my heavens, ask me something easy. They were all too good."

Sutherland, whose Pitt elevens won 111 games, lost only 20 and tied 12 in his fifteen years of coaching there, and captured the Eastern championship in '27, '29, '31, '32, '34 and '37, was satisfied, all things considered, with Brooklyn's showing yesterday.

"You have to consider," he pointed out, "that we have a very young squad, including 18 rookies, and I am teaching a system new to most of the players. NatuIrally, our play won't be polished for some time yet, but still I was a bit disappointed today. They were too ragged.

Dodger Rookies Star

On the bright side of the picture for Sutherland and for the Brooklyn eleven in general was the performance of their rookie backfield men, Banks McFadden, of Clemson, and Ben Kish and Dick Cassiano, of Pittsburgh. All three won the respect of their Washington opponents, and that is the real criterion.

Brooklyn will be favored by next week's schedule, idling from league play to meet Paterson (N. J.) in an exhibition that will permit Sutherland to do any necessary experimenting and to smooth out flaws before the Dodgers return to league competition against Philadelphia the following Sunday.

Over in the Washington dressing room Coach Flaherty expressed only partial satisfaction with his team's efforts. Galling to the big red-head were numerous fumbles which led to 10 of the 17 Brooklyn points.

"Fumbles," he said emphatically, "are inexcusable when a team is leading 10-0 as we were during the first half.

Mrs. Ewin Dies Of Stroke at 53

Mrs. Nellie Rae Ewin, who suffered a paralytic stroke a week ago, died yesterday at Sibley Hospital. She was 53.

Mrs. Ewin, whose home was at 315 Fourth street northeast, leaves her husband, William Ewin; a son, Willliam, jr.; a daughter, Mildred, and a sister, Mrs. Nora Hettenkemer, all of Washington.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday at Chambers' funeral home, 517 Eleventh street southeast, with burial in the Congressional Cemetery.

Rumania Prays, Cheers as Former Queen Returns

Bucharest, Sept. 15 (AP).—Rumania's new totalitarian Iron Guard state, formed by decree of Gen. Ion Antonescu, prayed and cheered today as young King Mihai brought his mother, Princess Helen, back from exile to the palace his father, Carol, vacated a week ago.

Mother and son rode together in an open coach drawn by six white horses through the flower-strewn streets, followed in another coach by the stern, gray Antonescu, who only a few hours earlier had named himself "leader of the National Iron Guard state and chief of the Iron Guard regime."

Antonescu, who came to power with German support but no political organization of his own, appeared to have won the pro-Nazi Iron Guards' allegiance by giving them a majority of the posts in his cabinet and naming their leader, Horia Sima, as vice premier.

Rites Wednesday For David Barrow

Funeral services for David Barrow, who died Saturday night of a heart attack at his market at 1760 P street northwest, will be held Wednesday in Red Bank, N. J.

Mr. Barrow, 73, had been in the market business in Washington for many years. A native of Louisiana, he had lived also in New York and New Jersey.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Janet Barrow, and three sons, David W. Barrow, jr., and Wylie W. Barrow, of Washington, and Stanley Barrow, of Red Bank.

Col. Frank Parker, Retired, Dies In Walter Reed

Lieut. Col. Frank E. Parker, 54, U. S. A., retired, died Saturday at Walter Reed Hospital after a long illness.

Col. Parker was born in Lansing, Kans., and received his commission in the Army in 1912. During the World War he served in the Quartermaster Corps at Camp Johnson, Jacksonville, Fla.

After the war, Col. Parker was transferred to the finance division. For several years he was in charge of the division at Fort Hunt, Va. His home was at 1435 Floral street northwest. He retired from the service last year.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Rose Parker, and a son, Dr. Frank E. Parker, jr., both of Washington; a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Steintorf, of the Philippine Islands, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Frey, of Leavenworth, Kans. Funeral plans will be announced later.

Son of Dornier On N. Y. 'Vacation'

Copyright by New York Times

Roosevelt Field, L. I., Sept. 15.—Aviation circles here said today that Claudius Dornier, 24, son of the German plane designer, has been flying for a month at the "fly-by-meter" seaplane base at nearby Port Washington, to "keep his hand in the game." Dornier described his visit as a "vacation."

It is reported that he visited auto plants in Detroit before coming here. He is on a visitor's permit. He speaks fluent English, is studious and scholarly, and in aviation circles is considered a clever aeronautical engineer. There are reports that he is here looking after his father's 300 patents.

E. L. Yewell Dies; Patent Attorney

SUPERMAN — A Case of Necessity — BY JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER

SO THE WATER'S POURING OUT INSTEAD OF INTO THE INTAKE PIPES! DON'T TRY TO TELL ME THAT COULD BE ACCIDENTAL!
THAT MIRACULOUSLY STRONG MAN-UNDERWATER! HERE'S MY CHANCE TO GET AWAY.
IT LOOKS LIKE MY NEW ACQUAINTANCE DOESN'T CARE MUCH FOR MY COMPANY!
ULP! -YOU!
THAT'S RIGHT- ME! I'M NOT PARTICULARLY WILD ABOUT HAVING YOU AROUND, BUT I NEED SOMEONE TO GUIDE ME TO THE CHIEF ENGINEER.

WHAT'S THE CHARGE?
YOUR HONOR WE WERE WATCHING PRISCILLA PARKINS, AND THIS GIRL ASSISTED HER IN ESCAPING US, SOMEHOW!
THAT'S NOT TRUE, YOUR HONOR! I HAPPENED TO RUN ACROSS MY OLD FRIEND PRISCILLA AND VISITED WITH HER FOR A SHORT WHILE-
-WHEN I LEFT WITH MY HUSBAND, I WAVED GOOD-BYE TO HER! PRISCILLA WAVED BACK FROM HER WINDOW! THAT WAS THE LAST I SAW OF HER-
I SAW MISS PARKINS WAVE FROM HER ROOM! I STILL CAN'T UNDERSTAND IT— !!!
I INDUCED MY HUSBAND TO RETURN THIS WAY SO THAT I COULD VISIT WITH PRISCILLA AGAIN - AND SHE WAS GONE!!

Listen! with Glynn

When you listen to Candidate Wendell L. Willkie making the second radio address of his presidential campaign over WJSV and the Columbia network at 5 this afternoon, you'll hear a familiar voice introducing him.

At least it will be familiar to those of you who listened to WJSV's baseball broadcasts last season when Walter Johnson, baseball's famous "Big Train," called the games. For it is Walter, now Republican candidate for Congress from Montgomery County, Md., who is to present the Republican leader to the Nation as he spetks from Coffeyville, Kan.

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States Army, is to visit the studios of WJSV tonight and speak over Columbia's Nationwide network at 10:15 to National Guardsmen throughout the country. More than 200,000 Guardsmen are to be gathered in armories in their regions for the ceremonies of being mustered for one year of active military training.

A new dramatic series, titled "Those We Love," the saga of the troubles and joys of a small-town New England family, begins over WJSV at 7 tonight. Three popular young actors, Donald Woods, Richard Cromwell and Nan Grey, are to play the major roles. Bob Hope, Madeleine Carroll and Ralph Bellamy co-star in "Radio Theater's" presentation of "Love Is News" at 8.

One way or another, it sounds like a pretty dramatic day for WJSV.

Contract Bridge

"With almost any system, a player can usually arrive at the proper contract if he is the opening bidder," E. N. Marcus writes. "When the opponents open the bidding, however, the story becomes far more complicated, and experience has convinced me that defensive bidding is the crux of contract bridge. No matter how sound an overcall appears, there is always the tremendous danger of its being caught between two strong hands (partner, of course, holding a bust), with a resultant heavy penalty.

"The familiar line of attack has been to double an opening bid when you have a big hand (three and a half tricks or better). The sum total of your accomplishment is negligible; you frighten off the opponents by advertising your holdings, and you very rarely profit adequately from the double, since game is likely only about once out of every five times against an opponent's opening bid.

"Instead of this line, my suggestion is that you play a waiting game with a strong hand, and become aggressive with comparativley weak hands if they have good distribution. As an illustration: with neither side vulnerable, the opponent at your right bids one club. You hold:

♠ K J 7 3
♡ K 10 8 4
◇ K J 4 2

"To be sure, if you wish to make a shaded overcall you may bid one diamond, one heart, or one spade (preferably one diamond.) But if your opponent on the left now bids two clubs, what is your partner to do with such hand as this:

♠ A 8 6 4
♡ Q J 7 5
◇ Q 7
♣ 8 5 3

"And how simple it becomes when you double and send your partner this message, 'I have at least 1½ tricks, a shortage in clubs and good support in the other suits.' It is now perfectly obvious to your partner that he should have no worries about his entry into the auction, and that he may even make four spades if the queen can be located.

♠ A Q 7 5
♡ A Q 6 2

"Most systems advise a double; if partner answered one spade you would take a chance and bid three spades, which might be too much or too little, depending on partner's holding. If partner had bust, you would be in trouble; in any case you warn off the opponents and at the same time put yourself on the spot.

"On such a hand I suggest that you pass. If the next player passes, partner, knowing you may hold 3½ tricks or better, should keep the bidding open with as little as a king and queen. If the opponents themselves continue the bidding you may either indicate the nature of your first round pass by a second round double, or you may continue to 'trap pass' in the hope of penalizing the opponents. In either case the risk is small and the bidding is under control."

Oysters in Stew, Md. Season Opens

Crisfield, Md., Sept. 15 (AP).—Somerset County watermen and sportsmen welcomed the return of "high living" today—oyster tonging and the squirrel season legally started this morning.

Oysters on rocks in Tangier Sound and its tributaries are in "excellent condition," watermen said after a survey last week, but some reported that the bivalves of large size did not seem so plentiful in certain areas this year.

The month-long squirrel season opened throughout the State today, and gunners prepared to take to the fields tomorrow in search of a change in menus.

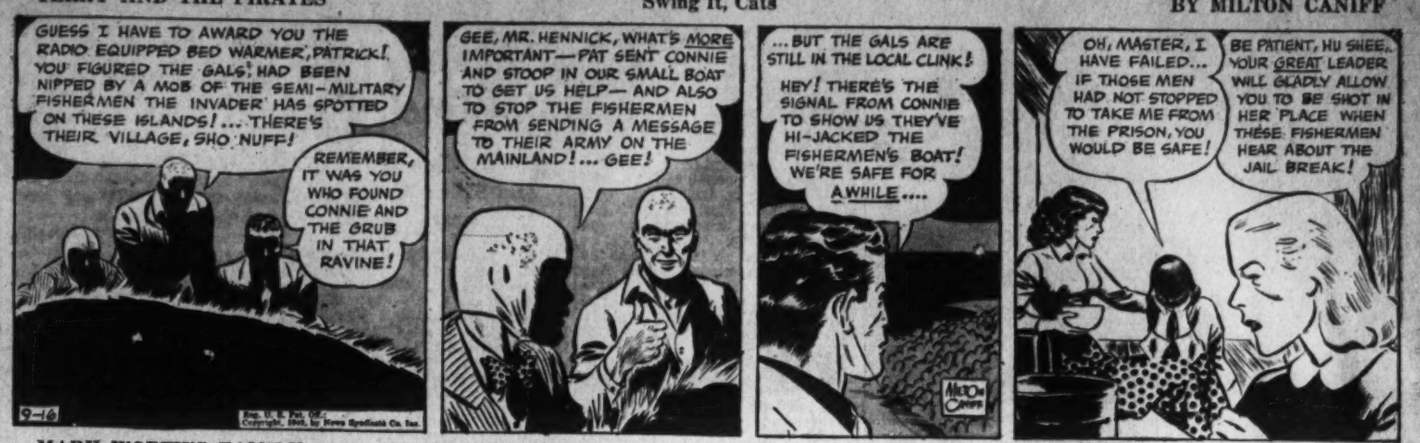
TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Swing It, Cats — BY MILTON CANIFF



GUESS I HAVE TO AWARD YOU THE RADIO EQUIPPED BED WARMER, PATRICK! YOU FIGURED THE GALS HAD BEEN NIPPED BY A MOB OF THE SEMI-MILITARY FISHERMEN THE INVADER HAS SPOTTED ON THESE ISLANDS!... THERE'S THEIR VILLAGE, SHO NUFF!
REMEMBER, IT WAS YOU WHO FOUND CONNIE AND THE GRUB IN THAT RAVINE!
GEE, MR. HENNICK, WHAT'S MORE IMPORTANT—PAT SENT CONNIE AND STOOP IN OUR SMALL BOAT TO GET US HELP—AND ALSO TO STOP THE FISHERMEN FROM SENDING A MESSAGE TO THEIR ARMY ON THE MAINLAND!... GEE!
...BUT THE GALS ARE STILL IN THE LOCAL CLINK!
HEY! THERE'S THE SIGNAL FROM CONNIE TO SHOW US THEY'VE HI-JACKED THE FISHERMEN'S BOAT! WE'RE SAFE FOR AWHILE....
OH, MASTER, I HAVE FAILED... IF THOSE MEN HAD NOT STOPPED TO TAKE ME FROM THE PRISON, YOU WOULD BE SAFE!
BE PATIENT, HU SHEE. YOUR GREAT LEADER WILL GLADLY ALLOW YOU TO BE SHOT IN HER PLACE WHEN THESE FISHERMEN HEAR ABOUT THE JAIL BREAK!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — BY DALE ALLEN

WITH HIS RIVAL EXPOSED AS NATIONAL HEAD OF THE "FIFTH COLUMN" PURPLE SHIRTS, JOHN IS HOPEFUL ON THE EVE OF ELECTION DAY!
STAR-NEWS BACK TO BLACKSTON SWING IS GAINING OF COURSE, WE MUSTN'T BE TOO OPTIMISTIC, LEONA--THE TRUTH ABOUT SWILLER MAY HAVE COME TOO LATE TO TURN THE MASS OF VOTERS AGAINST HIM!
GOOD LAND! I CAN'T SEE WHY THEY EVEN KEEP HIS NAME ON THE BALLOT--CONSIDERING THIS!
NEWS SWILLER HEAD OF PURPLE SHIRTS
HE'S STILL GOVERNOR, AUNT MARY! IMPEACHMENT PROCEEDINGS WOULD TAKE WEEKS---AND IF HE IS RE-ELECTED, HE'LL PROBABLY CONTROL THE LEGISLATURE---!
DO YOU THINK DECENT PEOPLE COULD PUT A SCOUNDREL LIKE HIM BACK IN OFFICE?
ONLY ONE THING IS CERTAIN---WE'LL KNOW THE ANSWER THIS TIME TOMORROW!

DONALD DUCK — Dead End Kidder — BY WALT DISNEY

MICKEY FINN — New Friend! — BY LANK LEONARD

MICKEY MEETS ANOTHER MEMBER OF THE "BRIGHT LIGHT" SQUAD WHILE WAITING FOR INSPECTOR KLIPP AT THE TWEEDMORE HOTEL!
HELLO, MICKEY! I'M JOHNNY BIFFALICK! WELCOME TO THE SQUAD!
GEE--I'M GLAD TO KNOW YOU --BUT HOW DID YOU KNOW ME?
I'D BE A FINE DETECTIVE IF I DIDN'T KNOW THE DEPARTMENT'S STAR ATHLETE --HAVE YOU REPORTED TO INSPECTOR KLIPP YET?
YES--BUT I GUESS I SHOULD'VE WAITED UNTIL HE FINISHED HIS BREAKFAST --HE SEEMED SORE AND TOLD ME TO WAIT OUT HERE!
WELL, LET'S SIT DOWN WHILE WE'RE WAITING--HE MAY NOT COME OUT FOR AN HOUR!
FINE--THERE'S A LOTTA THINGS I'D LIKE TO ASK YOU ABOUT THE SQUAD!
--A-AND IS THE INSPECTOR REALLY AS TOUGH AS HE LOOKS--A-AND ACTS?
YOU'LL FIND OUT, MICKEY--S-S-SH! HERE HE COMES NOW!

DIXIE DUGAN — Open Sesame — BY J. P. McEVOY AND H. J. STRIEBEL

OPEN THOSE DOORS!!
NOT A CHANCE! --COME!
O.K., SMART FELLA --SEARCHING PARTIES WILL FIND US!
NOT A CHANCE! --BETTER COME ALONG
JUST A MOMENT--WHY ARE WE YOUR PRISONERS?
YOU'RE NOT PRISONERS --YOU'RE MY "GUESTS"--
--AND I'M SURE YOU'LL LOVE IT HERE!
NOT A CHANCE!

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — The Good Sport — BY FRANK MARTINEK

SCENE--LATE AT NIGHT AT THE DOCKS AT SAN PEDRO PORT FOR LOS ANGELES
LET'S SEE, YOU SAY YOUR LINER, THE SANTA CRUZ, IS TIED UP AT PIER 22, MISS WARE?
IT'S JUST AHEAD, MISTER WINSLOW
LOOK! NOW YOU CAN SEE THE FUNNELS
THEN WE'LL STOP RIGHT HERE AND TAKE OUR POSTS
RED, YOU JOIN THE PLAIN-CLOTHES MEN FROM POLICE HEADQUARTERS AND GO ABOARD SHIP WHERE THE FREIGHT'S BEING LOADED
YOU'RE SURE YOU'RE WILLING TO RISK--
--HIDING INSIDE THE WAREHOUSE WITH YOU TO POINT OUT THE SCORPION'S PHONY STEVEDORES? OH, YES MISTER WINSLOW. I'M NOT AFRAID. I JUST LOVE EXCITEMENT!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — BY SAUNDERS AND WOGGON

STILL NO WORD OF WAHOO'S FATE! THIS SUSPENSE IS SLOWLY DRIVING ME CRAZY!
IF I'D ONLY WARNED HIM THAT TOUCHING A SACRED COW IN THIS COUNTRY IS ALWAYS PUNISHED BY DEATH!
POOR CHIEF! THAT REDSKIN IS THE BEST LITTLE PAL A GUY EVER HAD! AND HE'S PROBABLY DEAD NOW--OR BEING FIENDISHLY TORTURED!
BUT--INSIDE THE PALACE--
DO HAVE MORE OF THESE RARE FRUITS, CHIEF WAHOO! WE WANT YOU TO BE HAPPY HERE!
WAHOO DON'T UNDERSTAN'--BUT MUCH UMBLIGED ANYHOW!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

HAVING ROUNDED UP THE SHARK GANG, KING AND KID STOP AT THE INDIAN VILLAGE OF CHIEF WHITE EAGLE, ON THEIR TRIP BACK TO MOUNTIE HEADQUARTERS.
HELLO, CHIEF!
GREETINGS, WHITE EAGLE! WHERE ARE ALL YOUR YOUNG BRAVES?
MY SON--SONS OF ALL MY PEOPLE GO NORTH--THREE SLEEPS--WORK IN MINE. GIANT WHITE MAN MAKE FINE PROMISES OF BIG MONEY, BUT--
BUT WHAT, WHITE EAGLE?
ONE MOON PASS, NO WORD COME. NO BRAVE RETURNS! SAD NEWS AND FEAR IS LOT OF TRIBE!

Ringside Table

By Mary Harris.

DANCE QUIZ. Who says there's nothing new? There'll be a "Dance Quiz" at the Pall Room when it opens on September 26. This real novelty is the brain child of Ethel Fistere of the Arthur Murray Dancers. The "Dance Quiz" will be worked by having Dorothy Pond and Danny Scudder of the Murray-ites do 20 or 24 dances which ringsiders will compete in identifying. Here's hoping you know the difference between a samba and a rumba.

FOR YOUR DATE BOOK. The Versailles will open on October 16 with Burrus Williams leading a Sidney orchestra, playing oodles of that Cuban music which Owner Lily Santmyer brought back from Havana. . . . Del Rio will celebrate its "formal fall opening" during the first week in October. Have to give you the exact date later. Herbie Sachs is in New York getting floor show talent for the party. . . . The Casino Royal will swing its "fall opening" high, wide and pretty on Tuesday, September 24.

NEW FACES AND VOICES. A

JUNE SOTHERN, Madrillon's new singer beginning tomorrow

last-minute switch in plans for "Pan-American Week" on the Shoreham Terrace will bring singer-guitarist Vicente del Garza and dancer Aurelia Celinda, direct from New York's El Chico, into the floor show beginning today. This is the result of a sudden change in mind by the lovely Boyd Sisters, daughters of the Minister from Panama, originally booked, who've decided to postpone their professional debut. . . . Dee Tracy, who was so popular as the Mayflower cigaretteuse, will begin a singing engagement at the Robin Hood today. Everyone knows that Dee's a darling and we hear she sings delightfully. . . . Madrillon will have a new canary tomorrow in the person of June Sothern, winner of those auditions that Maestros Carr and Don have been conducting for the last two months. . . . There'll be a new group of rhythm boys at the Hi Hat this afternoon. Who they are we don't know. Manager Russell A. Conn of the Ambassador is bringing them back from New York in his pocket.

RIVIERA LOUNGING. Stork Club type has been adopted in the new Riviera beverage list. The print's so big you can read it in the dimmest light . . . Riviera continues to be packed to the rafters every night. The other eve we practically sat on the bandstand, a grand place from which to watch Pete Macias having fun playing "boogie woogie" piano.

MUSIC IN THE SCREWBALL MOTIFF. Dick Koons, of the Mayflower Lounge, and his Glee Clubbers are getting ready to cut loose with Pennsylvania 6500," only they'll sing it as "District 3000," the Mayflower's number. They're also playing around with a firecracker called, "The Man Don't Come to Our House Any More" . . . Nadine's Co-eds themselves go into stitches at Maryland Gardens when Yvonne Logan sings "Wahoo!" with a battered sombrero and a frayed rope as properties . . . Mayfair's Mousey Garner is nightly achieving the heights of something-or-other by singing a parody of "West Virginia Hills." Mayfairites can't believe their ears!

Eddie Whitesel, the New Bavarian's handsome strolling accordionist, has the smallest automobile in town. We thought it was a kiddie-car until we saw the motor.

LA OPENINGS. Troika's fall debut and the opening of the Carlton's new Cosmos Room were signalized by such crowds that if the customers hadn't been nice people, some unfortunates would have been trampled to death in the crush . . . The Troika show was superb as always, with Candido Botelho's tenoring providing the evening's supreme sensation. This year Troika shows every sign of going Pan-American between Botelho, singer Lina D'Acosta and the new South American chef who's a star, too . . . The new Cosmos Room simply reeks with beauty, the Ben Young music is impeccable and little singer Ginny Braynard gives our town a new dash of sugar 'n spice.

"DANCING CAMPUS." That's the new pet name for Boulevard Farms. Because of the new maestro, Berk Motley and his 12-piece orchestra with Singer Agnes Hudson. They play the new kind of polished swing that's so high in favor with collegians and their cutey-pies. The Motley orchestra is so big that it lends itself brilliantly to complicated arrangements.

THE RHYTHM BOYS. Jack Kerr of the Cafe Caprice, operated his own Club Harlequin in New York last year. Before that it was the Villa Vallee, scene of Rudy's discovery of the megaphone . . . Dave Crocker, of the Rainbow Room orchestra, played the steel guitar at just one engagement in his life, decided to be true to his accordion . . . Oddest named musician in town is Dee Orr, drummer lad of Grant Thompson's Orchestra in the Wardman Metronome Room . . . Al Oddone, maestro of the Gay Nineties, made his professional start as a singer with John Slaughter. (Did you know that John has inherited a bushel of money, doesn't work a-tall any more?) . . . Andy Andrusia of Rodd Raffell's Nightingale Orchestra, is both brass player and publicist of the band. He's one of the best bass players hereabouts . . . "Curly" Fox, of the Neptune Room's Three Star Trio, is threatening to surprise his fans by getting a toupee, blonde and wavy.

FOR THE FOOD-MINDED. Oysters are now at their best. And the creamed oysters at the Harrington Tavern are so delicious that you'll scrape the platter . . . And the panned oysters with ham served at Dick's Grill, um-m-!

WHAT'S IN A NAME. Matt Windsor, of the Anchor Room, recently visited the offices of the Republican Watchman in Monticello, N. Y., found out the paper is Democratic. "We watch the Republicans," said the editor.

Lotus' Cocoanut Grove Revue" is held over this week, but will have a lot of new cocoanuts in the way of star acts, and niftick production numbers and novel dance music by Bill Strickland's Streamliners.

Dr. Ray Calls Dictators 'Misdirected'

Hitler, Mussolini And Stalin Discussed At Epworth Church

Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin were called "misdirected personalities" yesterday by Dr. Clifton K. Ray, addressing services to initiate "Christian Personality Week" at Epworth Methodist Church, Thirteenth and North Carolina avenue northeast.

"Here is personality misdirected, here are personalities working for their own selfish ends," the cleric said from the rostrum of a freshly renovated auditorium, declaring that Hitler's personality "has turned all of Europe into an inferno and has shaken the equilibrium of the whole world."

Contrasting Personalities

He asked the young people to contrast such personalities with those of Martin Luther, John Wesley and Jesus Christ. The latter, he said, was the greatest personality that ever lived. No man has left such an impression of his personality upon individuals, states and nations.

Raymond Poore, retiring president of the senior young people's department, sponsors of the week, earlier in the morning was elected assistant superintendent of the Sunday school young people's department. He joined with Miss Wynelle Jowers, retiring secretary, in assisting the Rev. Mr. Ray at the services.

Senior Officers Elected

Chosen to head the seniors for the coming year were Mildred Gilliken, president; Frank Curls, vice president; Robert Calcote, treasurer, and Mildred King, secretary.

The Rev. Claude Thompson, youthful pastor of the Mount Oak (Md.) Methodist charge, addressed last night's fellowship hour, conducted by James Dawson.

A sound version of "King of Kings" will be shown on Tuesday at 8 p. m. as another feature of the celebration. A "Personality in the Home" candlelight program is scheduled for Thursday at 8 p. m., with Mrs. S. E. Moore, junior Sunday school department superintendent, speaking. Miss Gilliken will preside.

East Sligo Garden Club To Explain 'Gadgets'

Garden gadgets will be demonstrated at a meeting of the East Sligo Valley Garden Club to be held today at 8 p. m. at Jesup Blair Community House, Georgia avenue, Silver Spring, Md.

Each guest is requested to bring a garden tool and explain its use. Mrs. John L. Dean and Dan Mularkey are in charge of the program. Residents in the Silver Spring area interested in gardening are welcome to attend.

2 Classes Answer Red Army Call; 'Emergency' Seen

Moscow, Sept. 15 (AP).—Two classes of Soviet recruits began trooping to the Red Army colors today amid press warnings that Russia must be ready for any emergency arising from the European war.

Youths aged 19 and 20 assembled at draft headquarters throughout Russia for their regular two-year stint.

Defense Commissar Marshal Semeon Timoshenko and Gen. K. A. Meretskoff, army chief of staff, returned to Moscow from district maneuvers to supervise the enlistment which will continue to October 10.

Trud, the labor organ, declared "the second imperialist war is growing fiercer, our country is in a capitalist encirclement and we must be ready for all eventualities."

The navy organ, Red Fleet, meanwhile charged that Britain and France had tried to involve Russia in the Balkan conflict. "Only the wise Stalinist policy of the Soviet . . . prevented an attack on our country. . . . The Soviet Union stands outside this war and its causes."

Mrs. Shugrue Dies; Rites Tomorrow

Mrs. Mary E. Shugrue, 80, widow of Patrick Shugrue and a lifelong resident of Washington, died yesterday at her residence, 1233 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

The funeral services will be held from the residence at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow, followed by a solemn requiem mass at the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mrs. Shugrue was a daughter of the late Lawrence and Catherine Hickey, of Washington. Surviving are a son, Dr. John J. Shugrue, of Washington; a daughter, Mrs. Patrick S. Madigan, wife of Col. Madigan, U. S. A.; a sister, Sarah C. Hickey, of Washington, and two grandchildren.

Communists, Doctors Face Trials Soon

District Court's Autumn Term Will Begin on October 1

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

Two criminal trials in the District Court autumn term, starting October 1, will involve power of the Government to control "organized medicine," and to investigate political activities of the people.

The American Medical Association, District Medical Society and a score of other defendants are scheduled to go on trial October 21 under indictment charging criminal conspiracy to restrain trade. The alleged victim was Group Health Association, Inc., which was bitterly attacked here by "organized medicine."

In another case five Communists who refused to answer questions before the Dies Committee, are due to stand trial, probably later in the term, on an indictment charging contempt of the House of Representatives. They risk sentences of 1 to 12 months in jail and fines of $100 to $1,000 each.

Justice Gordon to Return

Court will convene with all its 12 justices on the bench for the first time since last spring. The aged Justice Peyton Gordon plans to return to service after six months' illness of coronary thrombosis.

The medical case will come before 12 jurors after more than two years of skirmishing which once went to the Supreme Court.

Others To Be Tried

Also due for trial are:

David D. Mayne, alleged author of spurious letters purporting to link Representative Dies to William Dudley Pelley, chieftain of the anti-Jewish Silver Shirts organization, for forgery and getting money by false pretenses. He is charged with selling the letters for genuine.

Clarence Blocker, 24, colored, for the fatal shooting of Park Policeman Ivan W. Thompson, who was arresting him for reckless driving.

Gen. MacArthur Urges Aid to Britain

New York, Sept. 15 (AP).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, former United States Army chief of staff, said today the Nation would make "the greatest strategical" mistake if it failed to give immediate aid to England.

In a cablegram from Manila to William Allen White, chairman of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, Gen. MacArthur, who is now military adviser to the Philippines, urged "coordinated" and "synchronized" help for the British.

Monticello Sets Record for Visitors

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 15 (AP).—If you hear politicians shouting in the next six weeks about folks getting back to Thomas Jefferson, there's something to it.

In August 16,821 persons visited Monticello, the home of Jefferson, the largest number for any August on record.
